Macmillan Proposes Non-Aggression Pact Between East, West

Would Be Prelude To New Parley

LONDON, Jan. 4 (AP) — Prime Minister Macmillan proposed tonight an East-West nonaggression pact and perhaps a summit meeting later. Both have been urged repeatedly by the Soviet Union.

Macmillan declared in a nationwide broadcast that Britain is ready to negotiate either within or outside the United Nations to test the sincerity of Russia's current peace offensive

"We could start by a solemn pact of nonaggression," the prime minister declared. "This has been done before. It would do no harm. It might do good."

He said that regardless of how the West goes about making its new approach to Russia, "the object would be to clear away the rubble of old controversies and disagreements—perhaps to get the path ready for a meeting of heads of government."

Britain always has left the door open for a summit conference if there are reasonable prospects for success. But the statement on a nonaggression pact appeared to reflect a notable shift in government policy.

British government officials generally have discounted Russian proposals in this field in the past. They have often called attention to the fact that Russia had nonaggression pacts with most of the countries it swallowed up after World War II.

Macmillan, however, held out the possibility that Russia may have undergone a genuine change of attitude in the Sputnik age, a view not shared by his U. S. ally.

"Some people may think that it is no part of Communist philosophy or Russian intentions to bring any more countries into subjection by force," he said.

"This may well be true. I do not rule it out. But can anyone be reasonably sure?"

No One Sure

Macmillan said no one in the West can be sure of what Russia has in mind. Referring to Soviet New Year's greetings sent to Western leaders, he said:

"They often speak fair words. They spoke many fair and friend-

Passman To Push Battle Against Aid

Opinions To Be Well Represented During Absence

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4 (AP) — Reports of nearly two billion dollars in Communist-bloc aid to underdeveloped countries of the world today seemed unlikely to daunt efforts by Rep. Passman D-LA to cut U. S. foreign aid.

The Louisianan, as head of the House appropriations subcommittee handling foreign aid, holds one of the most important congressional posts in determining the size of America's overseas assistance program.

Last year Passman was instrumental in Congress' cutting more than one billion dollars below President Eisenhower's foreign aid request. Eisenhower this year is reported ready to ask for around the same amount, about four billion dollars.

Passman is convalescing in Monroe, La., from what was called a mild heart attack. His office here issued a statement after hearing from Passman by telephone.

Arrangements Made

Passman, the statement said, has arranged for "active representation of his viewpoint" in the Congress pending his expected return to Washington around mid-February.

Passman "is firmly of the opinion that the reported promises by the Communist bloc of a total of $1,900,000,000 in aid funds to under-developed nations must not be permitted to scare us away from applying the brakes to the giveaway foreign policy of the United States," the statement said.

It added that the congressman is not likely to be "significantly in-

Dart Taken From Skull Of Georgia Boy

Richard was flown to Atlanta last night with the ¾-inch-long dart blade in his skull.

Another youngster threw the dart at the Albany teen-age recreation center. It accidentally struck Richard on the right forehead, between the eyebrow and hairline.

The boy was rushed to an Albany hospital where X-rays showed the point of the dart sticking out past the bone structure of the head.

At no time did Richard lose consciousness.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. McRanie, were advised to rush their son to a neurosurgeon in Atlanta. The three boarded a plane in Albany late Friday. The plane was grounded at Macon because of mechanical trouble.

"We had to wait in Macon for about three hours for them to send another plane from Atlanta to pick up us and the other passengers," the mother said.

During the wait, Richard read a magazine borrowed from another passenger.

"He didn't want his flattop shaved off," the surgeon said.

Richard's flattop was ruined, but the physician said that Richard, barring complications, should recover without permanent damage.

15 New Orleans Boys Fire Rocket

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 4 (AP) — Fifteen New Orleans boys reported they fired a single stage rocket 11,500 feet into the air today from a launching site near Gainesville, Miss.

The boys, members of the Metairie Amateur Rocket Society, said their rocket set an amateur altitude record for the South. The old record, they said, was 4,000 feet.

The boys said they launched their rocket from a pit near the town of Gainesville, Miss. They said the rocket was 2½-feet tall, traveled 550 miles an hour and stayed in the air 26 seconds.

ABRUPT DECISION

Army Research Chief To Retire Early In March

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4— UP —Lt. Gen. James M. Gavin, the Army's chief of research, today abruptly decided to quit the Army and be "freer to write and talk" about the nation's defense needs.

Army Secretary Wilber M. Brucker promptly denied that Gavin had been fired or criticized in any way for his recent proposal to drastically reorganize the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Gavin told the United Press he plans to retire from the Army in March. He will then be 51 years old, he said, and will have completed 30 years in the military service.

Brucker said that he hoped Gavin would change his mind and remain in the Army.

Testified Before Committee

Gavin recently testified before the Senate Preparedness Subcommittee and urged overhaul of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. Asked whether this brought criticism or influenced his decision to retire, Gavin said, "I don't know that had much to do with it."

Brucker made plain to the United Press that the Army wants Gavin to stay in his post.

"I regret this very much," Brucker said, when informed of Gavin's decision. "I think he ought to stay. He is in the very cream of his manhood. I think he's a very dedicated and brilliant officer and I regret that he has come to the conclusion that he has reached."

Brucker said that he has given this instruction to Gavin and other Army witnesses testifying before the Senate subcommittee headed by Senate democratic leader Lyndon B. Johnson: "You

Solon Sees No New Tax Needs

BATON ROUGE, Jan. 4 (AP) —Rep. Claude Kirkpatrick said today the state has overspent the last two years and with a recession threatening must pause to examine every tax dollar.

The 40-year-old Jennings legislator, a successful businessman, during two state administrations has played important roles in fiscal policies.

He called for an immediate start on "a careful nonpartisan approach in the state's fiscal problems," now that the 1958 Legislature is moving into sight.

Kirkpatrick, a leading anti-administration House member, is reported under consideration by Gov. Earl Long as one of the "Middle-of-the roaders" the governor said he wants on his new Budget Study Committee.

The representative from Jefferson Davis Parish was vice chairman of former Gov. Robert Kennon's highway fiscal planners. He was vice chairman of the special committee Lt. Gov. Lether Frazar formed last year which made the first recommendation to grant teachers 16 million dollars in existing surplus for a pay raise.

"This is inventory time and all those interested in the government of our state should take stock of its financial position," Kirkpatrick said in an interview. "During the last two years we have greatly expanded our school system, highway program and welfare services, as well as many

Here's a new twist in the annals of the Monroe law enforcement.

Patrick Ryan, 65, of Shreveport, walked up to a Monroe policeman and insisted that he be arrested. Officer D. L. Barnes accommodated him and locked Ryan up on a drunkness charge.

In court Judge W. M. Harper questioned the prisoner and told him that in view of the circumstances "I'm going to let you sentence yourself — what'll it be?"

Phone Crews Stand Poised For Walkout

NEW YORK, Jan. 4 (UP)— Negotiators committed to an all-out effort to avert a nationwide telephone strike resumed contract bargaining today, with long distance operators poised to hang up on the public on a moment's notice if the talks bog down.

The negotiations were started up again shortly after 2:30 p.m. with each side holding a separate meeting to map bargaining strategy.

A total of 25,000 members of the AFL-CIO Communications Workers of America are involved in the dispute with the American Telephone and Telegraph Co.

A strike by the union, authorized to begin at any time union officials give the word, would cripple long distance service across the nation as well as service to foreign countries and ships at sea.

Forty per cent of the union's members are telephone operators. The rest are maintenance, accounting and commercial employes.

The union, representing long lines workers in 42 states and the District of Columbia, wants higher pay and management abandonment of demands for a no-strike clause, discontinuance of voluntary union dues check-off and longer hours for administrative workers in 24 communities.

The union's 13 month contract with AT&T expired at midnight Friday, but the union agreed to further talks before calling a strike.

"The strike is off, at least until we talk some more with the company," said Elaine Gleason, national director of the union's long lines division.

She said a wage offer made by AT&T Friday night in reply to a union counter-proposal still was inadequate because it provided no increases at all for some workers.

ARRIVES IN LONDON

Pilot Is Treated Well By Albanians

LONDON, Jan. 4 (UP)— The pilot of a British freighter plane released by Albania today said the Albanians treated him and his fellow crew-members "like royalty" after they were convinced he had violated Albanian airspace in a "genuine mistake."

Pilot Marian Kozubski flew his DC-7 Skymaster home to Britain today. He said he strayed over Communist territory Tuesday during bad weather and that two Russian-built MIG jet fighters fired machineguns ahead of his plane to force it down.

However, he said Albanian officials accepted his explanation.

Kozubski Reports

Kozubski reported the details of the incident in a telephone call to his firm, Independent Air Travel Ltd., during a brief stopover at Brindisi, Italy, on the flight to Hurn, an airfield 110 miles southwest of London.

The American-built DC-7 Skymaster flew to Brindisi from the Albanian military field at Berat where the plane was forced to land.

"The first I realized that we were off course was when two MIG fighters came out of a cloud toward us and took positions on either side of the Skymaster," he reported to his home officials.

"Both the MIGs began firing straight ahead of us. I must in

Ike Plans Heavy Work For Solons

Many Fields To Get Attention In Messages

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4 UP —President Eisenhower is laying out a heavy work schedule for Congress which reconvenes Tuesday, the White House disclosed today.

In addition to his State of the Union, budget and economic messages scheduled this month, he will transmit special messages on labor union safeguards, the farm price situation, science education, and foreign aid.

He will deliver his State of the Union, budget and economic message day. White House Press Secretary James E. Hagerty also said he may make another personal appearance before the lawmakers later but did not say what it might involve.

To Meet With GOP Leaders

Mr. Eisenhower will meet with Republican congressional leaders Tuesday morning to give them a preview of his legislative plans. But once again he will be dealing with a Democratic-controlled Congress which will have the final say on how his program fares.

The gauge of this opposition—or co-operation — should become quickly apparent. Among the overriding legislative issues on which the Democrats may not see eye-to-eye with the President are ballistic missiles rivalry with Russia and inflation midst an economic slump.

Senate Republican leader William F. Knowland (Calif.) told newsmen today that Congress will neither raise nor reduce taxes. He said he expects Mr. Eisenhower's fiscal 1959 budget to be in balance at current tax levels. He said the nation cannot afford to return to a period of deficit-spending, thus increasing the national debt and inflationary pressure.

Knowland Declines Comment

Knowland declined to comment on the President's 40 billion dollar defense budget — more than half of the overall $74 billion budget he will propose. He conceded that "some additional funds" will be needed for defense. But he said he thought it was important to have "a definite, steady, planned program for defense without any peaks and valleys."

He said the nation appears to be "in a period of economic readjustment" but he is confident business will pick up by mid-year.

Congressional Democrats will meet Tuesday morning to organize for the session. They are said to be planning a massive effort to unite on the missiles issue and squelch differences on other problems such as racial integration.

But politics also will be the order of the day. This is reelection

Vinson Assails Plan To Change Army Command

By DAYTON MOORE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4 (UP)— The number one minilitary expert in the House said today he knows of "no better way to commit national suicide" than to replace the joint chiefs of staff with a general staff or supreme commander.

Rep. Carl Vinson (D-Ga.), chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, also said there has been no firm evidence that rivalry between the military services is responsible for this country's lag in development of ballistic missiles.

He said that rather than establishing greater unification among the armed services, the Army, Navy and Air Force should be given back "a large measure of the authority and control" they had before the unified Defense Department was set up in 1947.

Perhaps, he added, the secretaries of the three services should even be returned as members of the President's Cabinet. Only the defense secretary has represented the Pentagon as a member of the Cabinet since 1947.

The weatherman says that rain is on the way for the Twin Cities. Cloudy skies with prospects of rain later today is the unencouraging forecast.

The temperature crept up to a chilly 52 yesterday, the same as the high reading on Friday. Low was 31, up three degrees from the previous 28. The weather outlook in Arkansas today is for cloudy and warmer.

Estimate Of Highway Cost Up Sharply

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4 (AP)—Senators may learn next week that the estimated cost of completing the 41,000-mile interstate superhighway network has leaped 10 billion dollars since the 1956 highway act was passed.

Secretary of Commerce Weeks and Federal Highway Administrator Bertram D. Tallamy are to brief the Senate Public Roads subcommittee Wednesday on progress on the superhighway system as well as other road programs.

Sen. Gore (D-Tenn), the subcommittee chairman, has asked Weeks to produce at the hearing the Bureau of Public Roads report on new cost estimates.

Figures Revised

When the law was passed the 41,000 miles of construction was expected to cost $27,500,000,000, but one Senate expert said today it might run between 35 and 40 billion dollars. He said states have revised their estimates upwards by 100 per cent. The federal government pays 90 per cent of the cost.

This source blamed much of the increase on a steady rise in construction costs. But another factor

Experiment Costs Two Boys Fingers

ARLINGTON, Va., Jan. 4 (AP)—A chemical experiment which firemen said might have involved rocket fuels caused two 16-year-old boys to be seriously injured today in an explosion.

Those hurt were Jack N. Donohew Jr., son of Brig. Gen. Jack N. Donohew, attached to the Air Force's plans and program staff at the Pentagon; and Douglas Kielkopf.

Arlington Fire Inspector Quentin Wahl said he was told the boys were experimenting with rocket fuel for a science fair at a high school where they are both juniors.

Doctors said young Donohew had several fingers blown off and might lose the rest. Kielkopf had one finger blown off and received a neck cut.

Heavy Missile Schedule Ahead

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4 (AP) — Space traffic out of the Cape Canaveral, Fla., Missiles Test Center may become heavy with vanguard rockets by the end of March.

This prospect was raised in a statement today by Dr. John P. Hagen, director of the U.S. scientific satellite project Vanguard, who said the launching of a 21½-pound baby moon is still planned for March.

A spokesman at Vanguard headquarters here said about four preliminary test firings of the three-stage rocket are scheduled before the major launching in March.

Present indications are that it will be the end of the second week in January at least before Vanguard scientists try again to launch a complete test rocket carrying a 3¼-pound sphere in its nose. They have been getting ready for a second attempt since their first rocket blew up Dec. 6.

Every Two Weeks

By a simple calendar count they will have to shoot rockets every couple of weeks or so to meet the March target. Afterward the Vanguard project calls for a half-dozen full-fledged satellite launchings under the Internation-

Group To Demand Candidates' Stand

By D. HAROLD OLIVER

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4 (AP) — A predominantly Protestant organization today called on potential Catholic candidates for President or vice president to take a definite stand for or against what it called:

1. A Catholic church "boycott" of public schools.

2. A Catholic proposal advocating public funds for sectarian schools.

3. Appointment of an American ambassador to the Vatican. ...

"To challenge every Catholic candidate on these issues is a wise and necessary precaution designed to protect our American traditions," said a statement by a group known as Protestants and other Americans United for Separation of Church and State (POAU).

Describing itself as nonpolitical and as having some Jewish and a few "liberal Catholic" members, the POAU deplored the formation of any Catholic or anti-Catholic political party and said it opposed any "blanket boycott of the candidates of any particular denomination."

"Most citizens," it said, "are born into their religious affiliations, and no one should be penalized for an accident of birth. Millions of Catholic Americans are

Mighty Atlas Fired On Ground In Launch Test

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla., Jan. 4 (UP)—A mighty Atlas, biggest of this country's missile weapons, was test fired on the ground tonight in preparation to launching soon.

The big intercontinental missile was held to its launching pad by mechanical devices while its engines were run up for about 15 seconds.

Crews worked long hours in stiff, chill winds that still lashed the Cape in the wake of the northeaster that battered the Florida coast Friday.

The missile's service tower was rolled back at mid-afternoon and the test took place at about 6:15 p.m. EST after the missile had been filled with liquid oxygen on which its engines operate.

Macmillan Proposes Non-Aggression Pact Between East, West

Would Be Prelude To New Parley

LONDON, Jan. 4 (AP) — Prime Minister Macmillan proposed tonight an East-West nonaggression pact and perhaps a summit meeting later. Both have been urged repeatedly by the Soviet Union.

Patrick Ryan, 65, of Shreveport, walked up to a Monroe policeman and insisted that he be arrested. Officer D. L. Barnes accommodated him and locked Ryan up on a drunkness charge.

In court Judge W. M. Harper questioned the prisoner and told him that in view of the circumstances "I'm going to let you sentence yourself — what'll it be?"

Vinson Assails Plan To Change Army Command

By DAYTON MOORE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4 (UP)—The number one minlitary expert in the House said today he knows of "no better way to commit national suicide" than to replace the joint chiefs of staff with a general staff or supreme commander.

Rep. Carl Vinson (D-Ga.), chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, also said there has been no firm evidence that rivalry between the military services is responsible for this country's lag in development of ballistic missiles.

He said that rather than establishing greater unification among the armed services, the Army, Navy and Air Force should be given back "a large measure of the authority and control" they had before the unified Defense Department was set up in 1947.

Perhaps, he added, the secretaries of the three services should even be returned as members of the President's Cabinet. Only the defense secretary has represented the Pentagon as a member of the Cabinet since 1947.

Estimate Of Highway Cost Up Sharply

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4 (AP)—Senators may learn next week that the estimated cost of completing the 41,000-mile interstate superhighway network has leaped 10 billion dollars since the 1956 highway act was passed.

Secretary of Commerce Weeks and Federal Highway Administrator Bertram D. Tallamy are to brief the Senate Public Roads subcommittee Wednesday on progress on the superhighway system as well as other road programs.

Sen. Gore (D-Tenn), the subcommittee chairman, has asked Weeks to produce at the hearing the Bureau of Public Roads report on new cost estimates.

Figures Revised

When the law was passed the 41,000 miles of construction was expected to cost $27,500,000,000, but one Senate expert said today it might run between 35 and 40 billion dollars. He said states have revised their estimates upwards by 100 per cent. The federal government pays 90 per cent of the cost.

AT CANAVERAL

Heavy Missile Schedule Ahead

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4 (AP) — Space traffic out of the Cape Canaveral, Fla., Missiles Test Center may become heavy with vanguard rockets by the end of March.

This prospect was raised in a statement today by Dr. John P. Hagen, director of the U.S. scientific satellite project Vanguard, who said the launching of a 21½-pound baby moon is still planned for March.

A spokesman at Vanguard headquarters here said about four preliminary test firings of the three-stage rocket are scheduled before the major launching in March.

Present indications are that it will be the end of the second week in January at least before Vanguard scientists try again to launch a complete test rocket carrying a 3¼-pound sphere in its nose. They have been getting ready for a second attempt since their first rocket blew up Dec. 6.

Every Two Weeks

By a simple calendar count they will have to shoot rockets every couple of weeks or so to meet the March target. Afterward the Vanguard project calls for a half-dozen full-fledged satellite launchings under the Internation-

Achievement

It is of interest to know that Sir Edmund Hillary, conqueror of Mount Everest, has the past week reached the South Pole, arriving with his party of four in tractors. It is reported that their gas supply was down to where only enough for 20 miles more remained. It was a fine achievement.

Other men have reached the South Pole and among them is cited the late Capt. Robert Scott, who in January, 1912, succeeded to reach the Pole. The Scott achievement had not

Mighty Atlas Fired On Ground In Launch Test

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla., Jan. 4 (UP)—A mighty Atlas, biggest of this country's missile weapons, was test fired on the ground tonight in preparation to launching soon.

The big intercontinental missile was held to its launching pad by mechanical devices while its engines were run up for about 15 seconds.

Crews worked long hours in stiff, chill winds that still lashed the Cape in the wake of the northeaster that battered the Florida coast Friday.

The missile's service tower was rolled back at mid-afternoon and the test took place at about 6:15 p.m. EST after the missile had been filled with liquid oxygen on which its engines operate.

ARRIVES IN LONDON

Pilot Is Treated Well By Albanians

LONDON, Jan. 4 (UP)— The pilot of a British freighter plane released by Albania today said the Albanians treated him and his fellow crew-members "like royalty" after they were convinced he had violated Albanian airspace in a "genuine mistake."

Pilot Marian Kozubski flew his DC-7 Skymaster home to Britain today. He said he strayed over Communist territory Tuesday during bad weather and that two Russian-built MIG jet fighters fired machineguns ahead of his plane to force it down.

However, he said Albanian officials accepted his explanation.

Kozubski Reports

Kozubski reported the details of the incident in a telephone call to his firm, Independent Air Travel Ltd., during a brief stopover at Brindisi, Italy, on the flight to Hurn, an airfield 110 miles southwest of London.

The American-built DC-7 Skymaster flew to Brindisi from the Albanian military field at Berat where the plane was forced to land.

"The first I realized that we were off course was when two MIG fighters came out of a cloud toward us and took positions on either side of the Skymaster," he reported to his home officials.

"Both the MIGs began firing straight ahead of us. I must in

15 New Orleans Boys Fire Rocket

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 4 (AP) — Fifteen New Orleans boys reported they fired a single stage rocket 11,500 feet into the air today from a launching site near Gainesville, Miss.

The boys, members of the Metairie Amateur Rocket Society, said their rocket set an amateur altitude record for the South. The old record, they said, was 4,000 feet.

The boys said they launched their rocket from a pit near the town of Gainesville, Miss. They said the rocket was 2½-feet tall, traveled 550 miles an hour and stayed in the air 26 seconds.

Rainfall Is Expected In Twin Cities Area

The weatherman says that rain is on the way for the Twin Cities. Cloudy skies with prospects of rain later today is the unencouraging forecast.

The temperature crept up to a chilly 52 yesterday, the same as the high reading on Friday. Low was 31, up three degrees from the previous 28. The weather outlook in Arkansas today is for cloudy and warmer.

Experiment Costs Two Boys Fingers

ARLINGTON, Va., Jan. 4 (AP)—A chemical experiment which firemen said might have involved rocket fuels caused two 16-year-old boys to be seriously injured today in an explosion.

Those hurt were Jack N. Donohew Jr., son of Brig. Gen. Jack N. Donohew, attached to the Air Force's plans and program staff at the Pentagon; and Douglas Kielkopf.

Arlington Fire Inspector Quentin Wahl said he was told the boys were experimenting with rocket fuel for a science fair at a high school where they are both juniors.

Doctors said young Donohew had several fingers blown off and might lose the rest. Kielkopf had one finger blown off and received a neck cut.

ON CHURCH AND STATE

Group To Demand Candidates' Stand

By D. HAROLD OLIVER

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4 (AP) — A predominantly Protestant organization today called on potential Catholic candidates for President or vice president to take a definite stand for or against what it called:

1. A Catholic church "boycott" of public schools.

2. A Catholic proposal advocating public funds for sectarian schools.

3. Appointment of an American ambassador to the Vatican. ...

"To challenge every Catholic candidate on these issues is a wise and necessary precaution designed to protect our American traditions," said a statement by a group known as Protestants and other Americans United for Separation of Church and State (POAU).

Describing itself as nonpolitical and as having some Jewish and a few "liberal Catholic" members, the POAU deplored the formation of any Catholic or anti-Catholic political party and said it opposed any "blanket boycott of the candidates of any particular denomination."

"Most citizens," it said, "are born into their religious affiliations, and no one should be penalized for an accident of birth. Millions of Catholic Americans are in complete agreement of matters of church-state separation with their fellow citizens of other faiths.

"We believe, however, that the religion of a candidate for President or vice president of the U. S. should not be used as a shield to conceal his opinions on matters of church-state policy."

It said candidates of all faiths should be challenged to answer all pertinent questions involving church - state policy, but that Catholic candidates should be scrutinized with particular care. This was necessary, the statement said, because the Catholic Church "has taken a definite stand against the Supreme Court's interpretation of the separation of church and state, and particularly against the denial of public money to sectarian schools." Catholic leaders, it added, also have favored naming an ambassador to the Vatican.

Officials of the National Catholic Welfare Conference were not immediately available for comment on the statement. Nor were Catholics who have been mentioned for the presidency in 1960. POAU officials, asked whom their challenge could apply to besides Sen. Kennedy (D - Mass), mentioned Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther, retired, president of the American Red Cross and former Supreme Allied Commander in Europe.

Sen. Kennedy was out of the city, but friends said they doubted he would comment because he contends he is not a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination. They added Kennedy has always favored separation of church and state and advocated federal aid for school construction limited to public schools.

Gen. Gruenther, who has been mentioned among potential candidates for the Republican presidential nomination, was a guest of President Eisenhower this weekend at the Eisenhower farm near Gettysburg, Pa. In a television interview last May, Gruenther called speculation on his possible nomination "fantastic." He said he was not in the political arena.

The POAU statement was part of "a 10-year balance sheet" since its 1947 manifesto calling on the American people to preserve separation of the church and state.

The summary reviewed what it called the "credit" and "debit" side of the struggle. It praised the Supreme Court and Congress for "defeating every move toward new or general appropriations for sectarian institutions," and added:

"This organization is now cooperating with local taxpayers in the preparation of prosecution of 10 court proceedings designed to protect the taxpayers against the unconstitutional use of public funds for sectarian purposes in Kentucky, Maine, Vermont, Connecticut, New York, Louisiana, Indiana, New Mexico, Oregon and Alaska.

The statement, discussing "debits," said the Roman Catholic hierarchy is "winning considerable support for a new plan advanced by Cardinal McIntyre of Los Angeles and Father Virgil Blum to finance its parochial schools out of the federal treasury through grants to parents in a pattern paralleling the G.I. education al bills."

Under another "debit" heading, the statement said the Constitution is being violated by Protestants in many parts of the South by "illegally operating sectarian religious classes in public class rooms."

"We believe," the statement added, "that we cannot consistently oppose Catholic intrusions into public schools unless we are equally scrupulous in opposing Protestant encroachments."

In the questions addressed to Catholic candidates, the statement said Canon 1374 of the Catholic Church "directs all American Catholic parents to boycott our public schools unless they receive special permission from their bishops."

The statement also said bishops of the Catholic church, in a November, 1948, statement "denounced the Supreme Court's interpretation of the religion clause of the First Amendment and have urged that the Constitution actually permits the distribution of public money on an equitable basis to sectarian schools and other sectarian institutions."

Signing the statement were these POAU officers: Honorary President Charles Clayton Morrison, former editor of the Christian Century; President Louie D. Newton, former president of the Southern Baptist Convention; vice Presidents G. Bromley Oxnam, bishop of the Methodist Church, and John A. Mackay, president of Princeton Theological Seminary; and Executive Director Glenn L. Archer, former dean of Washburn University Law School, Topeka, Kans.

year for all House members and one-third of the Senate, so legislative ears will be attuned to the grassroots.

Mr. Eisenhower will spell out his legislative plans in his State of the Union message Thursday, his budget message Jan. 13, and a series afterward dealing with the economic picture, the farm price situation, etc.

Congress' first order of business, however, will be finding an answer to Russia's supremacy in the missile and satellite fields. It has changed its tune since last year when it goaded the administration to cut expenses in the name of economy. Now it appears ready to vote billions to pass Moscow in the space-rocket race.

For hopeful taxpayers this means no tax cuts unless big incisions are made in farm subsidies, veterans benefits, and rivers, harbors and reclamation projects.

Legislators shudder at this prospect in an election year. Mr. Eisenhower also is reported to have backed away from such a plan after proposing it. He has decided to lay before Congress a 74 billion dollar fiscal 1959 budget, including 40 billions for defense, with a stern injunction against tax reduction.

Congress probably will give him all or more than he wants for missiles and space satellites. The leadership and rank-and-file alike are alarmed by the administration's failure to win first place in the push-buttons weapons race.

The administration already has announced it wants two billions more than this year for missiles, to build up the Strategic Air Command; for anti - missile experiments; anti- submarine defenses, and higher pay for military specialists.

The President also will ask for 200 million dollars a year for four years for scholarships and other incentives to encourage science education. Russia has gone "all out" in this field.

other departments. . . .now almost one-half billion dollars a year of state taxes is needed to support the entire budget."

With the leveling off of personel income, the legislator said, "and prospects of an increase from any present tax sources very doubtful, we must begin putting first things first."

"I believe that all legislators now realize the people they represent do not want any more taxes," Kirkpatrick emphasized.

While it is the administration's responsibility to prepare and present a balanced budget, he continued, "it is the duty of each legislator to do his part in a constructive way. In brief we have overspent during the past two years and with the leveling off of the general economy, the people of Louisiana will want us to examine each tax dollar and be sure it is wisely spent. If this is done, I am confident we can live within our present income.

His reference to overspending during "the last two years" includes not only the first year of the Long administration, but the last year of the Kennon administration and the heavy spending 1955 fiscal Legislature also.

Kirkpatrick cautioned that the general economy of the nation will "automatically effect the economy of Louisiana, although southern Louisiana, because of industry and expansion, may not be affected as much as other parts of the country.

"Two things are going to hurt Louisiana this year," he said. "Continued rains in northern Louisiana have badly hurt agriculture, and the tremendous increase in the cost of offshore oil drilling in the Gulf of Mexico has slowed our operations there.

"It may take a while for any recession to drift down to Louisiana, should one develop," Kirkpatrick said. "We are fast becoming an export state, we must remember, with petrochemicals, oil, gas, pulp, paper and sulphur. If the rest of the nation is faced with a recession or leveling off period it will naturally affect Louisiana.

Original figures were requested from the states in 1954. Some state officials say those estimates were not prepared with anything like the study that would have been devoted to them had it been known then they would get the basis for a 16-year roadbuilding program.

The new, cost estimates are particularly important because, starting with the 1960 fiscal year, the apportionments of funds to the states will be based on these cost figures.

The Epiphany, or Twelfth Night, time that elapsed since the observance of Christmas and Christ's birth to the last day of the festive season, is to be observed tomorrow, January 6 by a civic club in El Dorado, Ark., and an entire community affair is being prepared.

It will be held outdoors in a football athletic field. All attending are asked to arrange to have their Christmas trees of a few days ago brought there for a mammoth cremation before the eyes of the public.

There will be music selections and an imposing event is anticipated with churches of the city participating.

Pathetic

A pathetic little sight was noted the other day several miles from this city along the Mill Haven road. Off from the shoulder of this highway lay the blood - soaked, frightfully mutilated body of a little dog, evidently victim of some speeding car.

Not far off lay two little dogs who seemingly had come, actuated by sympathy at the tragedy.

Passing high speed traffic on the highway in no way disturbed the dogs as they tendered a seemingly offering of canine affection and sympathy. They are said to have remained many hours as they maintained this vigil.

It can not be said that animals like this have no sense of sympathy and emotion in a circumstance that may surround them!

Kozubski said Albanian troops immediately surrounded his plane and that an officer who spoke a little Italian ordered them out.

He said a senior police officer arrived later by helicopter from the Albanian capital of Tirana and examined their passports, baggage and the plane's cargo.

The pilot said he and his crew, including a womar stewardess, were taken to a nearby hotel. "We were given the best room and the best service and everything we wanted to get," he said.

Specifically, he said the United States should have had a satellite circling the earth by now and should now have intermediate ballistic missiles in the field in the hands of troops and ready for operations. He blamed money shortages for the failures

Deaf Man Perfects Cordless Hearing Aid

Worn Entirely on One Ear

PEORIA, ILL. (Special) — H. A. Lyons, who himself has been hard of hearing for over 25 years, today announced the perfection of a miniature electronic hearing aid that is so small it is all worn on one ear.

It weighs but a fraction of an ounce and can be slipped on and off easier than a pair of eye glasses. Wearer gets all-directional pick-up and normal use of telephone. There is no clothing interference because it is worn at the ear, which is the natural way to hear.

Since the aid is tiny and is worn tucked behind the ear, it is practically invisible. Mr. Lyons stated that, although it is powerful enough to fit the most severe hearing loss, it can also be adjusted for the millions of slightly hard of hearing who feel they are not deaf enough to bother with the more cumbersome aids.

It is suggested, if interested for yourself or a friend, to write to Tonemaster Manufacturing Company, 128 South Monroe Street, Dept. NSW., Peoria, Illinois, and he will be glad to send information at no cost or obligation to you.—Adv.

The administration already has announced it wants two billions more than this year for missiles, to build up the Strategic Air Command; for anti - missile experiments; anti- submarine defenses, and higher pay for military specialists.

The President also will ask for 200 million dollars a year for four years for scholarships and other incentives to encourage science education. Russia has gone "all out" in this field.

METAL DART TAKEN FROM BOY'S SKULL — At left is an x-ray picture showing a metal dart stuck in the skull of 12-year-old Richard McRanie of Albany, Ga., shortly before it was removed by doctors in Atlanta yesterday. The boy's father, G. C. McRanie (right), examines the dart after removal. Another boy threw the dart in play and it accidentally struck Richard on his right forehead. Three fourths of an inch of metal penetrated his skull. He was flown to Atlanta for operation. (AP Wirephoto.)

fairness say that the MIGs did not at any time fire at us or anywhere near us.

MIGs Give Chase

"I realized that I must be over Albania and immediately set a new course to reach the coast. But the MIG pilots would not have this. They quickly chased me and began flying on either side of the Skymaster.

"They then began to set a course and it was obvious to me that I had no alternative but to follow them. They guided me down through the clouds and began circling Berat airfield to show that it was here they wanted me to land."

Kozubski said Albanian troops immediately surrounded his plane and that an officer who spoke a little Italian ordered them out.

He said a senior police officer arrived later by helicopter from the Albanian capital of Tirana and examined their passports, baggage and the plane's cargo.

The pilot said he and his crew, including a womar stewardess, were taken to a nearby hotel. "We were given the best room and the best service and everything we wanted to get," he said.

go over there and tell the truth and I will back you up."

Outlines Position

The Army secretary said this was his position on Gavin's testimony to the Senate group.

Gavin is a top Army expert on the Jupiter intermediate range ballistic missile and the earth satellite program.

Gavin said, in an interview with the United Press, that once retired he would "feel a little freer to write and talk" about national defense.

He said he had "urged, recommended and begged" for his ideas for four years and at times felt he was "getting nowhere."

Specifically, he said the United States should have had a satellite circling the earth by now and should now have intermediate ballistic missiles in the field in the hands of troops and ready for operations. He blamed money shortages for the failures

Gavin has the repurtation of being one of the Army's most brilliant officers.

Passman "has reportedly contended that a substantial portion of the astronomical total of 67 billion dollars which this country has already given away through the foreign aid program, not merely promised, in 70 of the other 86 nations of the world, has fallen miserably short of accomplishing the purposes its proponents have claimed for it and has been largely wasted," the statement said.

other departments. . . .now almost one-half billion dollars a year of state taxes is needed to support the entire budget."

With the leveling off of personel income, the legislator said, "and prospects of an increase from any present tax sources very doubtful, we must begin putting first things first."

"I believe that all legislators now realize the people they represent do not want any more taxes," Kirkpatrick emphasized.

While it is the administration's responsibility to prepare and present a balanced budget, he continued, "it is the duty of each legislator to do his part in a constructive way. In brief we have overspent during the past two years and with the leveling off of the general economy, the people of Louisiana will want us to examine each tax dollar and be sure it is wisely spent. If this is done, I am confident we can live within our present income.

His reference to overspending during "the last two years" includes not only the first year of the Long administration, but the last year of the Kennon administration and the heavy spending 1955 fiscal Legislature also.

Kirkpatrick cautioned that the general economy of the nation will "automatically effect the economy of Louisiana, although southern Louisiana, because of industry and expansion, may not be affected as much as other parts of the country.

"Two things are going to hurt Louisiana this year," he said. "Continued rains in northern Louisiana have badly hurt agriculture, and the tremendous increase in the cost of offshore oil drilling in the Gulf of Mexico has slowed our operations there.

"It may take a while for any recession to drift down to Louisiana, should one develop," Kirkpatrick said. "We are fast becoming an export state, we must remember, with petrochemicals, oil, gas, pulp, paper and sulphur. If the rest of the nation is faced with a recession or leveling off period it will naturally affect Louisiana.

Original figures were requested from the states in 1954. Some state officials say those estimates were not prepared with anything like the study that would have been devoted to them had it been known then they would get the basis for a 16-year roadbuilding program.

The new, cost estimates are particularly important because, starting with the 1960 fiscal year, the apportionments of funds to the states will be based on these cost figures.

Epiphany

The Epiphany, or Twelfth Night, time that elapsed since the observance of Christmas and Christ's birth to the last day of the festive season, is to be observed tomorrow, January 6 by a civic club in El Dorado, Ark., and an entire community affair is being prepared.

It will be held outdoors in a football athletic field. All attending are asked to arrange to have their Christmas trees of a few days ago brought there for a mammoth cremation before the eyes of the public.

There will be music selections and an imposing event is anticipated with churches of the city participating.

Goodbye

The North Monroe Lions club will miss Al Kessler, who in his short residence here has made an army of friends in connection with his duties with the local telephone company. In the club named he served as "Tail Twister," and in other capacities.

He is accepting a promotion to a higher post year with with the Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph company. More success to him!

Pathetic

A pathetic little sight was noted the other day several miles from this city along the Mill Haven road. Off from the shoulder of this highway lay the blood - soaked, frightfully mutilated body of a little dog, evidently victim of some speeding car.

Not far off lay two little dogs who seemingly had come, actuated by sympathy at the tragedy.

Passing high speed traffic on the highway in no way disturbed the dogs as they tendered a seemingly offering of canine affection and sympathy. They are said to have remained many hours as they maintained this vigil.

It can not be said that animals like this have no sense of sympathy and emotion in a circumstance that may surround them!

Lake Providence Burn Victim Dies

A 68-year-old Lake Providence Negro died here yesterday after fighting severe burn injuries four days.

Will Coleman, 68, suffered deep burns about the head and arms late Monday, December 30, when an oil heating unit exploded in his home. The Negro's clothing caught fire as he ran from the flaming house.

Death came about 11 a.m. at a hospital here where he was under treatment. Authorities attributed the death to "severe burns and a heart condition."

"We cannot yet be sure of the truth. And it is a terrible responsibility for any government to have to choose to act upon this interpretation or that without being absolutely certain."

Under these circumstances, he said, the West has no choice but to maintain unity and strength while seeking to resolve differences with Russia by negotiation and conciliation.

"It is no good taking away one fear and creating another," he said. "We must carry with us the lessons of the past.

Deaf Man Perfects Cordless Hearing Aid

Worn Entirely on One Ear

PEORIA, ILL. (Special) — H. A. Lyons, who himself has been hard of hearing for over 25 years, today announced the perfection of a miniature electronic hearing aid that is so small it is all worn on one ear.

It weighs but a fraction of an ounce and can be slipped on and off easier than a pair of eye glasses. Wearer gets all-directional pick-up and normal use of telephone. There is no clothing interference because it is worn at the ear, which is the natural way to hear.

Since the aid is tiny and is worn tucked behind the ear, it is practically invisible. Mr. Lyons stated that, although it is powerful enough to fit the most severe hearing loss, it can also be adjusted for the millions of slightly hard of hearing who feel they are not deaf enough to bother with the more cumbersome aids.

It is suggested, if interested for yourself or a friend, to write to Tonemaster Manufacturing Company, 128 South Monroe Street, Dept. NSW., Peoria, Illinois, and he will be glad to send information at no cost or obligation to you.—Adv.

I wish to nominate an outstanding young man for the 1957 Monroe and West Monroe Junior Chamber of Commerce Service Award.

NAME .....

ADDRESS .....

This blank should be used by persons who wish to nominate a young man (21 to 35) for the annual Jaycee Service Award. The nominee does not have to be a Jaycee. On a separate sheet of paper please list your nominee's achievements. Bear in mind that judging will be on the following basis: Outstanding service in community and state welfare; civic betterment; evidence of leadership ability; success in personal vocation and cooperation with individuals and civic organizations. Deadline for entries is January 15, 1958.

Man Of Year To Be Chosen In Twin Cities

Deadline for nomination blanks to be sent in for the Outstanding Young Man of the Year contest is Wednesday, Jan. 15.

The Monroe and West Monroe chapters of the Junior Chamber of Commerce will again sponsor this contest as in years past. John Kelso will head a committee composed of Jaycees from both organizations.

Requirements for eligibility in this contest specify that the man must be over 21 and not more than 36 years of age, and does not have to be a Jaycee.

Points are given each entrant for achievements, leadership ability, service to the community and or state, personal character and success in business.

Five Judges

A five-man judging committee of local business, professional and civic leaders will make the final choice. Names of judges will remain secret until after the presentation banquet, set for later this month.

The presentation night will also be observed as "boss night," and the bosses of Jaycee members are invited to attend, Jaycee officials said.

Anyone who wants a nomination blank may obtain one by writing Kelso, P. O. Box 26, Monroe, or by calling FA 3-0505. Nominations may also be made by writing the name of the nominee and his qualifications and achievements on a slip of paper and sending it to P. O. Box 26. There is no word limit in writing these achievements, officials added.

Booster Singing Convention Sets Meet For Today

A number of leading song directors and special groups are expected from Crossett, Ark., Alexandria, Sicily Island, Ferriday, Bastrop and other points when the regular first Sunday afternoon Booster Singing Convention meets today.

Time for the meeting is 1:30 p.m., at Booster Hall on Ouachita Avenue.

A capacity attendance is anticipated for the 2½ - hour gathering, convention officials said. Election of officers for 1958 will be held during today's meet, it was added.

U. C. Cockrell, president of the group, invites all those interested in gospel song to attend. The 1958 song books will be used today for the first time.

Maid Of Cotton On First Leg Of Tour

MEMPHIS, Jan. 4 (AP) — Jean Carter, a Georgia peach with strawberry curls, flew out of here today on the first leg of an international tour she will make as the 1958 Maid of Cotton.

The Atlanta beauty with the big brown eyes was selected from a field of 20 finalists last night to represent the cotton industry as its fashion ambassador. On the 35,000-mile tour of this country, Europe and the Caribbean, Jean will model the latest in cotton finery created for her by New York designers.

Radiantly happy but weary after only three hours sleep—"I was too excited to sleep"—Jean was up at 7 a.m. to get started on her first busy day as the new maid She sipped coffee while chatting with newsmen, posed for pictures, then made hasty preparations for her afternoon flight to New York.

The maid's pretty mother, Mrs Belfield Carter, accompanied her here for the contest. Her father didn't come, Jean explained, "because I didn't expect to win." Carter, an Atlanta businessman, flew in this morning.

Maid Jean, 20, is a native of Chattanooga, Tenn., but moved to Atlanta five years ago.

She is a junior at Vanderbilt University, attending school on a scholarship named in honor of Margaret Mitchell, the late author of "Gone with the Wind." Vanderbilt students picked her as their homecoming queen and a cheerleader. Jean also played a dual role as a sponsor of the Georgia Tech football team.

The new maid will keep her cotton wardrobe and she will be given a snappy new convertible when she returns from the six-month tour.

Judges picked Alice Berry Condon of Memphis first alternate maid and Ruth Bennett of Hartsville, S. C., as second alternate.

The contest is sponsored annually by the cotton exchanges of New York, New Orleans, and Memphis, the National Cotton Council, and the Memphis Cotton Carnival Assn.

One Military Command

Strong bipartisan support for a single commander to head the nation's armed force is reported developing in congress.

Not only does this proposal seem a step in the right direction but congress might go even further and wipe out the many separations which make our armed force a collection of units trying to work separately, instead of as a single force.

At one time the division of armed forces was fairly simple. It consisted of land forces and sea forces, with the land forces called the army and the sea forces called the navy. At that time a war might be fought chiefly on land, with little involvement of the navy forces.

The development of aircraft, atom bombs, hydrogen bombs and intercontinental missiles has changed that situation completely. Any war now among major nations brings total involvement of all of the various elements of fighting strength. Except in the final cleanup stages, planes, bombs and missiles will largely supplant both land and sea forces in any future war between major nations. The destructive power in this field is so great and so swift that land and sea forces will necessarily be of secondary importance at the outbreak of any great conflict.

Under the present setup, we have an army, a navy and an air force. Both the army and the navy, however, have their own air support groups. Thus we have a separate air force and then lesser air forces, which are incorporated in the army and the navy. We have a marine corps which operates both at sea and on land.

All our operations, in time of war, are so interwoven and intertwined that any attempt to operate them as separate units can only result in confusion.

An example of the confusion that can be caused by attempting to let each branch of the armed services operate independently was found in the squabble between the army and navy over which was to be the first to launch an earth satellite. Because of this wrangle neither was allowed to go ahead with launching efforts. Apparently neither was ready for such a launching but undoubtedly either could have been ready within a short time if it had been given a go-ahead signal.

In the minds of most non-military people, the United States "army" means all of our defense force including the navy, marines, air force and other smaller divisions.

There is increasing evidence that this is the way it should be. Every indication is that there should be one consolidated defense force, to be called the "army" or whatever other name seems appropriate.

Our Fathers' Faith

In these days of uncertainty, doubt, frustration and even fear, we would do well to repeat to ourselves the first line of a great old hymn which reads, "Faith of our fathers, living still." Must we now place a question mark at the end of this line? The probable answer is that we must, because if we had the faith of our fathers, if it were living still, we would not be undergoing the worry that seems to be a normal part of our lives these days.

For this attitude on our part, which seems to permeate us from the highest to the lowest, we should be ashamed. Doubting and fearful, we are not worthy the heritage left us. In the early days of our nation, there was plenty of cause for doubt and worry and fear, but our fathers were sustained by a clear and ever-persent faith that their cause was right and that they must therefore win out in the end. They supported this faith by their works, and their cause did prevail.

Now that we have become rich, now that we have become the most powerful nation in the world, have we lost this faith, have we become soft, are we apathetic and have we lost our courage? We had better stop and ask ourselves these questions, because history tells us that it has been the traditional cycle of great nations to go from bondage to faith, from faith to courage, from courage to freedom, from freedom to abundance, from abundance to apathy, and from apathy back to bondage again.

Are we to go like other great nations before us, are we to reach the peak only to decline into oblivion on the other side?

As we now look ahead into 1958 and the other years to follow, the greatest need of this nation is to recapture the spirit that surrounded its founding. By doing so, fear would be replaced by courage, doubt by faith, and uncertainty by clear vision. We would then know that the "faith of our fathers" is "living still," and we would face the future unafraid.

There is a further line in this great old hymn that reads, "Faith of our Fathers, Holy Faith." That is another realization we must recapture, for the faith of our fathers was a "holy faith." This nation may not have been founded by Divine Guidance, as some would almost have us believe, but it was certainly founded on the fundamental Christian principle of individual freedom, the right of the individual to carve out his own destiny and choose his own future.

If, by maintaining this faith ourselves, we could impart it to other peoples and other nations, it would do them more good than all the foreign aid we could possibly send them in a material way. The very secret of our success as a nation, if it can be called a secret, is this principle of individual freedom which is the basis of our traditional American free enterprise system.

American free enterprise, it would seem to us, is actually American Faith in action. It has produced for the American people the greatest productive capacity and the highest standard of living the world has ever known. Is it not strange that we should now have our doubts about this system, that we should become fearful, that we should be tempted sometimes to throw overboard this proven system for a "Government'll-take-care-of-you" system, a "something for nothing" system, a "planned economy" system that has never yet worked in the history of the world and can only bring degradation and ruin to all who try it? Yet, as we all know, we have been tempted, we are being tempted, and we shall perhaps always be tempted.

It is completely disgusting to hear it said, as we sometimes do, that the American way of life is on trial at the present time. Of course, we may suppose in one sense of the word that everything in this world is on trial—even Christianity is on trial—but if the American way of life is on trial we ought to be pretty well satisfied with the results. Our system may not be perfect but it has brought the greatest good to the most people of any system yet devised by man. Must we destroy it by doubt from within? That is the only way it can be destroyed — by losing the "faith of our fathers."

President Eisenhower Is Planning Tougher Policy

President Eisenhower, who has frequently been accused of failing to be a "leader," even by some members of his own Republican party, has decided to get tough during 1958, his sixth year in the White House.

He has confided his decision to his closest advisors, some of whom had urged him to take such a course a long time ago.

He plans to display some of his "Dutch temper" to both Congress and the public during the coming year in a move to answer his Democratic critics who have charged him with being only a "part - time" President and failing to take the necessary initiative to keep the United States ahead of Russia in the military field.

The President plans, his advisors report, to tell the Democratic controlled Congress in no uncertain terms what he wants particularly in the way of defense appropriations and funds for foreign aid. He may get just as tough in some other speeches and statements.

To those who have been closely associated with the President, during his tenure in the White House, and before that in the Army, it is no secret that he can explode like a bomb.

But intimates of the President, who have been subjected to his sudden explosive ire, which has rarely been exposed to the American public, say that he quickly brings it under control. He has the ability to "wind it back down" they report.

The President is said to feel that his "persuasive" approach to Congress in the past has led to much of the criticism of his leadership. He believes that he should have told Congress, rather than asked it, to grant him certain authority and funds which he has been refused is the past.

He has also confided to intimates that he feels such action on his part is now necessary because of the critical situation both abroad and at home, which, in his oponion, should eliminate partisan politics from the possible solution of these problems.

Whether a "mad" Eisenhower instead of a "persuasive" one can succeed in getting most of what he wants from Congresn during the coming session however, is a question that no one can answer at this point.

Democratic leaders in Congress have made it clear that they are ready to blame the President, rather than the Republican Administration, for what they claim are past mistakes. This is a new approach on their part, for in the past they have been extremely careful to complain about actions of various Cabinet officers and others in the Eisenhower administration, rather than the President himself.

This latter strategy was dictated previously on the theory that President Eisenhower was far more popular than his party, or any one else in it. Results in the 1956 election gave credence to this belief, when the President won re-election easily, but the Democrats won control of both the Senate and House of Representatives.

Now looking toward the coming November Congressional elections, Democratic party leaders believe that Eisenhower's personal popularity has fallen and that he, as well as the Republican party, can be attacked.

The President apparently recognizes this change in the political atmosphere in reaching his decision to get tough. He cannot run for re-election under the change in the constitution. But, in his considered opinion, he might be able o restore some of his own popularity through his change in attitude.

Moreover, he feels that if he does accomplish this, GOP party candidates in November could benefit.

In any event, the coming bout between the President and Congress seems likely to be one of the most interesting and lively since the one between former President Harry S. Truman and the Republican controlled 80th Congress.

Ike Counts More On Brother And Adams

WHOSE CLOSE TO PRESIDENT? — Biggest turn-over of the year for the President has been in his unofficial family. At the beginning of last year ten men were generally believed to really count with the President in his decision making. They were: Vice President Nixon, Secretary of the Treasury George M. Humphrey, Secretary of State Dulles, Secretary of Agriculture Benson, Presidential Assistant Sherman Adams Milton Eisenhower; his three old Army stand-bys Generals Alfred Gruenther, Lucius Clay and Walter Bedell Smith; and John J. McCoy, a New York banker. No new names have been added to the list. Some remain and have added influence, some remain with diminished influence and some have been deleted. Dr. Milton Eisenhower, brother, and Sherman Adams are stronger than ever. Humphrey is out of the Treasury portfolio but perhaps more influential still than any member of the Cabinet. Gruenther is still strong. Nixon and Dulles' places are not easy to assay. Sometimes they seem close and sometimes far away. Benson, Smith, Clay, and McCloy seem to be in the picture but dimly. Prediction is that advice will be sought in a broad range of fields.

NO OFFICIAL HOME FOR V. P.—President Eisenhower is to again appeal to Congressional leaders for a home for the Vice President. Congress will not pass the legislation as long as Vice President Nixon is in office and probably not at all in the foreseeable future. In justice to Nixon, however, it must be said that he has not asked it and has a home of his own which he considers admirable for the purpose Most members of Congress think that if the Vice President — any Vice President — was given an official residence and a staff of government domestic servants he would in time build up to where he had an establishment comparable to the White House itself.

BY APPOINTMENT ONLY — Reluctance of elected Senators, Governors and members of House of Representatives to lift their voices for the Administration is sharply pointed up by the list of Speakers at 37 G.O.P. January 20 fund raising dinners. Speakers list is headed by President Eisenhower at Chicago and Vice President Nixon at New York. No other elected officials will speak. Secretary of Treasury Anderson, former Texas Democrat now turned Republican, will speak in Boston and five other Cabinet members will be heard. From then on the list run downs sharply through the sub-cabinet to Administrative Assistants at White House and the woman United States Treasurer. Prediction is that heat will be turned on Republican senators and other elected officials to have them address some dinners.

LONG, LONG TRAIL—Look for President Eisenhower's $1.6 billion four-year school program to have toughest of sledding in Congress. Initial reaction on Capitol Hill is that it is a jumped - up plan which has not been thought through by Administration. Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare Folsom will attempt to carry the ball before Congressional Committees as Commissioner of Education L. G. Derthick is virtually an unknown to most lawmakers and carries little weight Prediction is that Foisom will not fare much better and that Democrats will call the tune on whatever bill is enacted.

THE FARM PROBLEM, NOW AND FOREVER — Discount reports that there will be any far-reaching farm legislation at this session of Congress despite hints that President Eisenhower considers the problem of agricultural surpluses so serious that he will go before a joint session of Congress and appeal for major changes in the price support program. Solution of the basic farm problem is little closer than it appeared when westerners offered the McNary - Haugen plan back in the Coolidge Administration. Returning western Republican Senators and Representatives are saying that for political purposes the one line signature of Secretary of Agriculture Benson on a resignation would be worth more than the most comprehensive sort of an enacted farm bill.

YOU MAKE A GUESS — Guessers on the size of the Budget when it takes its eventual shape in early summer have quit guessing and predicters no longer predict. A month ago feeling was that the budget paring mood which predominated last session of Congress had been sunk without a trace. That no longer seems true. Statement of Senator Chavez, Democrat, New Mexico, that $40 billion military budget is too much was a surprise. But Senator Hayden of Arizona, chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee, thinks that amount modest. Biggest of Budget fights of course will be over foreign aid. You can depend upon this prediction: Budget which President Eisenhower sends to Congress in January and the one which emerges after a Congress has finished mauling it in July will be only remotely kin, but at all events the largest in peace-time history.

Famous Fables

BACKGROUND: As a young man, magazine editor Frank Crowninshield decided to make his mark in the publishing field in New York. Young Crowninshield, a descendant of a distinguished New England family, came down from Boston with impressive letters of introduction, which he presented to the editor of a well-known publishing firm.

The letters left no doubt that the youthful job applicant was of aristocratic lineage, through whose veins flowed only the purest of blue blood. The editor waded through this maze of pedigree, then listened as Crowninshield supplied additional information about his background.

"Young man," he finally interrupted, "I am sure you would be invaluable for breeding purposes. But we are interested only in publishing."

ADMIRATION: Scientists Marie and Pierre Curie devoted their lives to their work, with no concern for financial reward. Even the thought of personal wealth was abhorrent to them.

One night at a banquet, Marie observed that her husband was staring intently at the attractive lady seated opposite, who was wearing a fabulous diamond necklace. When the banquet was over, she said to him with some disapproval:

"Why were you staring so? Since when have you developed an interest in diamonds?"

Pierre was hurt.

"How could you think such a thing?" he protested. "I wasn't admiring her diamonds. I was admiring her beauty."

Sins Of Omission Often To Blame

Donna says her serious problem is her father. But her mother is just as responsible, for a wife's sins of omission can drive a good husband almost beserk. Study this case most carefully for you wives owe it to your children to maintain a happy home. It takes plain medical facts and a more aggressive technique to safeguard your marital happiness. Order the booklet below.

"Dr. Crane, I have a problem and it is most serious," she began.

"It's my father. He acts as if he has no use for my mother. And he humiliates us so we are ashamed to be seen in public.

"For he runs around with other women! And that's not a false rumor. For I have actually seen him.

"And when I had my Tri-Hi-Y Club at our house the last time, he tried to put his arm around some of the girls and kiss them.

"It's disgusting, and I don't know what to do about it. Is he losing his mind?"

Ponce De Leon Complex

Donna's father is so panicky that he has lost perspective.

And this male panic often strikes men past the age of 40 who become alarmed at the fact they are becoming platonic mates.

It isn't Donna who should be so concerned with this problem as her mother, for a wife can remedy the situation rather quickly.

Not only do wives often go into a neurotic state after the age of 40 when they grow afraid their physical charm will wane at the menopause, but husbands likewise are driven almost berserk by dread that their masculine vigor is a thing of the past.

Such men may then try to date other women, hoping that the novelty and illicitness of such affairs will be a tonic to their wounded sex ego and thus resurrect some of the ardor they used to feel maybe 25 years earlier.

We say such panicky males are showing the "Ponce de Leon" complex. They are frantically seeking a return to their youthful erotic ability.

Wifely Sins of Omission

Donna's mother is obviously guilty of a major sin of omission in her marital behavior or she would never have permitted her husband to get into this terrified state.

Impotence is largely a thing of the mind. As such, it can attack males of any age as soon as they grow fearful of their erotic vigor.

As soon as they become victims of a sexual inferiority complex, then they may sprout all the symptoms of the middle aged husband, even though they may be only 25 instead of 50.

Some of these symptoms involve heavy drinking of whiskey, as well as gambling, reckless driving and a tendency to stay out late every night.

For such a husband usually wants to hide his defect from his wife. If he comes home drunk, he figures this fact will divert her attention so she will not wonder why he makes no attempt to kiss her or show amative interest.

But other victims will grow caustic and criticize the wife for every minor flaw. They may also project their sarcastic remarks upon their innocent children.

Advice to Wives

If the wife is unaware of the cause of such behavior and continues as a relatively frigid or uncooperative mate, then such a panicky husband may decide:

"Maybe it's my wife's fault. Perhaps a more cooperative partner would make my pulse pound again and restore my former ardor."

When a husband reaches this dangerous frame of mind, he may then try to date other and usually younger females.

He may even try to "paw" the girl friends of his own daughter, as Donna describes, for he is almost berserk and hence lacks normal perspective.

The cure for such a man depends chiefly on his wife's becoming more aggressive in their marital relations so she will restore his wounded sex ego.

So send for my booklet "How to Prevent Impotence," enclosing a stamped return envelope, plus 20 cents (non-profit).

You wives owe it to your children to maintain a happy home, so stop your sins of omission.

Carcinoid Tumor Called Unusual

Many years ago a patient with an unusual disease was brought before England's Royal Society of Medicine. This man's odd assortment of symptoms consisted of severe hot flushes, pain in the chest, shortness of breath, and watery diarrhea. The skin of the trunk was violet in color and he had leakage of the heart and enlarged liver. Flushing was exaggerated during emotional stress and while eating. This patient had a carcinoid tumor (not to be confused with carcinoma) of the intestine.

These tumors are tiny at first and take years to grow. One in 10 becomes malignant and the cells spread to various parts of the body where they cause different symptoms. The unique feature of the growth centers about sero'on-in, a secretion it gives off. This substance is a powerful dilator of the surface blood vessels, which causes the flushing phenomenon.

The physician is able to make the diagnosis when large amounts of this chemical are found in the blood stream. Serotonin, and not the tumor, causes diarrhea and abdominal pain; it stimulates the muscles of the intestine and leads to bowel overactivity (diarrhea). It also increases metabolism leading to loss of weight, muscle wasting, and weakness.

Signs of heart disease with leakage of the valves also develop, as well as shortness of breath, dropsy, and asthma. But it is the series of flushes that suggest a carcinoid tumor to the physician. Redness usually starts in the face and may extend to the chest, arms, and legs. It lasts seven to eight minutes and tends to recur many times a day. Flushing is precipitated by emotional stress, eating, smoking, and drinking cocktails.

Many patients develop a persistent reddish purple discoloration of the face. As time passes, it becomes darker and tiny enlarged veins are seen over the nose.

In recent years, serotonin has been isolated, and when injected into another person, causes pain in the veins, abdominal and bladder cramps, shortness of breath, and tingling and burning of the face. These tumors always are removed when discovered, because they are potentially malignant. Carcinoid is beyond cure after symptoms appear, but growth is so slow the individual may live a normal life span, dying eventually of something else.

Colds and Bronchitis

B. Y. writes: How can the system be built up so that every cold won't turn into bronchitis?

Reply

Important factors are adequate rest and nutrition, cleanliness, moderate exercise, and the avoidance of excesses. Spare the bronchial membranes irritation from tobacco, dust, and strong fumes. Reduce the chances of infection by minimizing exposure to crowds and to persons with a cold.

Whiplash Injury

R. T. writes: In what way does a whiplash injury affect the neck and spine?

Reply

The damage varies from strain on the joint capsule to dislocation of vertebrae. The muscles or nerves in the area may be injured. The term whiplash injury refers to how the accident occurred but tells nothing about the nature or extent of the injury.

Ear Pulling

A. P. writes: Won't pulling a child's ears as a form of punishment cause deafness?

Reply

No, but ear pulling is painful and if done often, could lead to a deformity of the ears. The hearing parts are in the skull where they are safe from cruel adults.

Today's Health Hint —

Good nutrition and health are inseparable.

GOOD TURN

WALLINGFORD, Conn. —(UP) — Edward C. Cittnick made a wrong turn which turned out right. While making deliveries for a drugstore he wound up on the wrong street in time to rescue two - year - old Patricia Bunnell from a water-filled excavation.

ONCE A YEAR

PORTLAND, Me. — (UP) — Portland Lightship just completed her annual voyage — the only one she makes — sailing from her station 12 miles off the harbor to Boston for annual overhaul.

The Time To Pray

The time to pray is every day . . . Each morning, noon and night . . . Not just while it is Sunday or . . . When things are not all right . . . Not just when there is tragedy . . . Or any sudden fear . . . Nor to be grateful for the start . . . Or end of any year . . . The time to pray is always, as . . . We work and play and rest . . . Alone or with our family . . . Or with a special guest . . . Along the street or in the park . . . On foot or in a car . . . Or traveling by train or plane . . . To places near or far . . . But prayers need not be spoken words . . . To keep us in God's care . . . For if we do His holy will . . . Our life becomes a prayer.

Statement of Senator Chavez, Democrat, New Mexico, that $40 billion military budget is too much was a surprise. But Senator Hayden of Arizona, chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee, thinks that amount modest. Biggest of Budget fights of course will be over foreign aid. You can depend upon this prediction: Budget which President Eisenhower sends to Congress in January and the one which emerges after a Congress has finished mauling it in July will be only remotely kin, but at all events the largest in peace-time history.

EDWARD JAMIESON

President Eisenhower Is Planning Tougher Policy

President Eisenhower, who has frequently been accused of failing to be a "leader," even by some members of his own Republican party, has decided to get tough during 1958, his sixth year in the White House.

He has confided his decision to his closest advisors, some of whom had urged him to take such a course a long time ago.

He plans to display some of his "Dutch temper" to both Congress and the public during the coming year in a move to answer his Democratic critics who have charged him with being only a "part - time" President and failing to take the necessary initiative to keep the United States ahead of Russia in the military field.

The President plans, his advisors report, to tell the Democratic controlled Congress in no uncertain terms what he wants particularly in the way of defense appropriations and funds for foreign aid. He may get just as tough in some other speeches and statements.

To those who have been closely associated with the President, during his tenure in the White House, and before that in the Army, it is no secret that he can explode like a bomb.

But initimates of the President, who have been subjected to his sudden explosive ire, which has rarely been exposed to the American public, say that he quickly brings it under control. He has the ability to "wind it back down" they report.

The President is said to feel that his "persuasive" approach to Congress in the past has led to much of the criticism of his leadership. He believes that he should have told Congress, rather than asked it, to grant him certain authority and funds which he has been refused is the past.

He has also confided to intimates that he feels such action on his part is now necessary because of the critical situation both abroad and at home, which, in his oponion, should eliminate partisan politics from the possible solution of these problems.

Whether a "mad" Eisenhower instead of a "persuasive" one can succeed in getting most of what he wants from Congresn during the coming session however, is a question that no one can answer at this point.

Democratic leaders in Congress have made it clear that they are ready to blame the President, rather than the Republican Administration, for what they claim are past mistakes. This is a new approach on their part, for in the past they have been extremely careful to complain about actions by various Cabinet officers and others in the Eisenhower administration, rather than the President himself.

This latter strategy was dictated previously on the theory that President Eisenhower was far more popular than his party, or any one else in it. Results in the 1956 election gave credence to this belief, when the President won re-election easily, but the Democrats won control of both the Senate and House of Representatives.

Now looking toward the coming November Congressional elections, Democratic party leaders believe that Eisenhower's personal popularity has fallen and that he, as well as the Republican party, can be attacked.

The President apparently recognizes this change in the political atmosphere in reaching his decision to get tough. He cannot run for re-election under the change in the constitution. But, in his considered opinion, he might be able o restore some of his own popularity through his change in attitude.

Moreover, he feels that if he does accomplish this, GOP party candidates in November could benefit.

In any event, the coming bout between the President and Congress seems likely to be one of the most interesting and lively since the one between former President Harry S. Truman and the Republican controlled 80th Congress.

DR. CRANE SAYS

Sins Of Omission Often To Blame

Donna says her serious problem is her father. But her mother is just as responsible, for a wife's sins of omission can drive a good husband almost beserk. Study this case most carefully for you wives owe it to your children to maintain a happy home. It takes plain medical facts and a more aggressive technique to safeguard your marital happiness. Order the booklet below.

"Dr. Crane, I have a problem and it is most serious," she began.

"It's my father. He acts as if he has no use for my mother. And he humiliates us so we are ashamed to be seen in public.

"For he runs around with other women! And that's not a false rumor. For I have actually seen him.

"And when I had my Tri-Hi-Y Club at our house the last time, he tried to put his arm around some of the girls and kiss them.

"It's disgusting, and I don't know what to do about it. Is he losing his mind?"

Ponce De Leon Complex

Donna's father is so panicky that he has lost perspective.

And this male panic often strikes men past the age of 40 who become alarmed at the fact they are becoming platonic mates.

It isn't Donna who should be so concerned with this problem as her mother, for a wife can remedy the situation rather quickly.

Not only do wives often go into a neurotic state after the age of 40 when they grow afraid their physical charm will wane at the menopause, but husbands likewise are driven almost berserk by dread that their masculine vigor is a thing of the past.

Such men may then try to date other women, hoping that the novelty and illicitness of such affairs will be a tonic to their wounded sex ego and thus resurrect some of the ardor they used to feel maybe 25 years earlier.

We say such panicky males are showing the "Ponce de Leon" complex. They are frantically seeking a return to their youthful erotic ability.

Wifely Sins of Omission

Donna's mother is obviously guilty of a major sin of omission in her marital behavior or she would never have permitted her husband to get into this terrified state.

Impotence is largely a thing of the mind. As such, it can attack males of any age as soon as they grow fearful of their erotic vigor.

As soon as they become victims of a sexual inferiority complex, then they may sprout all the symptoms of the middle aged husband, even though they may be only 25 instead of 50.

Some of these symptoms involve heavy drinking of whiskey, as well as gambling, reckless driving and a tendency to stay out late every night.

For such a husband usually wants to hide his defect from his wife. If he comes home drunk, he figures this fact will divert her attention so she will not wonder why he makes no attempt to kiss her or show amative interest.

But other victims will grow caustic and criticize the wife for every minor flaw. They may also project their sarcastic remarks upon their innocent children.

Advice to Wives

If the wife is unaware of the cause of such behavior and continues as a relatively frigid or uncooperative mate, then such a panicky husband may decide:

"Maybe it's my wife's fault. Perhaps a more cooperative partner would make my pulse pound again and restore my former ardor."

When a husband reaches this dangerous frame of mind, he may then try to date other and usually younger females.

He may even try to "paw" the girl friends of his own daughter, as Donna describes, for he is almost berserk and hence lacks normal perspective.

The cure for such a man depends chiefly on his wife's becoming more aggressive in their marital relations so she will restore his wounded sex ego.

So send for my booklet "How to Prevent Impotence," enclosing a stamped return envelope, plus 20 cents (non-profit).

You wives owe it to your children to maintain a happy home, so stop your sins of omission.

Famous Fables

BACKGROUND: As a young man, magazine editor Frank Crowninshield decided to make his mark in the publishing field in New York. Young Crowninshield, a descendant of a distinguished New England family, came down from Boston with impressive letters of introduction, which he presented to the editor of a well-known publishing firm.

The letters left no doubt that the youthful job applicant was of aristocratic lineage, through whose veins flowed only the purest of blue blood. The editor waded through this maze of pedigree, then listened as Crowninshield supplied additional information about his background.

"Young man," he finally interrupted, "I am sure you would be invaluable for breeding purposes. But we are interested only in publishing."

ADMIRATION: Scientists Marie and Pierre Curie devoted their lives to their work, with no concern for financial reward. Even the thought of personal wealth was abhorrent to them.

One night at a banquet, Marie observed that her husband was staring intently at the attractive lady seated opposite, who was wearing a fabulous diamond necklace. When the banquet was over, she said to him with some disapproval:

"Why were you staring so? Since when have you developed an interest in diamonds?"

Pierre was hurt.

"How could you think such a thing?" he protested. "I wasn't admiring her diamonds. I was admiring her beauty."

Carcinoid Tumor Called Unusual

Many years ago a patient with an unusual disease was brought before England's Royal Society of Medicine. This man's odd assortment of symptoms consisted of severe hot flushes, pain in the chest, shortness of breath, and watery diarrhea. The skin of the trunk was violet in color and he had leakage of the heart and enlarged liver. Flushing was exaggerated during emotional stress and while eating. This patient had a carcinoid tumor (not to be confused with carcinoma) of the intestine.

These tumors are tiny at first and take years to grow. One in 10 becomes malignant and the cells spread to various parts of the body where they cause different symptoms. The unique feature of the growth centers about serotonin, a secretion it gives off. This substance is a powerful dilator of the surface blood vessels, which causes the flushing phenomenon.

The physician is able to make the diagnosis when large amounts of this chemical are found in the blood stream. Serotonin, and not the tumor, causes diarrhea and abdominal pain; it stimulates the muscles of the intestine and leads to bowel overactivity (diarrhea). It also increases metabolism leading to loss of weight, muscle wasting, and weakness.

Signs of heart disease with leakage of the valves also develop, as well as shortness of breath, dropsy, and asthma. But it is the series of flushes that suggest a carcinoid tumor to the physician. Redness usually starts in the face and may extend to the chest, arms, and legs. It lasts seven to eight minutes and tends to recur many times a day. Flushing is precipitated by emotional stress, eating, smoking, and drinking cocktails.

Many patients develop a persistent reddish purple discoloration of the face. As time passes, it becomes darker and tiny enlarged veins are seen over the nose.

In recent years, serotonin has been isolated, and when injected into another person, causes pain in the veins, abdominal and bladder cramps, shortness of breath, and tingling and burning of the face. These tumors always are removed when discovered, because they are potentially malignant. Carcinoid is beyond cure after symptoms appear, but growth is so slow the individual may live a normal life span, dying eventually of something else.

Colds and Bronchitis

B. Y. writes: How can the system be built up so that every cold won't turn into bronchitis?

Reply

Important factors are adequate rest and nutrition, cleanliness, moderate exercise, and the avoidance of excesses. Spare the bronchial membranes irritation from tobacco, dust, and strong fumes. Reduce the chances of infection by minimizing exposure to crowds and to persons with a cold.

Whiplash Injury

R. T. writes: In what way does a whiplash injury affect the neck and spine?

Reply

The damage varies from strain on the joint capsule to dislocation of vertebrae. The muscles or nerves in the area may be injured. The term whiplash injury refers to how the accident occurred but tells nothing about the nature or extent of the injury.

Ear Pulling

A. P. writes: Won't pulling a child's ears as a form of punishment cause deafness?

Reply

No, but ear pulling is painful and if done often, could lead to a deformity of the ears. The hearing parts are in the skull where they are safe from cruel adults.

Today's Health Hint —

Good nutrition and health are inseparable.

GOOD TURN

WALLINGFORD, Conn. —(UP) — Edward C. Cittnick made a wrong turn which turned out right. While making deliveries for a drugstore he wound up on the wrong street in time to rescue two - year - old Patricia Bunnell from a water-filled excavation.

ONCE A YEAR

PORTLAND, Me. — (UP) — Portland Lightship just completed her annual voyage — the only one she makes — sailing from her station 12 miles off the harbor to Boston for annual overhaul.

STRANGE LOVE STORY

Man Infatuated With Big Tuba

Editor's Note — This is one of the strangest love stories and you'll ever read: the love of one man for his tuba.

By EDDY GILMORE

LONDON, Jan. 11 (AP)—There are few things artist Gerard Hoffnung loves more than a big brass tuba.

"My wife, my son, yes," he explains with a shrug, "but after them, the tuba comes first."

Hoffnung, a successful painter, cartoonist, author, teacher and musician, regards life as something akin to a tremendous practical joke.

"I take the tuba terribly, terribly seriously," he says. "I always desperately wanted to play it. But I was not allowed to play it. My parents objected and I only started playing it after they died. I don't mean it to sound awful.'

He says his mother wanted him to become a concert violinist.

"She dreamed of accompanying me. But she never could see her way to accompanying a tuba, even though played by me."

Hoffnung attended fashionable Harrow, Sir Winston Churchill's alma mater, where he later became a master.

His cartoons were so amusing —with a wild, slightly mad touch — that magazines in America, Britain and on the continent started buying them.

Finally, he became so completely identifiitd with his strange fascination that he took up the tuba seriously in 1951.

"People seem to think of it as fierce and martial," he says, "But actually, it has a warm and very tender tone. It's a glorious horn."

The umpah-making instrument that dates back to ancient Roman legions was the symbol of London's biggest New Years Eve party, the annual Chelsea Arts Ball. Hoffnung had been commissioned to decorate the huge Albert Hall for the occasion.

The theme was music, and to Hoffnung music is the tuba.

Symphonies were played by an orchestra that included vacuum cleaners, electric floor polishers, four men who fired rifles, and six others who blew into hot water bottles.

A London critic praised the concert, calling it the greatest musical joke of all time. A recording of the event was a hit in Britain but had a mixed reception in the United States. American critics felt it all was probably funnier when seen.

The author of four books, a regular broadcaster for the British Broadcasting Corp.—in addition to everything else—he will appear as a concert artist early next year.

The venerable British composer Ralph Vaughan Williams has written the music for the coming occasion. He calls it "Concerto for Bass Tuba."

Short, stout, rumbled and only 32, Hoffnung has brought his beloved horn into his already cluttered home. Two tubas, both reverently covered in soft cloth, adorn his living room.

Oak Grove Girl To Tour With Choral Group

FORT WORTH, Tex. (Special) — Miss Rennie Sanderson of Oak Grove will participate in a tour of West Texas and New Mexico January 10-17 with the Southwestern Singers, nationally famous choral group from Southwestern Baptist Seminary in Fort Worth, Tex.

She is the daughter of Rev. W. B. Sanderson, Rt. 4, Oak Grove, and is a graduate of Louisiana Baptist College.

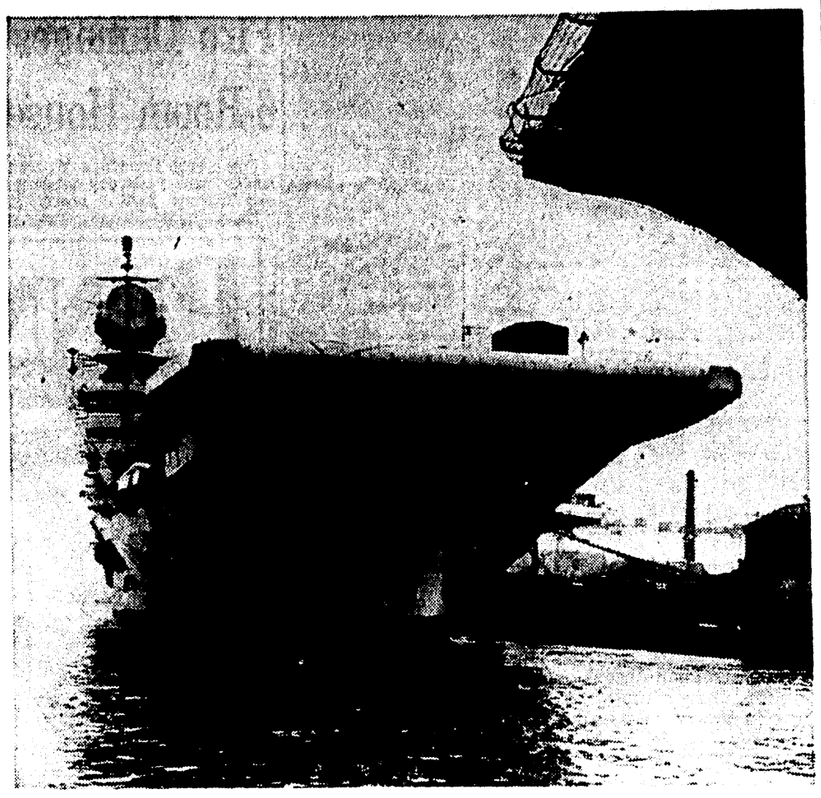
She sings also with the Southwestern Singers and is featured with that group in a new album just released by Broadman Recordings, "Hymns of the Christian Faith," which includes twelve hymns sung by the choral group.



SHE'S GOT A NEW ANGLE — The modernized British carrier H.M.S. Victorious, all fitted out with an angled landing deck and the latest fighting equipment, lies at anchor in Partsmouth dockyard awaiting commissioning ceremonies later this month. The ship's refitting, said to be the biggest job ever undertaken in a British dockyard, includes new mirror landing aids, steam catapults and high-speed aircraft elevators along with the canted takeoff deck. ## Faulk Post Will Select 2 Directors

Election of two new members of the board of directors of the American Legion Stadium Corporation will take place at 8 p.m. tomorrow in a business meeting of the L. B. Faulk Post No. 13.

Milton W. Ford, post Commander, said that the business session has been substituted for the regular semi-monthly meet, and urged all members to attend.

Members of the six-man board are elected for three year terms. Concluding their period in office are R. T. Farr and Edward Lutz. Others include Saul Adler, chairman, J. H. Trousdale Jr., Frank Reitzell and R. D. Farr Jr.

Reports Slated

Adler will report on 1957 stadium activities, preview 1958 plans, and give the annual financial statement.

Morris Haas Jr., vice-commander, has announced that sign-up for the mid-winter conference of the 50,000 state members will also take place tomorrow night. The meeting will be in Lake Charles Jan. 25-26.

Faulk Post members will take over "March of Dimes" collections on Jan. 25 in the Twin Cities. Sam Orchard, chairman, will inform members of the number of volunteers needed at tomorrow's session.

Educational Film To Be Shown At Camera Session

The film will be shown when the recently organized group holds its regular meeting at 7:30 p.m. in the Army Reserve Building, T 39-3 at Selman Field.

Members are urged to bring along prints or slides for discussion following the showing of the film, it was announced.

Positions Described By Civil Service

Employment as a Cartographic Aid for field survey work in Louisiana and 15 other states is now being offered by Civil Service, according to J. S. Daniel, area representative in the Monroe Post Office.

Workers for photogrammetry are also needed. Salaries start at $285 to $306 per month, and work involves topographic mapping.

Khorassan Knights To Name Officers

Members of the order of Knights of Khorassan will hold their first meeting of the new year tomorrow night at Castle Hall and will have a barbecued chicken supper. Time for the meet is 7 p.m. Officers for 1958 will be elected and installed at that time.

Brooks Sees Threat To Water Programs

WASHINGTON Jan.4 (AP)—America's stepped-up satellite and missile program may result in curtailment of flood control and other water resources projects, Rep. Brooks (D-La) said today.

He called upon the National Rivers and Harbors Congress to lead a resistance movement against any "unwarranted and unthinking cuts" in money for waterway work.

Brooks, president of the Rivers and Harbors Congress, a non-governmental group interested in rivers and harbors projects, made his remarks at a special meeting of the organization's National Board of Directors.

Report Monday

The board, meeting in a private session, will report its recommendations at a news conference Monday morning.

"The need for this meeting of our board is created by events not of our making," Brooks said. "The launching of an earth satellite — unfortunately not of our making — was the basic event of the last few months that brings us here.

"This has led to much frantic, behind-the-scenes activity to find the money to finance the intensified defense program that the country is demanding.

"According to our best information, we may expect several important, moves which, if successful, would cripple the water resources program that this organization has advocated and supported for more than half a century."

Brooks said this is what may be expected:

1. The Army Engineers' civil works program and the Interior Department's irrigation-reclamation program "face sharp curtailment and deferment in the budget .... We hear .... that the Budget Bureau will recommend cut-backs of as much as 20 per cent on projects already under construction, and will also recommend no money for starting new projects."

2. "The Budget Bureau has recently issued an order that will have the effect of slowing down the rate of construction on projects already under way." He said the Army engineers did not announce the action "but gave this reply when inquiries were received:

Re-Examination

"The Corps of Engineers is re-examining its civil works program for the balance of the fiscal year 1958 (ending June 30, 1958) in the light of new budgetary considerations. The award of the new contracts is being deferred pending the result of this review."

Ths action, Brooks said, "may well defer ultimate completion dates" of projects now under way.

3. "We may also expect intensified opposition to the omnibus rivers and harbors authorization bill which has passed the Senate and has been reported out of committee in the House."

Brooks said that if new starts are banned, the argument probably will be advanced that the authorization of new projects would be useless, and added:

"We know that this is an ingenious and specious argument that will be made by the same group that has perennially seized upon every available excuse to block the progress of the water development program.

"But the plain fact is that the omnibus authorization bill is sorely needed. The development of several watersheds—in California, Louisiana and Florida—has been halted in their tracks because the authorized basic ceiling has been reached."

Declaring that water resources projects pay for themselves and are needed for the defense of the nation, Brooks concluded:

"With this general background, I suggest we consider how we can best mobilize our own forces and make ourselves effective in resisting unwarranted and unthinking cuts in this highly important domestic economic program. I think the economic well being of the American people is worth fighting for. And I believe we can win this battle if we devote ourselves to the task."

Monroe Man 'Resting Well' After Crash

DELHI (Special) —Johnny Sheldon Price, 27-year-old Monroe man, was reported "resting comfortably" in the Delhi Clinic last night, after suffering burns when the truck he was driving was involved in a collision with a train Friday afternoon.

Doctors said the exact extent of the burns, which Price received on his face, hands and legs, was not yet determined. The physicians added that it would be at least a week before they would know whether or not skin grafting will be necessary.

Landis Dale Parker, 21, also of Monroe, was killed in the same accident, which occurred in Epps. Officials said the train smashed broadside into the truck, carrying it 150 feet down the tracks.

Fire Starts

State Police said fire broke out when the gas tank of the truck exploded, pouring fuel under the train and damaging it as well as the truck. Price was apparently able to get out of the flaming truck almost immediately, and townspeople extinguished his clothing.

Parker was trapped in the truck and authorities said it was not yet known whether fire alone had caused his death.

No charges had been filed last night, and investigation was still underway.

Burn Victim Rites Today

DELHI (Special) — Funeral services for Mrs. J. A. Gaddy who was badly burned Monday in a fire at her home, will be at 2 p.m. today in the Presbyterian church in Delhi.

The Rev. J. C. Mohler will conduct the services, and burial will follow in the Delhi Masonic Cemetery.

Mrs. Gaddy suffered the fatal burns at 8 a.m. Monday, when the front of her housecoat caught fire from a kitchen heater, in her home at 306 West Fifth street, Delhi. Mr. Gaddy received burns on the hands and neck while putting out the flames with a wet towel.

Both were taken to a Monroe hospital, where she died early yesterday. Mr. Gaddy has been released from the hospital.

The body will lie in state at the Mulhearn Funeral Home in Delhi until time for services.

Mrs. Gaddy is survived by her husband; one step-daughter, Mrs. John Howard, Denver, Colo.; two brothers, Joe Day, Winnsboro, and Alvie Day, Phoenix, Ariz.; three sisters, Mrs. Ophelia Sisson, Winnsboro, Mrs. Mollie Berry, Crowville, and Mrs. Shelby Woolridge, Oklahoma, and a number of nieces and nephews.

2 4-H CLUBS HONORED

BATON ROUGE (Special)—Two area 4-H clubs were rewarded by United Gas for community accomplishments. The East Side 4-H Club in Morehouse parish received $50 while the Farmerville Senior 4-H club in Union parish was awarded $25.

Faulk Post Will Select 2 Directors

Election of two new members of the board of directors of the American Legion Stadium Corporation will take place at 8 p.m. tomorrow in a business meeting of the L. B. Faulk Post No. 13.

Milton W. Ford, post Commander, said that the business session has been substituted for the regular semi-monthly meet, and urged all members to attend.

Members of the six-man board are elected for three year terms. Concluding their period in office are R. T. Farr and Edward Lutz. Others include Saul Adler, chairman, J. H. Trousdale Jr., Frank Reitzell and R. D. Farr Jr.

Reports Slated

Adler will report on 1957 stadium activities, preview 1958 plans, and give the annual financial statement.

Morris Haas Jr., vice-commander, has announced that sign-up for the mid-winter conference of the 50,000 state members will also take place tomorrow night. The meeting will be in Lake Charles Jan. 25-26.

Faulk Post members will take over "March of Dimes" collections on Jan. 25 in the Twin Cities. Sam Orchard, chairman, will inform members of the number of volunteers needed at tomorrow's session.

Educational Film To Be Shown At Camera Session

The film will be shown when the recently organized group holds its regular meeting at 7:30 p.m. in the Army Reserve Building, T 39-3 at Selman Field.

Members are urged to bring along prints or slides for discussion following the showing of the film, it was announced.

Brooks Sees Threat To Water Programs

WASHINGTON Jan.4 (AP)—America's stepped-up satellite and missile program may result in curtailment of flood control and other water resources projects, Rep. Brooks (D-La) said today.

He called upon the National Rivers and Harbors Congress to lead a resistance movement against any "unwarranted and unthinking cuts" in money for waterway work.

Brooks, president of the Rivers and Harbors Congress, a non-governmental group interested in rivers and harbors projects, made his remarks at a special meeting of the organization's National Board of Directors.

Report Monday

The board, meeting in a private session, will report its recommendations at a news conference Monday morning.

"The need for this meeting of our board is created by events not of our making," Brooks said. "The launching of an earth satellite — unfortunately not of our making — was the basic event of the last few months that brings us here.

"This has led to much frantic, behind-the-scenes activity to find the money to finance the intensified defense program that the country is demanding.

"According to our best information, we may expect several important, moves which, if successful, would cripple the water resources program that this organization has advocated and supported for more than half a century."

Brooks said this is what may be expected:

1. The Army Engineers' civil works program and the Interior Department's irrigation-reclamation program "face sharp curtailment and deferment in the budget .... We hear .... that the Budget Bureau will recommend cut-backs of as much as 20 per cent on projects already under construction, and will also recommend no money for starting new projects."

2. "The Budget Bureau has recently issued an order that will have the effect of slowing down the rate of construction on projects already under way." He said the Army engineers did not announce the action "but gave this reply when inquiries were received:

Re-Examination

"The Corps of Engineers is re-examining its civil works program for the balance of the fiscal year 1958 (ending June 30, 1958) in the light of new budgetary considerations. The award of the new contracts is being deferred pending the result of this review."

Ths action, Brooks said, "may well defer ultimate completion dates" of projects now under way.

3. "We may also expect intensified opposition to the omnibus rivers and harbors authorization bill which has passed the Senate and has been reported out of committee in the House."

Brooks said that if new starts are banned, the argument probably will be advanced that the authorization of new projects would be useless, and added:

"We know that this is an ingenious and specious argument that will be made by the same group that has perennially seized upon every available excuse to block the progress of the water development program.

"But the plain fact is that the omnibus authorization bill is sorely needed. The development of several watersheds—in California, Louisiana and Florida—has been halted in their tracks because the authorized basic ceiling has been reached."

Declaring that water resources projects pay for themselves and are needed for the defense of the nation, Brooks concluded:

"With this general background, I suggest we consider how we can best mobilize our own forces and make ourselves effective in resisting unwarranted and unthinking cuts in this highly important domestic economic program. I think the economic well being of the American people is worth fighting for. And I believe we can win this battle if we devote ourselves to the task."

Monroe Man 'Resting Well' After Crash

DELHI (Special) —Johnny Sheldon Price, 27-year-old Monroe man, was reported "resting comfortably" in the Delhi Clinic last night, after suffering burns when the truck he was driving was involved in a collision with a train Friday afternoon.

Doctors said the exact extent of the burns, which Price received on his face, hands and legs, was not yet determined. The physicians added that it would be at least a week before they would know whether or not skin grafting will be necessary.

Landis Dale Parker, 21, also of Monroe, was killed in the same accident, which occurred in Epps. Officials said the train smashed broadside into the truck, carrying it 150 feet down the tracks.

Fire Starts

State Police said fire broke out when the gas tank of the truck exploded, pouring fuel under the train and damaging it as well as the truck. Price was apparently able to get out of the flaming truck almost immediately, and townspeople extinguished his clothing.

Parker was trapped in the truck and authorities said it was not yet known whether fire alone had caused his death.

No charges had been filed last night, and investigation was still underway.

Burn Victim Rites Today

DELHI (Special) — Funeral services for Mrs. J. A. Gaddy who was badly burned Monday in a fire at her home, will be at 2 p.m. today in the Presbyterian church in Delhi.

The Rev. J. C. Mohler will conduct the services, and burial will follow in the Delhi Masonic Cemetery.

Mrs. Gaddy suffered the fatal burns at 8 a.m. Monday, when the front of her housecoat caught fire from a kitchen heater, in her home at 306 West Fifth street, Delhi. Mr. Gaddy received burns on the hands and neck while pitting out the flames with a wet towel.

Both were taken to a Monroe hospital, where she died early yesterday. Mr. Gaddy has been released from the hospital.

The body will lie in state at the Mulhearn Funeral Home in Delhi until time for services.

Mrs. Gaddy is survived by her husband; one step-daughter, Mrs. John Howard, Denver, Colo.; two brothers, Joe Day, Winnsboro, and Alvie Day, Phoenix, Ariz.; three sisters, Mrs. Ophelia Sisson, Winnsboro, Mrs. Mollie Berry, Crowville, and Mrs. Shelby Woolridge, Oklahoma, and a number of nieces and nephews.

2 4-H CLUBS HONORED

BATON ROUGE (Special)—Two area 4-H clubs were rewarded by United Gas for community accomplishments. The East Side 4-H Club in Morehouse parish received $50 while the Farmerville Senior 4-H club in Union parish was awarded $25.

Officers Assist In Dimes March

City and parish law-enforcement officers manned mid-street posts yesterday, to help stamp out a ruthless killer that is still on the loose — polio.

Members of the Monroe and West Monroe Police Departments and the Ouachita Parish Sheriff's Department, armed with huge collection barrels, stood in the center of the street at Fourth street and Louisville avenue, Fourth and DeSiard, at the foot of the old bridge at Grand and DeSiard, at the Monroe edge of the new bridge, and the West Monroe edge of the new bridge.

Each officer was on one hour at a time, and the results indicate the March of Dimes project was a success. Sam Orchard, chairman of the local campaign, said that collections were so large that they will not be counted until Monday morning, with the automatic counting machines at the Ouachita National bank giving a total.

The campaign will conclude on Jan. 31, when the Mothers' March, a house - to - house collection, will take place, under the leadership of Mrs. Paul Blackmon.

To Assist

Lions club members have volunteered to conduct the campaign next Saturday, and Shriners and Firemen will take over the duties respectively on the following Saturdays.

Members of the Pershing Rifles, ROTC honorary at Northeast State college, will join the March on one Friday this month.

No goal is set for the drive, since it is never known what the year's expenses for the parish will be.

Orchard commented that less than $18,000 was received during 1957, a decrease from previous years. "People think that the Salk polio vaccine has solved the whole polio problem. Yet, funds are still badly needed for research work on polio and the viruses which cause the crippling disease," he stated, adding that those stricken before the vaccine was discovered must still receive care.

"Patients in hospitals need round-the-clock medical attention and aid is needed for rehabilitation. We didn't receive enough in contributions last year to cover the entire program for the parish," the chairman revealed.

A total of $20,000 is hoped for this year.

The campaign is being conducted from office headquarters on the mezzanine floor of the Frances Hotel. Mrs. Paul Wilhite is secretary for the drive.

CRACKDOWN ON POLIO—Officers from Monroe and West Monroe police departments, and the Sheriff's Department, put "Killer" Polio on the top of their "wanted" list yesterday, and stood at several intersections to collect contributions for the March of Dimes. # Oil Industry Legislation Before Solons

By MAX B. SKELTON

HOUSTON, Jan. 4 (AP)—Numerous bills affecting the oil industry will be before the second session of the 85th Congress that begins work next week.

Oil operators will be watching proposed legislation involving a wide variety of topics but those pertaining to natural gas and foreign trade policies probably will receive the most attention.

The Harris-O'Hara bill that would remove natural gas producers from utility type federal controls is a holdover from the 1957 session. Backers of the compromise measure are confident the bill will receive early attention during the second session.

Trade Act Expires

The Reciprocal Trade Agreements Act expires next June. The federal government's current voluntary program for curtailment of foreign oil imports was setup under a 1955 amendment to the Act. Opponents of crude oil imports consider an extension of the Act essential to their fight to prevent foreign oil from supplanting instead of supplementing domestic production.

Other bills affecting the industry and scheduled for consideration involve taxes, antitrust, synthetic fuels, mergers, small business legislation, and such industry advisory groups as the National Petroleum Council.

The industry once again is prepared to present a vigorous defense of its statutory depletion tax allowance of 27½ per cent. Congressional officials have indicated in recent weeks, however, there will be no serious effort to disturb the 31-year-old allowance in 1958. Three bills introduced last year still are pending and would reduce the percentage depletion from 5 to 15 per cent.

No Plans Yet

The administration has not as yet indicated its plans for the reciprocal trade agreements are set but a recommendation for another extension is expected.

Some independent oil operators would like to see the Act's defense amendment extended and include specific quotas for foreign oil imports. Several holdover bills propose that oil imports be limited to from 5 to 10 per cent of domestic demand.

Success of the demands for specific quotas probably will depend upon the success or failure of the current efforts for voluntary curtailments. Three crude importers still have not accepted allocations made by the government. Major opponents of foreign crude, however, already acknowledge that the five-month-old program shows indication of success.

The Harris-O'Hara bill received House committee approval last year. The bill is a compromise substitute for one President Eisenhower vetoed in 1956. The vetoed bill would have exempted natural gas prices at the wellhead from regulation by the Federal Power Commission.

Several miscellaneous bills could cause anxious moments within the industry.

Oil operators oppose a House proposal that would prohibit merger or sale of assets between companies whose assets exceed two million dollars without prior notice to the federal government.

They also opposed a proposal that an appointed government employe act as chairman of such industry advisory groups as the National Petroleum Council and the Military Petroleum Advisory Board.

Private Plane Forced To Circle Field For Hour

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 4 (AP) — Landing gear trouble today caused a private airplane carrying three people to circle New Orleans Airport more than one hour. The plane had taken off from that airport.

Lucian Taix, pilot of the Brown and Root Construction Co., amphibian plane, told the airport tower by radio a landing wheel jammed in the lowered position. He said he could not bring down the plane on water or land.

Rushmore At Danger Point, Doctor Said

NEW YORK, Jan. 4 (UP)—Police said today a psychiatrist had found Howard Rushmore, former Communist and ex-editor of Confidential magazine, was approaching "the danger point" some time before he shot his wife and himself to death in a taxicab.

Mrs. Frances Rushmore, 37, had heeded warnings to stay away from Rushmore until she let her guard down for the few minutes Friday night during which she and her husband went for what turned out to be their death ride.

Rushmore, who had received high salaries for his journalistic work after he broke with the Communists over a review of the movie "Gone With the Wind," was reported to have been broke and talking about suicide.

An editor of the Police Gazette said Rushmore came to his office this week asking for a writing assignment because he needed money.

It was disclosed that Rushmore had been under investigation by the police commissioner's confidential squad. A member of the squad recently questioned Rushmore, but police would not say why.

Rushmore, 45, shot his estranged wife twice and himself once through the head during an argument over money after he forced his way into a cab she had hailed. Mrs. Rushmore ordered the driver to hurry to the nearest police station and the cab was enroute there when the shots were fired. Both passengers were dead when the driver reached the police station.

Alaska Becomes New Member Of IOC Commission

OKLAHOMA CITY, Jan. 4 — (UP)—The Interstate Oil Compact Commission has admitted the territory of Alaska to full membership because of the discovery of oil on the Kenai peninsula, officials of the commission announced today.

Alaska is listed as a state by the commission because the compact makes no provision for territorial members, Earl Foster, secretary said.

The compact obligates member states to abide by rules and regulations designed to conserve oil and natural gas resources. Gov. Milward Simpson of Wyoming is the chairman.

Automobile Crash Fatal To Mother

ALEXANDRIA, La., Jan. 4 (AP)—A young Marksville mother died tonight when her car crashed into a bridge abutment in Alexandria. The victim was Mrs. E. M. Chaze of Marksville. She is survived by her husband and a three-year-old daughter.

'Peace Atoms' Display To Be Brought Here

Billy Hargiss, president of the Monroe Junior Chamber of Commerce announced yesterday that the organization will sponsor an admission-free "Atom for Peace" display in Monroe from Jan. 14-16.

Co-chairmen of the exhibit will be Joe Rabun and Fred Landry.

A walk - through mobile unit in a modern bus-type vehicle, the exhibit will be open from 12 noon until 8 p.m. on Jan. 14 and 15, and from 8 a.m. to noon on Jan. 16. That afternoon, it will be shown in Sterlington.

One of four such units now touring the nation, it contains pictures diagrams, and models which visitors may operate. Uses of atomic energy in peacetime are shown, including radioistopes - the "tracer atoms" now utilized in medicine, agriculture and industry.

Simulated Elements

Actual samples of radioactive ore, simulated fuel elements, reactor control rods, and radiation - detection devices will be a part of the display, which is shown in Louisiana through co-operation of the LSU General Extension Division and the Louisiana Junior Chamber of Commerce.

The U. S. Atomic Energy Commission prepared the display, the newest on atoms. Approximately 120 persons per hour will be able to see the exhibit, and its location will be announced within the next few days, according to Hargiss.

The co-chairmen plan to contact parish and city schools, to arrange for students to view the display.

Girl, 16, Dies From Injuries

Patsy Lee Holmes of Georgetown succumbed late Friday night in the Alexandria Baptist Hospital, after the car driven by her father, Ralph Ward Holmes, 40, was demolished by an on-coming truck.

Truck driver Sylvester B. Edwards, 35, Seagoville, Tex., crashed into an 11-point buck which dashed across the road, and his vehicle swerved into the path of the Holmes car on Highway 165, nine miles north of Pollock.

Both car and truck were wrecked, and the deer was killed in the Frilay morning mishap.

Holmes, his daughter, two other Holmes youngsters, Eddie, 11, and Jane, 8, and Edwards were all rushed to the Alexandria hospital.

Miss Holmes had been elected school beauty for the past two years.

W. P. McCain, 93, Dies; Rites Today

Mr. McCain came to Franklin parish from Cleveland, Miss. 50 years ago.

COLLISION

A panel truck skidded about 47 feet and rolled on its side after being struck by a car here yesterday, but police reports showed no injuries. Investigators revealed that the truck driven west on Pine street by Ernest Crowder, Negro, of 405 North 22nd, collided with an auto driven south on North 17th, by Billy Aulds, 17 of Farmerville. The Aulds vehicle skidded about 33 feet before the impact, according to police.

Reports Of Thefts Increasing Here, Officers Reveal

Following a slack period during the holidays, reports of petty thefts and burglaries picked up yesterday with five such offenses reported to city police.

The reports concerned two gold-colored watches, three newspaper racks, a five-dollar check, and an auto battery.

Authorities revealed that Fran Brennan, 107 Auburn, reported the loss of one Bulova and one Elgin wristwatch, and the check, made payable to Dorothy Brennan. The house was entered after a window screen was removed, authorities said.

According to police, Jerry Rodgen, 4205 Spurgeon Drive, reported that the newspaper holders were missing, one each from Smart's Grocery, 2815 Lee; Lovers' Lane Drugs, 2505 South Grand, and Flynn's Cafe on South Grand.

Car, Train Mishap

According to police, Steve Brown 55-year-old Monroe Negro was driving west on DeSiard about 10 a.m. when his car bumped into a Missouri Pacific Engine No. 4220 at DeSiard and Congo.

Slight damage to the car was noted and Brown was given a ticket on a reckless driving charge.

Fire Damages 6-Room House

Fire swept through a six-room duplex here yesterday afternoon and firemen battled nearly an hour to bring the flames under control. No injuries were reported.

The structure located at 1500 Adams was occupied by two Negroes, Thomas Mines, west apartment, and Georgia Myles, east partment, firemen said. The building is owned by William Haddad.

Officials tentatively attributed the source of the blaze to "smoking in bed."

The frame building was termed as "all but destroyed," by one fire official, who commented that insurance coverage totaled $2,500.

Company 101 from the downtown station and Company 103 from the Hudson Lane station along with Car 4 answered the call at 2:44 p.m. Directing the operations were District Chief H. D. Massingill and Capt. J. D. Brownlee.

Orchard commented that less than $18,000 was received during 1957, a decrease from previous years. "People think that the Salk polio vaccine has solved the whole polio problem. Yet, funds are still badly needed for research work on polio and the viruses which cause the crippling disease," he stated, adding that those stricken before the vaccine was discovered must still receive care.

"Patients in hospitals need round-the-clock medical attention and aid is needed for rehabilitation. We didn't receive enough in contributions last year to cover the entire program for the parish," the chairman revealed.

A total of $20,000 is hoped for this year.

The campaign is being conducted from office headquarters on the mezzanine floor of the Frances Hotel. Mrs. Paul Wilhite is secretary for the drive.

Oil Industry Legislation Before Solons

By MAX B. SKELTON

HOUSTON, Jan. 4 (AP)—Numerous bills affecting the oil industry will be before the second session of the 85th Congress that begins work next week.

Oil operators will be watching proposed legislation involving a wide variety of topics but those pertaining to natural gas and foreign trade policies probably will receive the most attention.

The Harris-O'Hara bill that would remove natural gas producers from utility type federal controls is a holdover from the 1957 session. Backers of the compromise measure are confident the bill will receive early attention during the second session.

Trade Act Expires

The Reciprocal Trade Agreements Act expires next June. The federal government's current voluntary program for curtailment of foreign oil imports was setup under a 1955 amendment to the Act. Opponents of crude oil imports consider an extension of the Act essential to their fight to prevent foreign oil from supplanting instead of supplementinc domestic production.

Other bills affecting the industry and scheduled for consideration involve taxes, antitrust, synthetic fuels, mergers, small business legislation, and such industry advisory groups as the National Petroleum Council.

The industry once again is prepared to present a vigorous defense of its statutory depletion tax allowance of 27½ per cent. Congressional officials have indicated in recent weeks, however, there will be no serious effort to disturb the 31-year-old allowance in 1958. Three bills introduced last year still are pending and would reduce the percentage depletion from 5 to 15 per cent.

No Plans Yet

The administration has not as yet indicated its plans for the reciprocal trade agreements are set but a recommendation for another extension is expected.

Some independent oil operators would like to see the Act's defense amendment extended and include specific quotas for foreign oil imports. Several holdover bills propose that oil imports be limited to from 5 to 10 per cent of domestic demand.

Success of the demands for specific quotas probably will depend upon the success or failure of the current efforts for voluntary curtailments. Three crude importers still have not accepted allocations made by the government. Major opponents of foreign crude, however, already acknowledge that the five-month-old program shows indication of success.

The Harris-O'Hara bill received House committee approval last year. The bill is a compromise substitute for one President Eisenhower vetoed in 1956. The vetoed bill would have exempted natural gas prices at the wellhead from regulation by the Federal Power Commission.

Several miscellaneous bills could cause anxious moments within the industry.

Oil operators oppose a House proposal that would prohibit merger or sale of assets between companies whose assets exceed two million dollars without prior notice to the federal government.

They also opposed a proposal that an appointed government employe act as chairman of such industry advisory groups as the National Petroleum Council and the Military Petroleum Advisory Board.

Private Plane Forced To Circle Field For Hour

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 4 (AP) — Landing gear trouble today caused a private airplane carrying three people to circle New Orleans Airport more than one hour. The plane had taken off from that airport.

Lucian Taix, pilot of the Brown and Root Construction Co., amphibian plane, told the airport tower by radio a landing wheel jammed in the lowered position. He said he could not bring down the plane on water or land.

Rushmore At Danger Point, Doctor Said

NEW YORK, Jan. 4 (UP)—Police said today a psychiatrist had found Howard Rushmore, former Communist and ex-editor of Confidential magazine, was approaching "the danger point" some time before he shot his wife and himself to death in a taxicab.

Mrs. Frances Rushmore, 37, had heeded warnings to stay away from Rushmore until she let her guard down for the few minutes Friday night during which she and her husband went for what turned out to be their death ride.

Rushmore, who had received high salaries for his journalistic work after he broke with the Communists over a review of the movie "Gone With the Wind," was reported to have been broke and talking about suicide.

An editor of the Police Gazette said Rushmore came to his office this week asking for a writing assignment because he needed money.

It was disclosed that Rushmore had been under investigation by the police commissioner's confidential squad. A member of the squad recently questioned Rushmore, but police would not say why.

Rushmore, 45, shot his estranged wife twice and himself once through the head during an argument over money after he forced his way into a cab she had hailed. Mrs. Rushmore ordered the driver to hurry to the nearest police station and the cab was enroute there when the shots were fired. Both passengers were dead when the driver reached the police station.

Alaska Becomes New Member Of IOC Commission

OKLAHOMA CITY, Jan. 4 — (UP)—The Interstate Oil Compact Commission has admitted the territory of Alaska to full membership because of the discovery of oil on the Kenai peninsula, officials of the commission announced today.

Alaska is listed as a state by the commission because the compact makes no provision for territorial members, Earl Foster, secretary said.

The compact obligates member states to abide by rules and regulations designed to conserve oil and natural gas resources. Gov. Milward Simpson of Wyoming is the chairman.

Automobile Crash Fatal To Mother

'Peace Atoms' Display To Be Brought Here

Billy Hargiss, president of the Monroe Junior Chamber of Commerce, announced yesterday that the organization will sponsor an admission-free "Atom for Peace" display in Monroe from Jan. 14-16.

Co-chairmen of the exhibit will be Joe Rabun and Fred Landry.

A walk - through mobile unit in a modern bus-type vehicle, the exhibit will be open from 12 noon until 8 p.m. on Jan. 14 and 15, and from 8 a.m. to noon on Jan. 16. That afternoon, it will be shown in Sterlington.

One of four such units now touring the nation, it contains pictures diagrams, and models which visitors may operate. Uses of atomic energy in peacetime are shown, including radioistopes - the "tracer atoms" now utilized in medicine, agriculture and industry.

Simulated Elements

Actual samples of radioactive ore, simulated fuel elements, reactor control rods, and radiation - detection devices will be a part of the display, which is shown in Louisiana through co-operation of the LSU General Extension Division and the Louisiana Junior Chamber of Commerce.

The U. S. Atomic Energy Commission prepared the display, the newest on atoms. Approximately 120 persons per hour will be able to see the exhibit, and its location will be announced within the next few days, according to Hargiss.

The co-chairmen plan to contact parish and city schools, to arrange for students to view the display.

Girl, 16, Dies From Injuries

Patsy Lee Holmes of Georgetown succumbed late Friday night in the Alexandria Baptist Hospital, after the car driven by her father, Ralph Ward Holmes, 40, was demolished by an on-coming truck.

Truck driver Sylvester B. Elwards, 35, Seagoville, Tex., crashed into an 11-point buck which dashed across the road, and his vehicle swerved into the path of the Holmes car on Highway 165, nine miles north of Pollock.

Both car and truck were wrecked, and the deer was killed in the Frilay morning mishap.

Holmes, his daughter, two other Holmes youngsters, Eddie, 11, and Jane, 8, and Edwards were all rushed to the Alexandria hospital.

Miss Holmes had been elected school beauty for the past two years.

Mr. McCain came to Franklin parish from Cleveland, Miss. 50 years ago.

COLLISION

A panel truck skidded about 47 feet and rolled on its side after being struck by a car here yesterday, but police reports showed no injuries. Investigators revealed that the truck driven west on Pine street by Ernest Crowder, Negro, of 405 North 22nd, collided with an auto driven south on North 17th, by Billy Aulds, 17 of Farmerville. The Aulds vehicle skidded about 33 feet before the impact, according to police.

Reports Of Thefts Increasing Here, Officers Reveal

Following a slack period during the holidays, reports of petty thefts and burglaries picked up yesterday with five such offenses reported to city police.

The reports concerned two gold-colored watches, three newspaper racks, a five-dollar check, and an auto battery.

Authorities revealed that Fran Brennan, 107 Auburn, reported the loss of one Bulova and one Elgin wristwatch, and the check, made payable to Dorothy Brennan. The house was entered after a window screen was removed, authorities said.

According to police, Jerry Roden, 4205 Spurgeon Drive, reported that the newspaper holders were missing, one each from Smart's Grocery, 2815 Lee; Lovers' Lane Drugs, 2505 South Grand, and Flynn's Cafe on South Grand.

Car, Train Mishap

According to police, Steve Brown 55-year-old Monroe Negro was driving west on DeSiard about 10 a.m. when his car bumped into a Missouri Pacific Engine No. 4220 at DeSiard and Congo.

Slight damage to the car was noted and Brown was given a ticket on a reckless driving charge.

Fire Damages 6-Room House

Fire swept through a six-room duplex here yesterday afternoon and firemen battled nearly an hour to bring the flames under control. No injuries were reported.

The structure located at 1500 Adams was occupied by two Negroes, Thomas Mines, west apartment, and Georgia Myles, east partment, firemen said. The building is owned by William Haddad.

Officials tentatively attributed the source of the blaze to "smoking in bed."

The frame building was termed as "all but destroyed," by one fire official, who commented that insurance coverage totaled $2,500.

Company 101 from the downtown station and Company 103 from the Hudson Lane station along with Car 4 answered the call at 2:44 p.m. Directing the operations were District Chief H. D. Massingill and Capt. J. D. Brownlee.

Active Year Seen Ahead For Civil Service Board

BATON RCUGE, Jan. 4 (UP) — Human nature being what it is, the State Civil Service Commission is probably looking forward to another active year handling appeals of state employes who feel they were unjustly dismissed or suspended.

Records of the Commission show it handled appeals of 40 persons in 1957 and ordered the restoration of 10 to state payrolls, while confirming the firing or suspending of the other 30.

At least two of the cases are headed for state Supreme Court consideration.

Supreme Court to Review

One is to be heard by the state's top judicial court Jan. 10—that of Alva A. King ex-drivers' license administrator who was fired effective March 7 by the Department of Public Safety.

The other is the appeal of M.G. Munson, parks planning engineer, and Derr Carpenter, landscape architect, two of four state Parks and Recreation Commission employes fired in an economy move June 4.

King's dismissal was upheld by the Civil Service Commission May 24 in an unusual four-one decision. The majority held King's firing was proper because he went ahead and ordered repair work done on filing cabinets, over contrary orders from Col. Forrest Pendleton, head of the public safety department, and also because he did not supervise a drivers license office in Cameron parish properly.

Corbett Disagrees

But commission member Perry H. Corbett disagreed with chairman Moise Dennery and members Charles Rivet and E. B. Roberts. He said, "it is false economy to sacrifice valuable training and employment to mediocre misunderstanding. Such things should be resolved within the department with less drastic action...insubordination and poor supervision...has not been shown..."

The state parks firing will be heard by the state Supreme Court later this year. It is to come up again at the parks commission meeting Jan. 7 because the Smithsonian Institute has threatened to take back items on loan to the Marksville museum unless a curator is hired. One of the four fired was Robert S. Neitzel, the curator at the prehistoric Indian park.

The other was Carl E. Smithson, park maintenance superintendent. Neitzel and he did not appeal to the court.

Clark Made Headlines

The name of Elzie Clark, wildlife agent, reached the headlines Jan. 14 and again May 23. The first time the commission ordered the Wildlife commission to rehire him because the written notice of dismissal "contained vague and indefinite charges..." The second time it again ordered his reinstatement because "all of the causes relied upon for appellant's discharge were induced and incited by the investigator for the employing authority," and because the actions complained of were committed while Clark was off duty.

Another opinion against a wildlife department employe, Louis A. Domingue, ruled that he be fired because he 'took an active part in the management and affairs of the campaign of a candidate for governor, during the 1955-56 campaign."

Clarkson D. Walker won back his job at the state penitentiary in an opinion dated May 23. The commission held the prison authorities did not prove he was the person from whom an inmate received contraband.

Chatelain Lost

But Ellis J. Chatelain, another state prison employe, lost his appeal in a decision August 28 when the commission said "an employe who absents himself from duty without obtaining approval of his authority does not possess the merit, efficiency, or fitness required of a person occupying a position in the state service."

On the same date, Charles P. James lost his appeal from dismissal as a state police trooper because he went into a neighboring state, in uniform, while not on duly.

And, finally, among other civil service cases which drew headlines was the appeal of Laura H. Humphries, an attendant at the State Colony and Training School at Pineville.

She was fired on grounds she had abandoned her position by refusing to report for work as assigned.

Mrs. Humphries objected to the hours, because they conflicted with family responsibilities, but the commission said "it is obvious that an employe cannot dictate her hours of employment, nor absent herself at pleasure from her duties. The operation of public institutions cannot be made to depend upon the convenience of employes."

Miss. Solons Meet Tuesday; See Tax Cuts

JACKSON, Miss., Jan. 4 (AP) — The Mississippi Legislature which meets in regular session Tuesday will be asked to make major tax cuts to encourage the state's industrialization.

Gradual reduction of the state income tax from 6 to 4 per cent was recommended today by a legislative study committee which said this would mean a "paper loss" of $3,750,000 in revenue for the next two years.

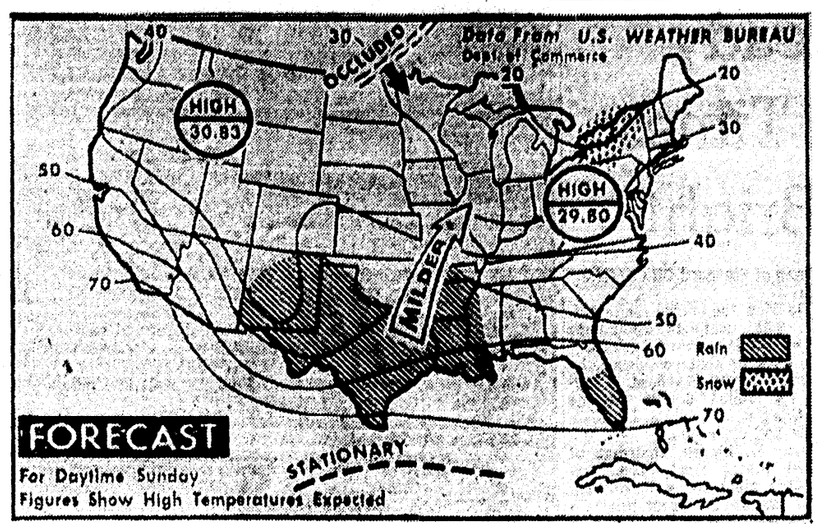
Actually the state would lose no revenue if the cuts had the expected effect of maintaining, or even accelerating, the state's industrial growth, the committee said. The reduction would be at the rate of ½ per cent a year.

The Temporary Fact-Finding Committee on Development of resources, headed by Sen. William L. Kling of Red Lick, said the state's tax structure is the principal factor discouraging growth of industry.

Taxes are just one of several controversial issues facing the legislators. There is pressure to reapportion legislative seats, which haven't been changed since 1890, and to raise teachers' salaries, now the lowest in the nation.

Gov. J. P. Coleman called a special session in November for the sole purpose of calling a convention to write a new constitution. Coleman said only a new constitution could preserve segregated schools, protect the state against the Civil Rights Act and encourage industry.

When the House killed his constitutional convention bill, Coleman said he would give the 1958 Legislature a chance to prove his critics' claims that the goals could be reached by constitutional amendments.



WEATHER BUREAU FORECAST — Snow flurries are forecast for northern New England, interior of New York state and in northwest Pennsylvania. Rain is expected in southern Florida and in the southern plains and western Gulf coast region. Generally fair weather will prevail over the remainder of the nation with clear to partly cloudy skies. # Eureka Springs Buildings Burn

EUREKA SPRINGS, Ark., Jan. 4 (AP)—Fire raged out of control nearly three hours here today and destroyed two large downtown buildings.

The early morning blaze destroyed a vacant frame building once used as a hotel and gutted a 3-story stone structure which housed the plant of the weekly Times Echo newspaper, offices of the Southwestern Gas and Electric Co. and Arkansas Western Gas Co., and the Nu-Ark rooming house.

A volunteer fireman, Jack Smith of Eureka Springs, was the only person reported injured. Six persons occupying the third-floor Nu-Ark rooming house escaped without injury.

BLOOD CURDLING PRICES

NOTTINGHAM, England (UP) —The parish magazine of St. Nicholas' Church carried the following book notice: "Do you like thrillers? Get the latest automobile assn. handbook. The hotel prices will curdle your blood."

Assembly Plans Aid Discussion

BILOXI, Miss., Jan. 4 (AP)—The Southern Assembly sponsored by Tulane University, will discuss the United States foreign aid program in four days of sessions beginning Thursday.

The assembly will be held in cooperation with the American Assembly of Columbia University.

About 60 citizens, representing various businesses and professions, will take part. They will be from Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, Oklahoma, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas and the District of Columbia.

Membership Filings Climb Over Year Ago

BATON ROUGE, Jan. 4 (AP) — Secretary of State Wade O. Martin Jr. said today 1957 membership lists filed to comply with an old law used to knock out the National Assn. for the Advancement of colored People were 45 per cent higher than in 1956.

The 1924 law, originally aimed at the Ku Klux Klan, requires membership lists filed annually between Dec. 16 and Dec. 31 by all except regularly organized churches and National Guard groups.

The law had not been enforced until 1956 when it was used to obtain a ban on NAACP activities, however, many NAACP units have complied with the law in the past two years.

Martin said his office received 1,555 lists in the period, compared with 839 in 1956.

"As was the case last year, however," he said, "the lists are continuing to come into the office after the deadline. They are being acknowledged and filed, just as last year, when some 1,000 lists came in after the legal filing period."

Martin said extra clerical help has been assigned to handle the flood of mail as lists came from garden clubs, car clubs, skin divers' clubs, parent-teacher groups, social and civic clubs and "an almost endless variety of others."

The largest single list, he said, came from the state P-TA organization, with 50,000 names and weighing more than 25 pounds.

Pay Raises For Miss. Judiciary Are Being Asked

JACKSON, Miss., Jan. 4 (AP) — Pay raises to compensate for an increased work load will be asked for Mississippi's Supreme, Circuit and Chancery court Judges.

The Board of Bar Commissioners of the Mississippi State Bar has adopted a resolution asking the 1958 Legislature which convenes Jan. 7 to boost judicial salaries to help attract and hold high-caliber attorneys to the bench.

Court officials have estimated the work load is increasing 15 to 20 per cent a year.

The present pay scale, compared with the proposed pay scale:

Chief Justice $13,500, increase to $19,000; presiding justice, $12,500, increase to $18,250; associate justices, $12,500, increase to $17,500; and Circuit and Chancery Court judges, $9,000, increase to $12,000.

In 1954, the Legislature raised Supreme Court justices from $11,000 by tacking additional duties onto the workload of the individual justices until their next terms of office began.

The new duties included advising the state librarian in the selection of law books to be purchased and studying existing law and recommending to the Legislature improvements in the administration of justice.

Navy Studies British Plane For Atom Engine

LONDON, Jan. 4 (UP) — The U. S. Navy has "approached" British authorities to investigate the possibilities of using Britains giant 10-engine flying boats for atom-powered planes, a Ministry of Supply spokesman said today.

Three of the 140-ton Princess flying boats have been in "mothballs" near Southampton for over three years. They were originally ordered by the Ministry of Supply at a cost of 28 million dollars.

The Daily Express today reported that the flying boats may be brought by the United States and modified as atomic-powered aircraft.

A&I Board To Get More Work, White Asserts

JACKSON, Miss., Jan. 4 (AP) — Former Gov. Hugh White said today he plans to propose to the 1958 egislature what he called considerable expansion of the activities of the Agricultural and Industrial Board.

White, vice chairman of the board he fathered in his 1936-40 administration, said high on his list of proposals is an increased appropriation.

He did not detail his proposals but said:

"We can't do things to attract industry with the niggardly support we are getting financially from the Legislature. We can't stand up under these appropriations without more income.

"There must be some expansions and also some restrictions on the type of activities of the board.

"Agriculture in this state is on the blink. We must find supporting industry to take its place. New Industry will mean new income for the people and for the state and we certainly need new sources of income for both right now."

RADIO-TV REVENUE UP

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Federal Communications Commission (FCC) has reported broadcasting revenues totaled about $1,400,000,000 during 1956. The television industry's share amounted to nearly 900 million dollars. Combined radio and television profits in 1956 amounted to $238,800,000 after taxes, or a 21 per cent rise above 1955. Television profits for 1956 totaled $189,600,000 while radio profits amounted to $49,200,000 during the same year.

Wards' Clerks Set Strike For Monday Morning

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4 (AP) — Negotiations seeking to head off a threatened walkout of Montgomery Ward clerks broke down today and union leaders said a strike would start Monday in strategic areas." About 4,000 clerks are affected in more than 50 cities.

James A. Suffridge, president of the Retail Clerks International Assn., said the company made no satisfactory offer to union demands for a 10 cents an hour wage increase, a modified union shop, and overtime.

"We adjourned subject to call, but no further meetings are planned before the strike," said Suffridge.

Charles J. Barnhill, secretary and manager of labor relations for Ward, said the negotiations broke down because the union wanted to negotiate on a countrywide basis and the company insisted on local negotiations, taking into account local conditions.

The negotiating session was called by federal mediators in last hour efforts to avert a strike. The groups met last night and throughout today.

(C. W. Rousseau, local manager of the Montgomery Ward store, said the strike will not affect Monroe or the nearby area.)

Active Year Seen Ahead For Civil Service Board

BATON RCUGE, Jan. 4 (UP) — Human nature being what it is, the State Civil Service Commission is probably looking forward to another active year handling appeals of state employes who feel they were unjustly dismissed or suspended.

Records of the Commission show it handled appeals of 40 persons in 1957 and ordered the restoration of 10 to state payrolls, while confirming the firing or suspending of the other 30.

At least two of the cases are headed for state Supreme Court consideration.

Supreme Court to Review

One is to be heard by the state's top judicial court Jan. 10—that of Alva A. King ex-drivers' license administrator who was fired effective March 7 by the Department of Public Safety.

The other is the appeal of M.G. Munson, parks planning engineer, and Derr Carpenter, landscape architect, two of four state Parks and Recreation Commission employes fired in an economy move June 4.

King's dismissal was upheld by the Civil Service Commission May 24 in an unusual four-one decision. The majority held King's firing was proper because he went ahead and ordered repair work done on filing cabinets, over contrary orders from Col. Forrest Pendleton, head of the public safety department, and also because he did not supervise a drivers license office in Cameron parish properly.

Corbett Disagrees

But commission member Perry H. Corbett disagreed with chairman Moise Dennery and members Charles Rivet and E. B. Roberts. He said, "it is false economy to sacrifice valuable training and employment to mediocre misunderstanding. Such things should be resolved within the department with less drastic action...insubordination and poor supervision...has not been shown..."

The state parks firing will be heard by the state Supreme Court later this year. It is to come up again at the parks commission meeting Jan. 7 because the Smithsonian Institute has threatened to take back items on loan to the Marksville museum unless a curator is hired. One of the four fired was Robert S. Neitzel, the curator at the prehistoric Indian park.

The other was Carl E. Smithson, park maintenance superintendent. Neitzel and he did not appeal to the court.

Clark Made Headlines

The name of Elzie Clark, wildlife agent, reached the headlines Jan. 14 and again May 23. The first time the commission ordered the Wildlife commission to rehire him because the written notice of dismissal "contained vague and indefinite charges..." The second time it again ordered his reinstatement because "all of the causes relied upon for appellant's discharge were induced and incited by the investigator for the employing authority," and because the actions complained of were committed while Clark was off duty.

Another opinion against a wildlife department employe, Louis A. Domingue, ruled that he be fired because he "took an active part in the management and affairs of the campaign of a candidate for governor, during the 1955-56 campaign."

Clarkson D. Walker won back his job at the state penitentiary in an opinion dated May 23. The commission held the prison authorities did not prove he was the person from whom an inmate received contraband.

Chatelain Lost

But Ellis J. Chatelain, another state prison employe, lost his appeal in a decision August 28 when the commission said "an employe who absents himself from duty without obtaining approval of his authority does not possess the merit, efficiency, or fitness required of a person occupying a position in the state service."

On the same date, Charles P. James lost his appeal from dismissal as a state police trooper because he went into a neighboring state, in uniform, while not on duty.

And, finally, among other civil service cases which drew headlines was the appeal of Laura H. Humphries, an attendant at the State Colony and Training School at Pineville.

She was fired on grounds she had abandoned her position by refusing to report for work as assigned.

Mrs. Humphries objected to the hours, because they conflicted with family responsibilities, but the commission said "it is obvious that an employe cannot dictate her hours of employment, nor absent herself at pleasure from her duties. The operation of public institutions cannot be made to depend upon the convenience of employes."

Miss. Solons Meet Tuesday; See Tax Cuts

JACKSON, Miss., Jan. 4 (AP) — The Mississippi Legislature which meets in regular session Tuesday will be asked to make major tax cuts to encourage the state's industrialization.

Gradual reduction of the state income tax from 6 to 4 per cent was recommended today by a legislative study committee which said this would mean a "paper loss" of $3,750,000 in revenue for the next two years.

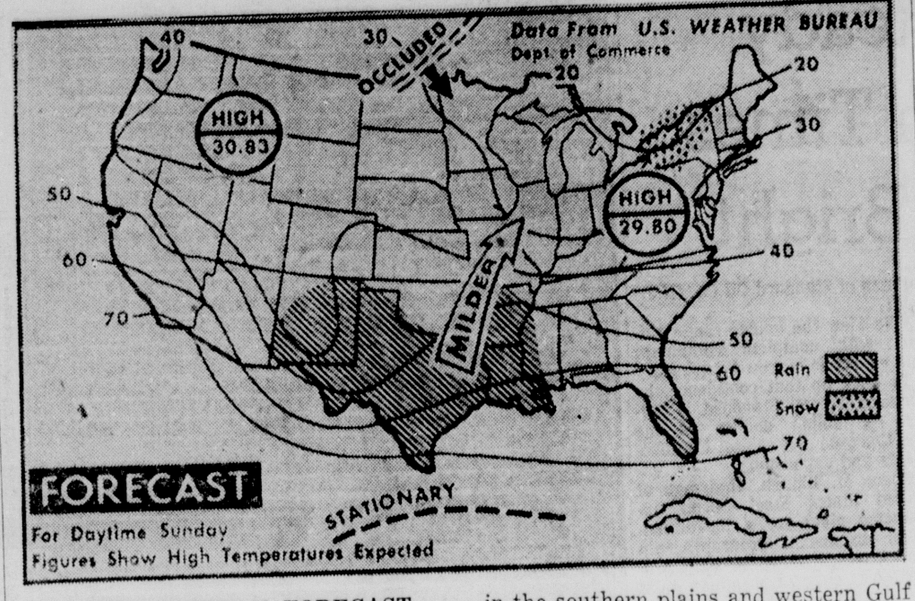
Actually the state would lose no revenue if the cuts had the expected effect of maintaining, or even accelerating, the state's industrial growth, the committee said. The reduction would be at the rate of ½ per cent a year.

The Temporary Fact-Finding Committee on Development of resources, headed by Sen. William L. Kling of Red Lick, said the state's tax structure is the principal factor discouraging growth of industry.

Taxes are just one of several controversial issues facing the legislators. There is pressure to reapportion legislative seats, which haven't been changed since 1890, and to raise teachers' salaries, now the lowest in the nation.

Gov. J. P. Coleman called a special session in November for the sole purpose of calling a convention to write a new constitution. Coleman said only a new constitution could preserve segregated schools, protect the state against the Civil Rights Act and encourage industry.

When the House killed his constitutional convention bill, Coleman said he would give the 1958 Legislature a chance to prove his critics' claims that the goals could be reached by constitutional amendments.



WEATHER BUREAU FORECAST — Snow flurries are forecast for northern New England, interior of New York state and in northwest Pennsylvania. Rain is expected in southern Florida and in the southern plains and western Gulf coast region. Generally fair weather will prevail over the remainder of the nation with clear to partly cloudy skies. # Eureka Springs Buildings Burn

EUREKA SPRINGS, Ark., Jan. 4 (AP)—Fire raged out of control nearly three hours here today and destroyed two large downtown buildings.

The early morning blaze destroyed a vacant frame building once used as a hotel and gutted a 3-story stone structure which housed the plant of the week'y Times Echo newspaper, offices of the Southwestern Gas and Electric Co. and Arkansas Western Gas Co., and the Nu-Ark rooming house.

A volunteer fireman, Jack Smith of Eureka Springs, was the only person reported injured. Six persons occupying the third-floor Nu-Ark rooming house escaped without injury.

BLOOD CURDLING PRICES

NOTTINGHAM, England (UP) —The parish magazine of St. Nicholas' Church carried the following book notice: "Do you like thrillers? Get the latest automobile assn. handbook. The hotel prices will curdle your blood."

Assembly Plans Aid Discussion

BILOXI, Miss., Jan. 4 (AP)—The Southern Assembly sponsored by Tulane University, will discuss the United States foreign aid program in four days of sessions beginning Thursday.

The assembly will be held in cooperation with the American Assembly of Columbia University.

About 60 citizens, representing various businesses and professions, will take part. They will be from Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, Oklahoma, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas and the District of Columbia.

Membership Filings Climb Over Year Ago

BATON ROUGE, Jan. 4 (AP) — Secretary of State Wade O. Martin Jr. said today 1957 membership lists filed to comply with an old law used to knock out the National Assn. for the Advancement of colored People were 45 per cent higher than in 1956.

The 1924 law, originally aimed at the Ku Klux Klan, requires membership lists filed annually between Dec. 16 and Dec. 31 by all except regularly organized churches and National Guard groups.

The law had not been enforced until 1956 when it was used to obtain a ban on NAACP activities, however, many NAACP units have complied with the law in the past two years.

Martin said his office received 1,555 lists in the period, compared with 839 in 1956.

"As was the case last year, however," he said, "the lists are continuing to come into the office after the deadline. They are being acknowledged and filed, just as last year, when some 1,000 lists came in after the legal filing period."

Martin said extra clerical help has been assigned to handle the flood of mail as lists came from garden clubs, car clubs, skin divers' clubs, parent-teacher groups, social and civic clubs and "an almost endless variety of others."

The largest single list, he said, came from the state P-TA organization, with 50,000 names and weighing more than 25 pounds.

Pay Raises For Miss. Judiciary Are Being Asked

JACKSON, Miss., Jan. 4 (AP) — Pay raises to compensate for an increased work load will be asked for Mississippi's Supreme, Circuit and Chancery court Judges.

The Board of Bar Commissioners of the Mississippi State Bar has adopted a resolution asking the 1958 Legislature which convenes Jan. 7 to boost judicial salaries to help attract and hold high-caliber attorneys to the bench.

Court officials have estimated the work load is increasing 15 to 20 per cent a year.

The present pay scale, compared with the proposed pay scale:

Chief Justice $13,500, increase to $19,000; presiding justice, $12,500, increase to $18,250; associate justices, $12,500, increase to $17,500; and Circuit and Chanery Court judges, $9,000, increase to $12,000.

In 1954, the Legislature raised Supreme Court justices from $11,000 by tacking additional duties onto the workload of the individual justices until their next terms of office began.

The new duties included advising the state librarian in the selection of law books to be purchased and studying existing law and recommending to the Legislature improvements in the administration of justice.

Navy Studies British Plane For Atom Engine

LONDON, Jan. 4 (UP) — The U. S. Navy has "approached" British authorities to investigate the possibilities of using Britains giant 10-engine flying boats for atom-powered planes, a Ministry of Supply spokesman said today.

Three of the 140-ton Princess flying boats have been in "mothballs" near Southampton for over three years. They were originally ordered by the Ministry of Supply at a cost of 28 million dollars.

The Daily Express today reported that the flying boats may be brought by the United States and modified as atomic-powered aircraft.

A&I Board To Get More Work, White Asserts

JACKSON, Miss., Jan. 4 (AP) — Former Gov. Hugh White said today he plans to propose to the 1958 egislature what he called considerable expansion of the activities of the Agricultural and Industrial Board.

White, vice chairman of the board he fathered in his 1936-40 administration, said high on his llst of proposals is an increased appropriation.

He did not detail his proposals but said:

"We can't do things to attract industry with the niggardly support we are getting financially from the Legislature. We can't stand up under these appropriations without more income.

"There must be some expansions and also some restrictions on the type of activities of the board.

"Agriculture in this state is on the blink. We must find supporting industry to take its place. New Industry will mean new income for the people and for the state and we certainly need new sources of income for both right now."

RADIO-TV REVENUE UP

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Federal Communications Commission (FCC) has reported broadcasting revenues totaled about $1,400,000,000 during 1956. The television industry's share amounted to nearly 900 million dollars. Combined radio and television profits in 1956 amounted to $238,800,000 after taxes, or a 21 per cent rise above 1955. Television profits for 1956 totaled $189,600,000 while radio profits amounted to $49,200,000 during the same year.

Wards' Clerks Set Strike For Monday Morning

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4 (AP) — Negotiations seeking to head off a threatened walkout of Montgomery Ward clerks broke down today and union leaders said a strike would start Monday in strategic areas." About 4,000 clerks are affected in more than 50 cities.

James A. Suffridge, president of the Retail Clerks International Assn., said the company made no satisfactory offer to union demands for a 10 cents an hour wage increase, a modified union shop, and overtime.

"We adjourned subject to call, but no further meetings are [illegible] before the strike," said Suffridge.

Charles J. Barnhill, secretary and manager of labor relations for Ward, said the negotiations broke down because the union wanted to negotiate on a countrywide basis and the company insisted on local negotiations, taking into account local conditions.

The negotiating session was called by federal mediators in last hour efforts to avert a strike. The groups met last night and throughout today.

Business Ready For Rough Times; Long Pull Bright

By WALTER BREEDE JR.

NEW YORK, Jan. 4 (AP)—Things look good over the long pull. But the next few months may be rough.

That's what businessmen were telling themselves this week as they turned their backs on 1957 and took the first cautious steps into a new year fraught with uncertainties and problems.

Many were in much better shape to survive the harsh business climate than they would have been a year ago. Inventories had been whittled down, overhead costs pared, expensive and unnecessary frills eliminated. After years of sitting back and taking orders, salesmen again were going out to sell. Business had shaken off the stultifying effects of its soft and easy boomtime existence. Going into 1958 the seasoned business firm was lean hard, and alert, and stripped for action.

Still Speck

With the dawn of the new year the upturn businessmen had long been hoping for was still little more than a speck on the far horizon. Consensus was that it would be at least six months in coming.

This week public officials and private businessmen took steps to hasten its arrival.

The federal government chartered plans for a stepped up defense program geared to the age of space. Defense Secretary Neil McElroy said military spending for the fiscal year starting July 1 will rise to about 40 billion dollars, a gain of 1½ billions over the current rate. Most of the increase will be channeled into the missiles program.

At the same time the government let it be known that the flow of dollars into the massive federal highway program will be increased this year.

New FHA Rules

In still another pump-priming move, field offices of the Federal Housing Authority were under orders to make it easier for low-income persons to get big FHA mortgages on new homes. Under the new rules, builders also can include the cost of air conditioners and kitchen appliances in the FHA mortgage package—an innovation that may spur lagging sales of refrigerators and automatic dishwashers beside boosting sales of homes.

Businessmen, too, plotted new sales strategy, and the emphasis here was on price. Ford Motor Co.'s Mercury Lincoln Division unveiled a new economy car, the Mercury Medalist. It will cost about $100 less than the present lowest-priced Mercury model and is designed to burn less gasoline.

Shirt manufacturers snipped a dollar from the suggested retail prices of cotton-dacron shirts for men. One such shirt now sells for $6.95 instead of $7.95. Radio Corp. of America in effect reduced prices of 11 color set models by instructing its dealers to boost the trade-in allowance on black and white sets.

Bigger Markets

While businessmen on all fronts battled for sales, top leaders in government and industry forecast bigger markets, wider opportunities, and generally better times in the not too distant future.

Acknowledging that the oil industry faces a serious oversupply problem now, Chairman Eugene Holman of Standard Oil Co. (N.J.) said:

"We view the longer range outlook with complete confidence that we are in a growth business."

To back up that confidence, he declared Jersey Standard is laying out 1¼ billion dollars on the line this year for capital improvements and expansion.

Roger M. Blough, chairman of United States Steel Corp., announcing plans for a 700-million-dollar expansion program, said the current letdown in steel production is only "a breathing point in long-range increase in steel demand."

Not So Rosy

Commerce Secretary Sinclair Weeks described business in 1957 as "spurt, then snag." In 1958, he said, it will be "mild dip, then climb," Said Weeks:

"The immediate economic situation may not be as rosy as we all want, but from where I sit the 12-month outlook is far better than nail-biting pessimists think. The shower isn't over yet, but the sun shows signs of breaking through the clouds."

Briefly over the business scene: Thanks to a quirk in the calendar, department store sales in Christmas week showed a 31 per cent gain over 1956. There was one more pre-holiday shopping day than in the same week a year ago when Christmas fell on Tuesday ... U.S. auto makers rolled out 6,115,467 cars last year. First-place Chevrolet nosed out Ford by a margin of 144 cars in the 1957 production race, but latest figures show Ford out in front in the retail sales derby ... F. W. Dodge Corp. reported an upturn in housing construction contracts in November ... The Assn. of American Railroads predicted that rail freight business in the first quarter of 1958 will trail the first three months of 1957 by 3.8 per cent ... According to the Commerce Clearing House, state taxes will keep on climbing this year. Income tax rates are slated to rise in Idaho, Indiana, Kansas and Montana. Higher gasoline taxes are due in Indiana, Nebraska, New Hampshire, Oklahoma, South Dakota, Utah and Vermont ... Here's what Americans paid for new and used cars last year: A total of 40 billion dollars.

M. Haas To Manage Insurance Dept.

The insurance and real estate firm of Faulk and Foster announced the appointment of Morris Haas, Jr., as manager of its insurance department.

A member of one of Monroe's older and more prominent families, Haas was for many years associated with his family in its clothing business here.

In preparing for his present occupation, he took the state insurance examination and scored one of the highest grades in Louisiana. Haas is licensed to write all kinds of fire, casualty and inland marine insurance.

As a veteran of World War II, he has long been interested in veterans affairs in the Twin Cities area, and is an officer of the American Legion post here.

In addition to his insurance activities, Haas is active in the real estate department of Faulk and Foster.

STOCK AVERAGE IN BIG GAIN — The Associated Press average of 60 stocks chalked up its biggest weekly gain since early December of 1956 when it closed at 159.0 from 154.3 a week ago. Led by grains, the commodity index advanced for the second straight week to 170.3 from 169.9 in the preceding period. (AP Wirephoto Chart.)

STOCKS RALLY

1957 Ends On Best Weekly Price Rise

NEW YORK, Jan. 4 (AP)—An astonished Wall Street today found itself with the biggest weekly advance in the stock market for more than a year.

The rise added an estimated $5,400,000,000 to quoted value of listed stocks, based on the advance in the Associated Press average.

The AP 60-stock average climbed $4.70 to $159.00, its best rise since the week ended Dec. 8, 1956.

None of the more talkative Wall Street analysts dared predict any such New Year's rally as they witnessed this week. Before it started the air was full of recession talk.

Some reinvestment demand was looked for and, for that reason, a bit of a bulge in prices, but nothing extraordinary. As things turned out, the reinvestment demand was eager enough to tilt prices upward much more abruptly.

Reinvestment demand was heightened by turbulent yearend transactions. The tax-loss selling Monday and Tuesday was the greatest within memory of Wall Street veterans. But there was considerable switching, too, on those final days of '57.

The last day of 1957 brought volume of 5,070,000 shares, second biggest of the year.

Prices of many blue chips had been hammered down before 1958 trading began Thursday. The end of the tax-loss selling removed the brakes and the market moved ahead in a quiet way. On Friday prices made their best gain of the week.

Reports from Washington showed the government was prepared to do some pump-priming to cure the business recession. The prospects were for bigger spending on defense and easier credit for new houses. In addition Wall Street expects the upcoming session of Congress to demand such measures as will relieve unemployment, ease credit and help business.

The five most active issues this week were Pennsylvania Railroad, up 1⅝ at 12¾; General Motors, up 2⅞ at 36¾; Bethlehem Steel, up 2 at 38⅛; Texas Gulf Sulphur, up 1½ at 16⅛; and Standard Oil (New Jersey), up ¼ at 50.

The corporate and U.S. government bond market began the new year by registering advances.

Grain Futures Close Higher

CHICAGO, Jan. 4 (AP)—Grain futures ended higher this week for the first time since early December.

A liquidation phase which featured trading the previous two weeks appeared to have run its course for the time being and all futures advanced on the Board of Trade as buying power reappeared.

Wheat finished the week 3 to 3⅝ cents a bushel higher than Friday a week ago. Corn wan up ⅝ to 2⅛ cents, oats advanced 1¼ to 2½ cents, rye was 3⅜ to 4 cents higher and soybeans ended 3 to 4⅞ cents up. Lard futures finished 10 cents lower to 10 cents higher per hundred pounds.

BUSINESS BRIEFS

Melvin F. Horn, northeast Louisiana manager for the Realsilk Company, has been honored along with 11 other outstanding salesmen at a banquet sponsored by the Fort Worth, Tex. Sales Executives Club and the Fort Worth Chamber of Commerce.

Horn, who has been with Realsilk for 17 years, received an impressive trophy awarded at the 29th annual Distinguished Salesmen's Award Banquet.

The annual John Deere Day observance to be held here Wednesday, January 8, will feature an entirely different program from previous ones.

Visitors to the John Deere Plow Company at 2006 DeSiard Street, will see the movie, "Oddities in Farming," an interesting success story on irrigation, and "What's New for '58" will show the latest in farm machinery. The feature picture is a humorous western musical.

The program starts at 9:30 o'clock in the morning, and is free to the public.

Ted Husser of Tangipahoa Parish has been employed as editor and advertising manager of the Catahoula News and Jonesville Booster in Catahoula Parish. He will replace Richard "Dick" White who has resigned to accept employment on the Citizen Watchman at Clinton.

Husser is former publisher and editor of the Kentwood News, located at Kentwood. A former state legislator of Tangipahoa Parish, he had worked as reporter for several Tangipahoa Parish weeklies prior to his venture into the publishing business.

Appointment of Bert H. Hambleton as advertising and sales promotion manager of Childs Big Chain was announced today by Alvin Childs, president.

Hambleton has been transferred from the general office of the Kroger Company in Cincinnati where he has been an account executive in the company's sales promotion and advertising department. His responsibility was that of staff representative to a number of Kroger Divisions throughout the middle west and south. Childs Big Chain, a division of the Kroger Company, operates 33 supermarkets in a three-state area including 2 in Monroe.

Southern Bell Telephone Company has paid Lincoln Parish and the City of Ruston a total of $59,002.40 in taxes for the year 1957.

E. D. Cowan, manager of the Ruston office of Southern Bell, presented Fred Wilder, parish tax collector, with a check for $45,782.80, and City Tax Collector L.G. Huey with a check for $13,219.60.

Lavelle Johnston, who for 15 years operated a jewelry repair service at Hunt and Whitaker's, is now established at 519 DeSiard Street, in Monroe Loan and Sporting Goods Company.

In addition to jewelry repair, Johnston will also conduct a pawn brokerage. His establishment will be open to serve the public Monday through Saturday.

TO SIGN PAPERS

HARTFORD, Conn., Jan. 3 (UP) — Gov. Abraham Ribicoff was expected to sign extradition papers today to return William J. Wright from Beaumont, Tex., to Coventry, Conn., to face charges of assault with intent to kill and robbery with violence.

Cotton Ends Week With Good Gains

NEW ORK, Jan. 4 (AP)—After plodding an irregular course, cotton finished the week with a final kick that swept all deliveries into higher ground.

Active futures contracts closed with net gains of 30 cents to $1.80 a bale. During Friday's rally all the new crop months scored new life-of-contract highs.

Buying most of the week reflected trade price fixing, short covering, and demand influenced by a 12-point rise in the mid-December parity price.

Offerings were furnished through hedge selling against purchases of Commodity Credit Corp. cotton and liquidation in the March contract, the latter reflecting a further rise in certificated cotton stocks.

Uncertainity about the outlook for new farm price legislation affected the market both ways.

On Friday, however, prices climbed sharply after Sen. Ellender (D-La) expressed the view it would not be advisable to enact any new farm price support legislation on a hasty or stop-gap basis. This strengthened many traders in the belief that no new legislation would be passed in time to affect the 1958 crop.

It was noted that in the absence of new legislation, there would be a good chance of a considerably higher loan rate next season. Estimates as to the probably loan rate on the 1958 crop ranged from 80 to 86 per cent of parity.

Actual exports of U.S. cotton in the week ended Tuesday were estimated by the New York Cotton Exchange Service Bureau at 100,000 bales, compared to 162,000 bales the previous week and 144,000 in the like year-ago week. For the current season through Dec. 31 exports were estimated at 2,187,000 bales vs. 3,000,000 bales at about the same time last neason.

G. E. Opening Sales Office On Breard St.

Opening of new sales offices and warehouse at No. 6-8 Breard Street on January , has been formally announced by General Electric Supply Company, a division of the General Electric Company.

This new facility will carry a complete stock of electrical supplies, apparatus, construction materials, electric housewares, appliances, radios, lamps and lighting products.

J. H. Braselton, district manager, explained that this action had long been considered, but was delayed because of lack of proper facilities. The new branch is one of approximately 50 such locations throughout the United States.

Braselton declared that the organization is optimistic over the new branch in Monroe, particularly in view of the industrial development, the home construction program and the general feeling of good business in this section of Louisiana.

It is the intention of the General Electric Supply Company to maintain complete and adequate stocks for electrical contractors, industrials, utilities and dealers in Monroe, making it unnecessary to go out of the area to fill requirements of materials, supplies and appliances.

P. L. Booker, who has been associated with the company for a number of years and who has travelled extensively in this territory, will be sales representative on construction materials, while L. E. Little will be the representative of resale items. The local operating manager will be G. F. Schilling, who was transferred from the Baton Rouge office to operate this new facility.

Business Ready For Rough Times; Long Pull Bright

By WALTER BREEDE JR.

NEW YORK, Jan 4 (AP)—Things look good over the long pull. But the next few months may be rough.

That's what businessmen were telling themselves this week as they turned their backs on 1957 and took the first cautious steps into a new year fraught with uncertainties and problems.

Many were in much better shape to survive the harsh business climate then they would have been a year ago. Inventories had been whittled down, overhead costs pared, expensive and unnecessary frills eliminated. After years of sitting back and taking orders, salesmen again were going out to sell. Business had shaken off the stulifying effects of its soft and easy boomtime existence. Going into 1958 the seasoned business firm was lean hard, and alert, and stripped for action.

Still Speck

With the dawn of the new year the upturn businessmen had long been hoping for was still little more than a speck on the far horizon. Consensus was that it would be at least six months in coming.

The federal government chartered plans for a stepped up defense program geared to the age of space. Defense Secretary Neil McElroy said military spending for the fiscal year starting July 1 will rise to about 40 billion dollars, a gain of 1½ billions over the current rate. Most of the increase will be channeled into the missiles program.

At the same time the government let it be known that the flow of dollars into the massive federal highway program will be increased this year.

New FHA Rules

In still another pump-priming move, field offices of the Federal Housing Authority were under orders to make it easier for low-income persons to get big FHA mortgages on new homes. Under the new rules, builders also can include the cost of air conditioners and kitchen appliances in the FHA mortgage package—an innovation that may spur lagging sales of refrigerators and automatic dishwashers beside boosting sales of homes.

Businessmen, too, plotted new sales strategy, and the emphasis here was on price. Ford Motor Co.'s Mercury Lincoln Division unveiled a new economy car, the Mercury Medalist. It will cost about $100 less than the present lowest-priced Mercury model and is designed to burn less gasoline.

Shirt manufacturers snipped a dollar from the suggested retail prices of cotton-dacron shirts for men. One such shirt now sells for $6.95 instead of $7.95. Radio Corp. of America in effect reduced prices of 11 color set models by instructing its dealers to boost the trade-in allowance on black and white sets.

Bigger Markets

While businessmen on all fronts battled for sales, top leaders in government and industry forecast bigger markets, wider opportunities, and generally better times in the not too distant future.

Acknowledging that the oil industry faces a serious oversupply problem now, Chairman Eugene Holman of Standard Oil Co. (N.J.) said:

"We view the longer range outlook with complete confidence that we are in a growth business."

To back up that confidence, he declared Jersey Standard is laying 1¼ billion dollars on the line this year for capital improvements and expansion.

Roger M. Blough, chairman of United States Steel Corp., announcing plans for a 700-million-dollar expansion program, said the current letdown in steel production is only "a breathing point in long-range increase in steel demand."

Not So Rosy

Commerce Secretary Sinclair Weeks described business in 1957 as "spurt, then snag." In 1958, he said, it will be "mild dip, then climb." Said Weeks:

"The immediate economic situation may not be as rosy as we all want, but from where I sit the 12-month outlook is far better than nail-biting pessimists think. The shower isn't over yet, but the sun shows signs of breaking through the clouds."

Briefly over the business scene: Thanks to a quirk in the calendar, department store sales in Christmas week showed a 31 per cent gain over 1956. There was one more pre-holiday shopping day than in the same week a year ago when Christmas fell on Tuesday ... U.S. auto makers rolled out 6,115,467 cars last year. First-place Chevrolet nosed out Ford by a margin of 144 cars in the 1957 production race, but latest figures show Ford out in front in the retail sales derby ... F. W. Dodge Corp. reported an upturn in housing construction contracts in November ... The Assn. of American Railroads predicted that rail freight business in the first quarter of 1958 will trail the first three months of 1957 by 3.8 per cent ... According to the Commerce Clearing House, state taxes will keep on climbing this year. Income tax rates are slated to rise in Idaho, Indiana, Kansas and Montana. Higher gasoline taxes are due in Indiana, Nebraska, New Hampshire, Oklahoma, South Dakota, Utah and Vermont ... Here's what Americans paid for new and used cars last year: A total of 40 billion dollars.

M. Haas To Manage Insurance Dept.

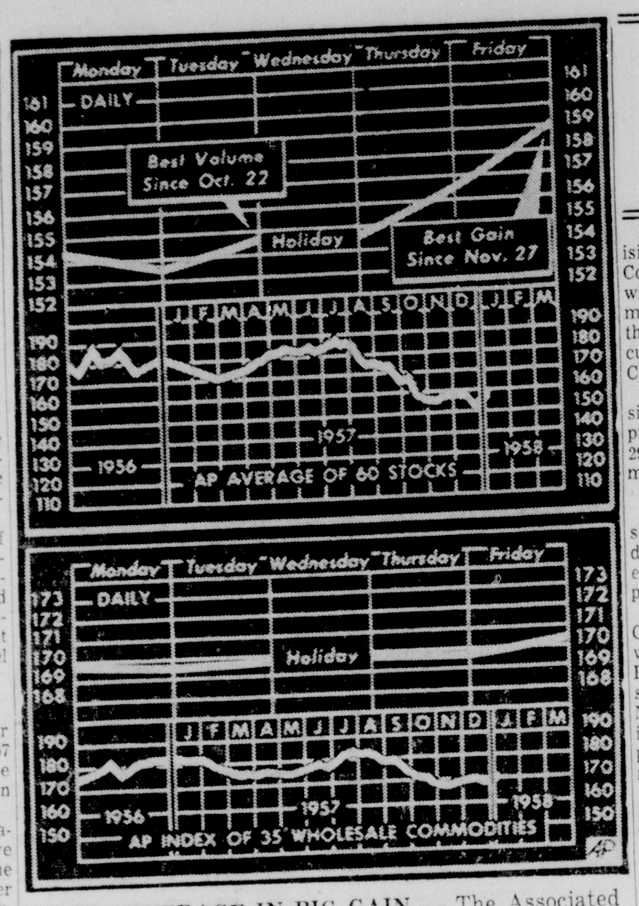
The insurance and real estate firm of Faulk and Foster announced the appointment of Morris Haas, Jr., as manager of its insurance department.

A member of one of Monroe's older and more prominent families, Haas was for many years associated with his family in its clothing business here.

In preparing for his present occupation, he took the state insurance examination and scored one of the highest grades in Louisiana. Haas is licensed to write all kinds of fire, casualty and inland marine insurance.

As a veteran of World War II, he has long been interested in veterans affairs in the Twin Cities area, and is an officer of the American Legion post here.

In addition to his insurance activities, Haas is active in the real estate department of Faulk and Foster.



STOCK AVERAGE IN BIG GAIN — The Associated Press average of 60 stocks chalked up its biggest weekly gain since early December of 1956 when it closed at 159.0 from 154.3 a week ago. Led by grains, the commodity index advanced for the second straight week to 170.3 from 169.9 in the preceding period. (AP Wirephoto Chart.)

STOCKS RALLY

1957 Ends On Best Weekly Price Rise

NEW YORK, Jan. 4 (AP)—An astonished Wall Street today found itself with the biggest weekly advance in the stock market for more than a year.

The rise added an estimated $5,400,000,000 to quoted value of listed stocks, based on the advance in the Associated Press average.

The AP 60-stock average climbed $4.70 to $159.00, its best rise since the week ended Dec. 8, 1956.

None of the more talkative Wall Street analysts dared predict any such New Year's rally as they witnessed this week. Before it started the air was full of recession talk.

Some reinvestment demand was looked for and, for that reason, a bit of a bulge in prices, but nothing extraordinary. As things turned out, the reinvestment demand was eager enough to tilt prices upward much more abruptly.

Reinvestment demand was heightened by turbulent yearend transactions. The tax-loss selling Monday and Tuesday was the greatest within memory of Wall Street veterans. But there was considerable switching, too, on those final days of '57.

The last day of 1957 brought volume of 5,070,000 shares, second biggest of the year.

Prices of many blue chips had been hammered down before 1958 trading began Thursday. The end of the tax-loss selling removed the brakes and the market moved ahead in a quiet way. On Friday prices made their best gain of the week.

Reports from Washington showed the government was prepared to do some pump-priming to cure the business recession. The prospects were for bigger spending on defense and easier credit for new houses. In addition Wall Street expects the upcoming session of Congress to demand such measures as will relieve unemployment, ease credit and help business.

The five most active issues this week were Pennsylvania Railroad, up 1⅛ at 12¾; General Motors, up 2⅞ at 36⅜; Bethlehem Steel, up 2 at 38⅛; Texas Gulf Sulphur, up 1¼ at 16⅛; and Standard Oil (New Jersey), up ¼ at 50.

The corporate and U.S. government bond market began the new year by registering advances.

Grain Futures Close Higher

CHICAGO, Jan. 4 (AP)—Grain futures ended higher this week for the first time since early December.

A liquidation phase which featured trading the previous two weeks appeared to have run its course for the time being and all futures advanced on the Board of Trade as buying power reappeared.

Wheat finished the week 3 to3⅝ cents a bushel higher than Friday a week ago. Corn wan up ⅝ to 2⅛ cents, oats advanced 1¼ to 2½ cents, rye was 3⅜ to 4 cents higher and soybeans ended 3 to 4⅞ cents up. Lard futures finished 10 cents lower to 10 cents higher per hundred pounds.

BUSINESS BRIEFS

Melvin F. Horn, northeast Louisiana manager for the Realsilk Company, has been honored along with 11 other outstanding salesmen at a banquet sponsored by the Fort Worth, Tex. Sales Executives Club and the Fort Worth Chamber of Commerce.

Horn, who has been with Realsilk for 17 years, received an impressive trophy awarded at the 29th annual Distinguished Salesmen's Award Banquet.

Lavelle Johnston, who for 15 years operated a jewelry repair service at Hunt and Whitaker's, is now established at 519 DeSiard Street, in Monroe Loan and Sporting Goods Company.

In addition to jewelry repair, Johnston will also conduct a pawn brokerage. His establishment will be open to serve the public Monday through Saturday.

TO SIGN PAPERS

HARTFORD, Conn., Jan. 3 (UP) — Gov. Abraham Ribicoff was expected to sign extradition papers today to return William J. Wright from Beaumont, Tex., to Coventry, Conn., to face charges of assault with intent to kill and robbery with violence.

Cotton Ends Week With Good Gains

NEW ORK, Jan. 4 (AP)—After plodding an irregular course, cotton finished the week with a final kick that swept all deliveries into higher ground.

Active futures contracts closed with net gains of 30 cents to $1.80 a bale. During Friday's rally all the new crop months scored new life-of-contract highs.

Buying most of the week reflected trade price fixing, short covering, and demand influenced by a 12-point rise in the mid-December parity price.

Offerings were furnished through hedge selling against purchases of Commodity Credit Corp. cotton and liquidation in the March contract, the latter reflectiig a further rise in certificated cotton stocks.

Uncertainity about the outlook for new farm price legislation affected the market both ways.

On Friday, however, prices climbed sharply after Sen. Ellender (D-La) expressed the view it would not be advisable to enact any new farm price support legislation on a hasty or stop-gap basis. This strengthened many traders in the belief that no new legislation would be passed in time to affect the 1958 crop.

It was noted that in the absence of new legislation, tnere would be a good chance of a considerably higher loan rate next season. Estimates as to the probably loan rate on the 1958 crop ranged from 80 to 86 per cent of parity.

Actual exports of U.S. cotton in the week ended Tuesday were estimated by the New York Cotton Exchange Service Bureau at 100,000 bales, compared to 162,000 bales the previous week and 144,000 in the like year-ago week. For the current season through Dec. 31 exports were estimated at 2,187,000 bales vs. 3,000,000. bales at about the same time last neason.

G. E. Opening Sales Office On Breard St.

Opening of new sales offices and warehouse at No. 6-8 Breard Street on January , has been formally announced by General Electric Supply Company, a division of the General Electric Company.

This new facility will carry a complete stock of electrical supplies, apparatus, construction materials, electric housewares, appliances, radios, lamps and lighting products.

J. H. Braselton, district manager, explained that this action had long been considered, but was delayed because of lack of proper facilities. The new branch is one of approximately 50 such locations throughout the United States.

Braselton declared that the organization is optimistic over the new branch in Monroe, particularly in view of the industrial development, the home construction program and the general feeling of good business in this section of Louisiana.

It is the intention of the General Electric Supply Company to maintain complete and adequate stocks for electrical contractors, industrials, utilities and dealers in Monroe, making it unnecessary to go out of the area to fill requirements of materials, supplies and appliances.

P. L. Booker, who has been associated with the company for a number of years and who has travelled extensively in this territory, will be sales representative on construction materials, while L. E. Little will be the representative of resale items. The local operating manager will be G. F. Schilling, who was transferred from the Baton Rouge office to operate this new facility.

Alpine Glacier Pilot Is A Swiss National Hero

By HANNS NEUERBOURG

SION, Switzerland, Jan. 4 (AP) — Herman Geiger has become a Swiss national hero by risking his life as daily routine in an exclusive and hazardous calling of his own creation.

As an Alpine glacier pilot, the stocky, dark-haired Swiss probably has snatched more mountaineers from death at high altitudes than any other man alive.

He has landed more than 15,000 times on stamp-size snowfields high in the Alps, pitting his skill and courage against tricky mountain gales that threaten to dash his small plane on the rocks.

One of his biggest rescues was in 1954 when he saved eight avalanche victims. Circling over the scene, he noticed a ski sticking out of the snow. He went down immediately, dug out a villager alive and flew him to hospital. He returned with a dog trained to trace avalanche victims. Seven more were freed alive.

Saving lives is only a sideline for Geiger, who runs the small civil airport of this medieval Rhone Valley town. His main job is flying supplies to isolated cabins, snowbound villages or high-altitude power projects.

Sometimes, Geiger lands on a 10,000-foot-high glacier just to deliver a few score bottles of mineral water. Or he takes a baby carriage to the wife of a cabin keeper. Or he risks his life so that a merry group of mountain tourists can throw a wine-drinking party.

He also teaches scores of Swiss and foreign students the art of glacier landing.

"My mind was on flying as long as I can think," Geiger says. "And it's still not only my job but my hobby. I haven't had any vacation for 15 years. If I had any, I would spend it flying."

Geiger was born in 1914, the son of a village joiner near Sion. He grew up with 12 sisters and brothers. One day, his father took him to watch an exhibition flight. He was only 10 years old, but what he saw determined his future career.

He became an apprentice mechanic. Soon he built and flew a glider. He paid for his first motor flight lessons from tips earned working in a filling station. The airport hired him as mechanic and, a few years later, he was a licensed flying instructor.

After World War II, hydropower projects sprang up in the Alps and Geiger began dropping bags of cement, bricks, spare parts and even dynamite to the workers, often cut off from the outside during snow-rich winters.

Once, he was assigned to drop a 26,000 franc ($6,190) payroll for more than a hundred workers. Because of a faulty mechanism, the money went down before he reached the target area. After a two-day search and some nasty remarks, the money was found in the snow.

Mishaps like that led Geiger into thinking about landings on glaciers. He was convinced it was possible. Francois Durrafour, the French daredevil, had landed in the Mont Blanc area in 1921. A German, Ernst Udet, had come down successfully in the Swiss Alps 13 years later.

"Our glaciers and snow fields are the best airports nature could give to us," Geiger told friends. "Why shouldn't we use them?"

The friends warned him it was folly. But Geiger fitted his Piper Cub with skis, operated by a hydraulic lift of his own design so he could take off on wheels but land on the snow crust.

One day in May, 1952, he climbed to the 9,240-foot Kanderfirn Glacier and paced the field until he knew every inch of it. Next day, he got up before sunrise and flew up. He came down on a five-degree slope for a perfect landing. He made four more landings and then flew home to tell his blonde, blue-eyed wife.

Since that day ,Geiger has landed on more than 2,000 different fields, some less than 200 feet long and 100 feet wide. His highest landing was made on the 14,421-foot Monte Rosa Glacier.

Most of his flights are supply missions. But it is often on these flights that a rescue operation is initiated by his sharp eye. Many times, he locates the bodies of mountaineers missing for weeks. But as often, his fire-engine red plane spells new life to a half-frozen climber.

Most mercy missions start with an emergency phone call to Sion Airport. In most cases, the victims are resting comfortably in a Sion Hospital bed less than two hours after being spotted.

Once he spotted a mountain guide who appeared to be sitting comfortably in the snow. A second look showed the guide was holding a rope. The rope held two tourists dangling over a deep ravine, but the guide had been unable to pull them up by himself. With Geiger's help, the two were soon hauled to safety. Both were badly inured and flown to Sion immediately.

If the weather is favorable, Geiger's red plane can be seen taking off up to 30 times a day on supply or rescue flights. The takeoffs must be sandwiched between military flights of shrieking Swiss Army jets stationed on the military side of Sion Airport, Geiger's day frequently stretches to 15, even 17 hours.

His landing technique may seem simple to non-fliers, but not to experts.

"It took a lot of nerves and courage to start this thing," says Col. John C. Habecker, of Upland, Calif., air attache of the U.S. embassy in Bern after his maiden landing on a glacier.

American Ambassador Henry J. Taylor, also a recent passenger, is convinced that Geiger "is the best flier in the world."

Ironically, the Swiss armed forces once rejected Geiger's application for flight duty. They said he was unfit.

Atomic Exhibit To Be Shown In Delhi Thurs.

DELHI (Special) — The U. S. Atomic Energy Commission's newest traveling exhibit will be shown in Delhi Thursday, the Delhi Jaycees announced yesterday.

The exhibit is a self - contained, walk - through mobile unit housed in a modern bus - type vehicle that will be shown at various points in the city. Entitled "Atoms for Peace," it is the latest in a series of traveling atomic energy exhibits prepared by the U. S. Atomic Energy Commission as a part of its many programs to bring the latest information on atomic energy to the general public in a concise, easy - to - understand form.

The exhibit is one of four "Atoms for Peace" mobile units now touring the country under the sponsorship of the National University Extension Association and the National Junior Chamber of Commerce. Showings throughout Louisiana are being handled by the State Extension Department and Louisiana Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Role of Atom

Visitors to the exhibit will in a relatively short period of time, obtain a comprehensive picture of the many ways in which the peaceful atom is playing a more-and-more important role in our everyday life. A series of panels, several of them operated by the the spectator himself, explain research and development in the atomic energy field, ranging from the mining and refining of radioactive ores to the construction of nuclear reactors designed to provide power.

In addition, the visitor will learn some of the many uses of radioisotopes — the so - called "tracer atoms" — in medicine, agriculture, and industry. The exhibit also contains actual samples of radioactive ore, simulated elements, reactor control rods, radiation - detection devices and other materials.

There will not be an admission charge.

WOMEN OVER 40

After 40, the pace of modern living—the worry and tension—begins to tell on most of us. Often this leads to improper diet and irregularity due to lack of bulk.

If this is your trouble, you can get safe, effective relief with just a daily half-cup of Kellogg's All-Bran with milk. Delicious All-Bran gets at irregularity from lack of bulk the natural way . . . without resorting to habit-forming laxative drugs. Gives you important nutritional benefits, too.

Try it 10 days and get that regular feeling again. Kellogg's All-Bran with milk.

LIVELY SEASON

Many From Area Attend Concerts

By JOHN CALE
Staff Writer

The opening half of the 1957-58 season of the livelier arts — music and theatre — closed with the ringing out of the old year and the ringing up of the gains in the cash register.

The Northeast Louisiana area box offices felt the effects of people wanting to "get out and go somewhere" to see or hear something.

Though the tendency of concert goers follows a pattern to leave town to see "really good" attractions, Twin City Concerts' opener — Richard Cass, pianist — delighted a sizeable audience at Neville auditorium Oct. 26. Playing virtually the same selections, Cass had a like effect on the New York critics at his debut recital in Town Hall six weeks after he performed here.

Wrote the critic for "Musical America":

If there could be a bel canto school of pianism, Richard Cass would be among the strong exponents. His tone sings with warmth, in sound of great beauty.

This month's offering for membership holders in the local concert association is the concert of Metropolitan Opera soprano, Eleanor Steber, at Neville auditorium on Jan. 30.

By reciprocal arrangement with the associations at Crossett, Ark., and Alexandria, the former offers Joseph Battista, pianist, on Jan. 9, and the latter Vienna on Parade, on Jan. 24. The last mentioned attraction includes a military band, street cafe music, Strauss waltzes, zithers and Viennese Fraulein.

With its center of operations at Northeast State College, the Twin City Symphony Orchestra launched its fifth season last fall. A wet night and a heavy Beethoven Fifth Symphony marked the organization's first concert, but a pre-Christmas affair — featuring a large children's choir and piano soloist Margaret Allene — attracted a large and generally appreciative audience. One source revealed the orchestra's string section underwent a thorough "wood-shedding" prior to the second concert, and results were gratifying. The next concert by the group is set for Feb. 6, with Leroy Anspach, pianist, and Eloise Anspach, soprano, soloists.

A substantial number of local music lovers joined the caravan on Highway 80 to witness La Traviata by the NBC Opera Company in Louisiana Tech's Howard Auditorium. There were mixed reactions to this Italian opera being given in English with the more sensitive listeners opposing translations into English for the sake of understanding the words. This opinion was not shared by all, however, and both matinee and evening performances of the famous Verdi work may be chalked up as highlights of the area's musical offerings for this year.

The following week, the Tech Concert Association presented the Scottish "Black Watch" band and pipers to a full gymnasium. The precision dances and drills of these kilted Scotsmen caused one critic to declare they made all college and high school half-time shows appear "positively unrehearsed" by comparison. Next on the Tech menu will be the Dublin Players, who will appear Jan. 10, followed by Nathan Milstein, violinist on Jan. 16.

A trend which "too will pass away," has pushed its way into the theatre in the form of the narcotics needle. Several plays have been propelled along their respective courses — always appropriately tragic — by a central figure addicted to or overpowered by drugs.

Tragedy and heavy drama are vital to the stage, though America has a better reputation at home and abroad in the sophisticated comedy bracket. The recent success of Meredith Wilson's "The Music Man," a rural musical set in early 1900 speaks well of the nation's ability to laugh at itself.

The same held true of the Monroe Little Theatre's performance of The Reluctant Debutante. Though set in England, the American — even Louisiana — slant on coming - out parties in this production struck home and funny bone and got the organization off to a fine start for its twenty-sixth season.

In making the logical selection of a tragedy for the second production, the Little Theatre went with the trend and selected a current narcotics tragedy "Hatful of Rain." Excellent acting on the part of Chuck Morgan, Beth Breese and Bill Holland could not rouse the essential feelings of pity, fear, error or justification — the elements of tragic emotion — to the audience, with the fault lying in the work itself.

With an eye trained for variety as well as quality, the Little Theatre's next production will be a musical "The Boy Friend."

Actually, the better half of the 1957-58 season is yet to come, since the first half sees most organizations either balancing budgets or lining up engagements. Locally or as far afield as one would like to venture, there will be plenty to get dressed - up and go to in 1958.

LIVELY SEASON

Many From Area Attend Concerts

By JOHN CALE
Staff Writer

The opening half of the 1957-58 season of the livelier arts — music and theatre — closed with the ringing out of the old year and the ringing up of the gains in the cash register.

The Northeast Louisiana area box offices felt the effects of people wanting to "get out and go somewhere" to see or hear something.

Though the tendency of concert goers follows a pattern to leave town to see "really good" attractions, Twin City Concerts' opener — Richard Cass, pianist — delighted a sizeable audience at Neville auditorium Oct. 26. Playing virtually the same selections, Cass had a like effect on the New York critics at his debut recital in Town Hall six weeks after he performed here.

Wrote the critic for "Musical America":

If there could be a bel canto school of pianism, Richard Cass would be among the strong exponents. His tone sings with warmth, in sound of great beauty.

This month's offering for membership holders in the local concert association is the concert of Metropolitan Opera soprano, Eleanor Steber, at Neville auditorium on Jan. 30.

By reciprocal arrangement with the associations at Crossett, Ark., and Alexandria, the former offers Joseph Battista, pianist, on Jan. 9, and the latter Vienna on Parade, on Jan. 24. The last mentioned attraction includes a military band, street cafe music, Strauss waltzes, zithers and Viennese Frauleins.

With its center of operations at Northeast State College, the Twin City Symphony Orchestra launched its fifth season last fall. A wet night and a heavy Beethoven Fifth Symphony marked the organization's first concert, but a pre-Christmas affair — featuring a large children's choir and piano soloist Margaret Allene — attracted a large and generally appreciative audience. One source revealed the orchestra's string section underwent a thorough "wood-shedding" prior to the second concert, and results were gratifying. The next concert by the group is set for Feb. 6, with Leroy Anspach, pianist, and Eloise Anspach, soprano, soloists.

A substantial number of local music lovers joined the caravan on Highway 80 to witness La Traviata by the NBC Opera Company in Louisiana Tech's Howard Auditorium. There were mixed reactions to this Italian opera being given in English with the more sensitive listeners opposing translations into English for the sake of understanding the words. This opinion was not shared by all, however, and both matinee and evening performances of the famous Verdi work may be chalked up as highlights of the area's musical offerings for this year.

The following week, the Tech Concert Association presented the Scottish "Black Watch" band and pipers to a full gymnasium. The precision dances and drills of these kilted Scotsmen caused one critic to declare they made all college and high school half-time shows appear "positively unrehearsed" by comparison. Next on the Tech menu will be the Dublin Players, who will appear Jan. 10, followed by Nathan Milstein, violinist on Jan. 16.

A trend which "too will pass away," has pushed its way into the theatre in the form of the narcotics needle. Several plays have been propelled along their respective courses — always appropriately tragic — by a central figure addicted to or overpowered by drugs.

Tragedy and heavy drama are vital to the stage, though America has a better reputation at home and abroad in the sophisticated comedy bracket. The recent success of Meredith Wilson's "The Music Man," a rural musical set in early 1900 speaks well of the nation's ability to laugh at itself.

The same held true of the Monroe Little Theatre's performance of The Reluctant Debutante. Though set in England, the American — even Louisiana — slant on coming - out parties in this production struck home and funny bone and got the organization off to a fine start for its twenty-sixth season.

In making the logical selection of a tragedy for the second production, the Little Theatre went with the trend and selected a current narcotics tragedy "Hatful of Rain." Excellent acting on the part of Chuck Morgan, Beth Breese and Bill Holland could not rouse the essential feelings of pity, fear, error or justification — the elements of tragic emotion — to the audience, with the fault lying in the work itself.

With an eye trained for variety as well as quality, the Little Theatre's next production will be a musical "The Boy Friend."

Actually, the better half of the 1957-58 season is yet to come, since the first half sees most organizations either balancing budgets or lining up engagements. Locally or as far afield as one would like to venture, there will be plenty to get dressed - up and go to in 1958.

4- Day Work Week Possibility Aired

Editor's note: Dr. William H. Wesson, Jr., associate professor of economics at Louisiana State University, here presents an informative discussion of the four-day work week, which labor may present as a major issue in 1958.

By DR. W. H. WESSON JR.

"So long as there is one man who seeks employment and cannot find it, the hours of work are too long."

Though Walter Reuther is today's principal advocate of the shorter work week, he didn't make this statement. The words are those of Samuel Gompers, before the American Federation of Labor's convention in 1887. There was no such thing as automation then or in 1924 when Gompers' death ended his 37-year presidency of the AFL, but there was fear of unemployment from inventions and other changes in technology. Therefore, Gompers argued that shortening hours and sharing work were the solutions for the problems of technological employment, and so argues Reuther today in the face of increasing use of labor - saving automated processes.

Automation might make the four - day week, or less, necessary to prevent mass unemployment. On the other hand, it might make the shorter work week possible for virtually all workers, without any significant degree of tecanological unemployment having occurred. Reuther's somewhat pessimistic view of the results of increasing automation are countered by arguments of the National Association of Manufacturers that the fruits will be tremendous increases in leisure and the standard of living, plus jobs for all. More objective studies of automation foresee problems of employment, but point to ways of dealing with them.

Reduced Working Time

Events of recent months have heightened interest in the possible early coming of the four - day week. Reuther promised to model 1958 contract demands of the United Automobile Workers if car manufacturers would reduce prices $100. This raised speculation that he might not ask for the shorter work week at this time if the auto makers join in the bargain with him. It is probable he will press all the harder for reduced working time now that Harlow Curtice of General Motors and Henry Ford, II, have said "No" and have also rebuffed Reuther for not launching an anti-inflationary campaign of restraint in wage demands.

Though Reuther has not always obtained his goals, his high percentage of successes in the past indicates that his four - day week demand is going to receive very serious attention.

Reuther also has pointed to the necessity of rapidly growing consumer purchasing if society is actually to enjoy the much larger volume of goods automation will make possible. His program for growth of consumer buying includes not only agreement of employers to wage increases, guaranteed wages, and price reductions for their products but also government policies of improved Social Security benefits and of encouragement to investment. There is a parable going the rounds concerning Reuther's visit to an automated plant for car engines. A company official pointed to the machines and asked Reuther, "How are you going to collect union dues from those guys?" Reuther answered, "How are you going to get them to buy cars?"

Health Hazard

If Reuther sets off a campaign for a four - day week, its motives will have similarities to some past attempts to obtain hours reductions but there will be differences also. It is not likely that advocates of the shorter work week will say present hours constitute a health hazard for employees, nor that these hours are so long they prevent workers from adequately participating in public affairs, community activities, and cultural pursuits.

The eight - hour day and five-day week have not yet, however, pulled the teeth of another frequently - repeated reason for work week reduction. This is the lump-of-labor argument, which holds that there is only a limited amount of work available and that it should be shared by as many workers and over as long a time as possible. Though Reuther's testimony to a congressional committee in October, 1955, used more sophisticated phrasing, significantly he stated that the shorter work week could be a "shock absorber" against automation through increasing manpower requirements. Individual unions long have used the lump-of-labor assumption in spreading out work for their members; now Reuther would apply it for workers generally as an assault on technological unemployment.

Automated machinery has already begun to displace workers, though so far they have been largely absorbed in o her tasks. It can have many other effects, however. Entire plants can be "displaced," thereby disrupting the economic life of communities in which these obsolete facilities are located. Some workers will not lose employment but will be downgraded in classification. Time-consuming and sometimes disheartening retraining will be required for many. Retraining may not be sufficient to keep older persons at work. Some cannot absorb it or rebel against taking it; others will not be provided retraining because of the cost of re-equipping workers with skills that will be used only a few years before their retirement. Further, many new job classifications created by automation require young, inexperienced workers adept at following instruction and no' habituated to undesired work patterns.

Finally, a person displaced from a position today usually loses not only wages but also valuable job rights such as seniority, accumulated pension rights, and vacation privileges.

Lessens Labor Requisites

Automation increases the capital requirements but lessens the labor requisites of industry. Thus, the presence of labor surpluses becomes a less necessary condition for location of new plants, a fact which may react unfavorably for the economic development of sections of the country seeking industry.

There are, however, bright spots in the outlook for the automation age. A number of new job classes will open for operators and maintenance men for the new machines. These will call for higher skills and training levels for specialized engineers and scientists. The means of lessening the damage of unemployment, if it occurs, are greater than in past eras: unemployment compensation and Social Security payments will provide income for those without work, and the state employment services will aid them in obtaining new jobs. None of these buffers against loss of work existed before 1930.

Public understanding of the problems of unemployment is far greater now than in the past and there is more likely to be a feeling of public responsibility for maintaining jobs and minimizing unemployment and its accompanying problems. Indeed, the Employment Act of 1946 commits the Federal Government to a policy of maintaining full employment by means consistent with the preservation of a basically free, private enterprise system. Finally, the prospects of the automation age are bright because of the tremendous possibilities for production of new and more and better goods, plus the potential for ever increasing leisure.

Automation Effects

The effects of automation on employers have received only secondary attention alongside the discussions of its impact on labor. The huge capital requirements may drive many small firms out of business and produce further concentration of control in some industries with a few firms. Industries with processes which cannot be readily automated may suffer loss of sales because their products become relatively high-priced when compared with the efficiently - produced and low-priced output of automation. Firms using automation will face difficult decisions on abandoning or consolidating plants.

If work-week lengths are reduced, scheduling of plant activities will undergo enormous change. For example, a four-day week would mean that plants operating continuously would need five groups of workers rather than four. If a six-hour day were adopted instead, four groups instead of three would be needed for 24-hour operation. The expensiveness and probably rapid obsolescence of automated capital equipment will increase the desirability of operating plants continuously.

In guessing whether the four-day work week will come about, one can point first to the historical trend in working hours. Successive declines from "sun-up to sundown" work to 12 hours, from 12 hours to 10, and from 10 to 8 have occurred; likewise customary Sunday work was dropped and then the sixth day to establish the present five-day pattern.

Twin Cities basketball teams which have been picking up seasoning for the most part begin to "play for keeps" within the week.

Coach Lennie Fant's Northeast State Indians open their Gulf States Conference race next Saturday night against Southeastern at Hammond after the Tribe experiences probably its sternest test of the season against mighty Arkansas State here tomorrow night in the Ouachita gym. The Arkansas culb recently was ranked 21st in an Associated Press national poll and drew three first place votes. Behind the Southeastern league opener, Northeast follows with McNeese here January 14 and Northwestern at Natchitoches, January 18, before a lull of two non-conference foes before returning to G.S.C. competition in February.

One of the hottest high school basketball rivalries of the 1956-57 campaign will be renewed Tuesday night at Jonesboro when the Neville High Tigers of Monroe tangle with the Jonesboro-Hodge Tigers in a district 2-AA conference opener. Neville will be opening defense of its state title, and J-H will be opening defense of its district crown, an unusual situation for members of the same district. They tied for the district title in regular play last year with J-H winning in a playoff. District runners-up are permitted to continue in bi-district play, and Neville and J-H went all the way through bi-district and regional to windup in the state title game, won by Neville.

The Monroe Tigers lost Bob Mosley and Johnny Blake by graduation, and now have regular Francis Genusa on the shelf with a sprained ankle, but J-H lost All-America high school star Charles Pixley so it could be another tough series.

Neville meets Haynesville there Friday night in another double-A scrap before returning home for a Saturday morning appearance in the Ouachita tournament.

Herb Holliman's Ouachita Lions join the West Monroe Rebs of Coach L. V. Norris in a 1-AAA conference opener here Tuesday night in the Ouachita gym, making it a full night for twin city cage powers as they start conference contention. They all get together again in the Thursday-Friday-Saturday Ouachita tourney.

And, while on this basketball subject, meet the area cage officials:

More than 600 basketball officials have registered with the Louisiana High School Athletic Association for this season, according to Commissioner T. H. Waters, who has about 100 officials for this section of the state and its immediate fringe area.

The association, listing men and women, rates the officials in two classes, those who have passed part one of the National Federation basketball rules test and those who have passed parts one and two. Over two thirds of the officials in this section have passed both tests.

Area rated officials are:

Hawaii All-Stars Favored In Hula

HONOLULU, Jan. 4 (UP)—The stage was set today for the 12th annual Hula Bowl Sunday, pitting the nation's top collegians as underdogs against a Hawaii All-Star team studded with top professionals.

However with top drawer coaching talen in the person of the Air Force Academy's Buck Shaw the collegians could upset the dope. In any event the experts freely predict this year's classic will be one of the finest offensive shows ever seen in Honolulu.

Shaw has had less than a week to shape up his dream collection headed by Texas A&M's All-America John David Crow. But his job was made easier because most of his players came from schools using the T-formation, the attack Shaw intends to throw against the All-Stars.

Shaw is the first collegiate coach brought over from the mainland since 1953 when Bud Wilkinson of Oklahoma led his troupe to a 33-14 victory over the All-Stars.

For the past two years Elroy Hirsch has acted as player-coach for the pro-bolstered All-Stars.

Old "Crazy Legs" this year will be leading a contingent of 11 professionals and 11 players drawn from the best local college players, semi-pros and military personnel.

It is small wonder the All-Stars are favored with the likes of Tobin Rote at quarterback, Hirsch and Kyle Rote at ends and backs R. C. Owens, Frank Gifford, Dicky Moegle and Joe Perry in the lineup.

Shaw said his boys can be expected to do their share of scoring, too, but "it will take ball control on our part to hold back the All-Stars with their big bulge in the passing department."

Going for the collegians with Crow will be such stars as King Hill, Rice quarterback; Joe Francis, Oregon State back; end Jimmy Phillips of Auburn; Dan Curry, Michigan State lineman; and Michigan State back Walt Kowalczyk.

Harrison Nabs Lead At L.A.

Johnny Pott Climbs With Fine 67 Trip

By HAL WOOD

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 4 (UP)—E. J. (Dutch) Harrison, the one-time Arkansas hummingbird, gave the youngsters a golf lesson today as he shot his second straight sub-par round to take a two-stroke lead over the field at the halfway mark in the $40,000 Los Angeles Open.

While Friday's leaders staggered and stuttered around the long Rancho course, the old Dutchman, 48-years young and "feeling better than ever," came in with a 70 today to go with his opening round 68 for a 138 score after 36 holes.

There were five men tied for second at 140, Tommy Jacobs and Smiley Quick, both of Los Angeles; Charley Sifford and Stan Dudas, both of Philadelphia, and Gay Brewer Jr., of Cincinnati.

Some of them came from far back to get into the running. Many of the others among the first day leaders faded clear out of the picture. Among these was Mike Krak, Morgantown, W.Va., who had a 69 Friday and an 81 today.

Playing before a record-smashing second day gallery of 12,750 fans under a scorching sun, ol' Dutch mastered the course despite three-putts on three greens that were beautifully manicured.

Harrison was out in 36, back in 34, proving his iron play was near perfection.

"I sank putts from all over the place yesterday," said Harrison, "and the greens were rough then. Today when they were smooth, I couldn't do much."

However, he did knock in one 30-footer on the 16th just when his morale was starting to sag after three-putting the second, ninth and tenth holes.

Pott's score gave him a 36 hole total of 141 and a tie with Ken Venturi of San Francisco who had a 69; Bo Wininger, Odessa, Tex., Frank Stranahan, Toledo, Ohio, and Bobby Rosburg, Japa, Calif.

Tied with 142 were Bob Hill, Rochester, N.Y.; Jerry Barber, Los Angeles; Jay Hebert, Sanford, Fla.; Paul Harney, Worcester, Mass.; Billy Casper, San Diego, Calif.; and Johnny Bulla, Phoenix, Ariz.

It took a score of 149 or better to qualify for the final 36 holes to be played Sunday and Monday.

Among those who qualified were defending champion Doug Ford with a 144 and national and world champion Dick Mayer who barely made it with a 149.

Among those who missed were Ted Kroll; Krak, Noe Conrad, the former British amateur champion; Vic Ghezzi, Milon Marusic and Bill Nary.

HARRISON SHOWS THE WAY — Veteran E. J. "Dutch" Harrison chips to the 17th green during yesterday's second round in the $40,000 Los Angeles Open golf tournament and went on to card a 138 for two rounds and grab the mid-way lead. On this shot Harrison's ball stopped a foot from the pin and he canned the putt for a par 3. (AP Wirephoto.)

OWNER REGRETS

Richards Resigns As Cards' Coach

Richards, 50, had been at the Cardinal helm for three years. The action followed a poor 3-9 record this season in the Eastern Division of the National Football League.

The Cardinals had been tabbed as likely title contenders after posting a 7-5 record in 1956.

"After several days of thought," said Richards, "I have decided to resign as of today as Head Coach of the Chicago Cardinals for the best interest of everyone concerned.

"I want to wish to the owners and the Cardinal organization every success in the future."

Walter Wolfner, Managing Director of the team, who is in Miami Beach, Fla., said he regretted Richards' action. In a statement released here, he said:

"It is with deepest regret that I learned of Ray Richards' decision to resign as head coach. My several years of association with Ray has been my finest experience in pro football. Ray and I have always got along fine together. Richards in my opinion is a fine coach and a fine gentleman."

Northeast On Lumberjacks' Grid Schedule

NACOGDOCHES, Tex., Jan. 4 (UP)— The Stephen F. Austin Lumberjacks will play a 10-game football schedule next year, with Southern Arkansas State replacing Louisiana Tech, Head Coach and Athletic Director Harold Fisher announced today.

The schedule included:

Sept. 13 — Northwestern Louisiana tentatively set at Nacogdoches but possibly to be played at Shreveport, La.

Sept. 20 — Northeast Louisiana at Monroe, La.

Oct 4 — Lamar Tech at Nacogdoshes.

Oct. 11 — Howard Payne at Nacogdoches.

Oct. 18 — Southwest Texas at San Marcos, Tex.

Oct. 25 — Texas A&I at Kingsville, Tex.

Nov. 1 — Sul Ross at Nacogdoches.

Nov. 8 — East Texas at Nacogdoches.

Nov. 15 — Sam Houston State at Huntsville, Tex.

The Lumberjacks finished third in the Lone Star Conference in 1957 in the second year under Fischer whose Lumberjack teams have a 10-10 record for the two-year period.

South Monroe Plays Logtown Tuesday Night

The South Monroe Junior High basketball teams, girls and boys, will meet Logtown in the South Monroe gymnasium Tuesday night. The girls' game opens the card at 7 o'clock.

Coach Clyde Perkins also announced the South Monroe boys will visit Beekman for a game Thursday.

Expansion Expected To Be Next Step For Big Leagues

By ED WILKS

NEW YORK, Jan. 4 (AP)—Now that major league baseball has all but officially approved a compromise plan for New York and west coast territories, what comes next—further franchise shifts, or expansion?

Commissioner Ford Frick, who drafted the territorial definition offered to the majors by a special four-man committee yesterday, has indicated he looks for expansion, perhaps to 12 teams in the national and American or to a third league. National League President Warren Giles also sees expansion as the more logical next step.

Significantly, however, Mayor Wagner's committee, set up to return the National League to New York, already is on record as being "reasonably sure" it can lure an existing NL franchise here now that the big town is "open."

The mayor's committee hasn't indicated which NL club or clubs it had in mind, although the Cincinnati Redlegs and the Pittsburgh Pirates have been mentioned off and on since the Dodgers and the Giants gave up and fled to the west coast.

Gabe Paul, General Manager of the Redlegs and a member of the territorial committee, indicated the Redlegs' parking difficulties in Cincinnati would be straightened out and further threats of shifting the franchise seem unlikely. "Unless," Paul added, "they (Cincinnati officials) get Mr. Crosley (Club owner Powel Crosley, Jr.) real mad."

There seems little opposition left to bar approval of the new territorial plan when the major leagues meet in joint session here in three weeks. Frick's vote would break a possible deadlock.

Basically, the plan provides the compromise first suggested by American Leaguer Chuck Comiskey, Vice President of the Chicago White Sox. At the World Series meetings in October, Comiskey said the NL could return to New York (Brooklyn or Queens) in a swap for AL permission to enter Los Angeles.

Under present baseball rules a league already established in a city could prevent the other league from setting up a franchise there. The AL laid claim to New York, since the New York Yankees are the only major league club left here, while the NL could hold Los Angeles closed because of the Dodgers.

San Francisco, new home of the Giants, wasn't considered a potential two-team city by Comiskey nor, under terms of the proposed new plan, by Frick and the territorial committee.

The new plan limits two-team operations to cities of 2 million or more population — namely, New York, Chicago, Detroit, Philadelphia and Los Angeles. Chicago is the only two-team city at present.

Under the new proposal, a club would need only the consent of its own league (necessary in any franchise shift) and a stadium no closer than 5 miles to the existing club's home. There would be no objection to the two clubs sharing the same stadium, if acceptable to both.

The 5-mile rule was proposed by Frank Lane, new General Manager of the Cleveland Indians and head of the territorial committee, to assure each club of loyal fan groups.

The rule leaves Manhattan and the Bronx, among New York's boroughs, to the Yankees, since no available stadium site in those two areas is outside a 5-mile radius of Yankee Stadium. It leaves Brooklyn and Queens open, however, with the city-proposed Flushing Meadows site in Queens some 8 miles away from Yankee Stadium by Frick's figuring.

The Flushing Meadows site, now used for commuter parking, housed the 1939 World's Fair. It is city owned and provides a 78-acre tract for construction of a stadium. It also could provide parking space for 12,000 cars.

Joe Cairnes, President of the Milwaukee Braves, and Roy Egan, White Sox attorney, were the other members of the territorial committee.

WIN IN LAST 10 MINUTES

Southern Upsets La. Tech, 68-59

RUSTON, La (Special) — Mississippi Southern turned on the scoring in the last 10 minutes to upset Louisiana Tech, 68-59, and give the Techsters their first loss on the home court this season here last night.

The visiting Southerners lead most of the first half but the Tech Bulldogs pulled up to a 37-37 halftime tie and it was nip-and-tuck in the initial 10 minutes of the second half.

The loss left Tech with a 9-2 season mark and gave the Southerners a 6-3 record for the season.

Forward Bob Boothe led the Mississippians with 21 points and he was followed by Don Eddy with 13. Three Tech players hit in the double figures with Jackie Moreland putting in 23 points and Charles Frye pumping in 14. Jim Tullos put in 13.

Mississippi Southern pulled away from a 44-44 deadlock with 11 minutes remaining in the contest and they were never behind after that. Both quintets got off to a slow start. Tech was unable to sink a field goal during the first eight minutes of action but kept within range by making eight out of their first nine free throws attempted.

The Bulldogs pumped in 23 out of 27 charity shots in the first half.

Neither team could get more than a five point lead during the initial half. With four minutes remaining in the battle, Tech pulled to within three points with the score standing 54-51. But Southern then broke men loose for crip shots when the Bulldogs went into a full court press.

The next home game for Tech will be Wednesday night when they meet Centenary College.

Jonesboro Gets Ready For Neville Game

JONESBORO, La. (Special) — The Jonesboro - Hodge Tigers open their 1957-58 district 2-AA cage campaign on the local hardwood Tuesday night when they play host to the Neville Tigers of Monroe. The series between these two clubs in the past has been thrilling since they embarked upon each other in the state AA finals last year with Neville the victor.

Jonesboro has lacked the top - notch jump shooting of All -America Charlie Pixley, but have supplemented in the right places and Coach Sam Ledbetter seems to have made a well - balanced combination.

The local Bengals have a 9-5 record and one tourney victory under their belts, the tourney trophy coming at Quitman. They put on a great show at Gibsland tourney but lost by one point to Simsboro in the finals.

Fred Southerland and Francis Genusa may be the Neville mainstays this year, but Coach George Davis could have a few tricks up his sleeve with Ronnie McNabb, Neal McDonald and other upcoming cagers.

Bonita, Forest Win Oak Grove Tourney

OAK GROVE, La., (Special) — The Bonita High School boys and the Forest High girls clinched championships at the annual Oak Grove High School Basketball Tournament last night as they ended the three-day cage circus with triumphs over Bastrop and Lake Providence respectively. The Ram quint fell to Bonita, 46 to 34, after the Forest girls had beaten Lake Providence, 42 to 36.

McCowan led the Forest girls in their trophy final with 25 points while Barbara Leggette paced Lake Providence with 21. In the semi-finals yesterday the Forest girls stopped Oak Grove, 49-38, and Lake Providence eliminated Kilbourne, 39-25. Crowe's 25 points paced Forest against Oak Grove which was led by Thompson's 19. Leggette led Lake Providence with 23 against Kilbourne, the latter paced by Smith with eight.

Herrington led the Bonita boys against Bastrop with 19 points, and Brakefield paced the Rams with nine.

Bastrop, led by Powell with 17 points, beat Pioneer's boys in the semi-finals, 61-56, but Spann of Pioneer was the game's top scorer with 23 points. Bonita made the finals by halting host Oak Grove, 52-42, in their semi-final with Sims leading Bonita with 22, and Bradley pacing Oak Grove with 15.

Friday's results were:

Girls — Forest 44, Holly Ridge 24; Oak Grove 49, Delhi 46; Kilbourne 32, Pioneer 27; Epps 56, Monticello 33; Lake Providence 56, Epps 35.

Boys — Bastrop 75, Monticello 58; Pioneer 59; Holly Ridge 51; Bonita 47, Kilbourne 40; Oak Grove 64, Epps 49; Bastrop 40, Forest 38.

STRANAHAN WORRIES OVER SHOT—Anxiety is written over the face of Frank Stranahan as he watched a shot from a sand trap on the thirteenth hole stop four feet from the pin during yesterday's Los Angeles Open golf tournament. Stranahan missed the putt and took a bogie five on the hole. He shot a 72 yesterday after a first-round 69, for a two-day total of 141. (AP Wirephoto.)

TOURNEY OF PINES

Winnsboro's Girls, Centerville Victors

OLLA, La., (Special) — The Centerville boys from south Louisiana and the Winnsboro girls won the Tournament of the Pines, annual basketball tournament here last night in a meet that was described by Principal James Otto Lancaster of LaSalle High School as the "greatest show of basketball sportsmanship" he has ever seen.

"There was not a single incident of unsportsmanship during the tournament, not a single technical foul called, there were no rowdy fans, the athletes and coaches and game officials were all just great, the Tournament saw teams on their best sportsmanship winning or losing and I think this needs publicizing as much as the team victories," declared Principal Lancaster in thanking the teams that participated in the LaSalle High event.

Centerville's boys, coached by a former LaSalle faculty member, beat Fort Necessity in their title final, 48-35, and the Winnsboro girls dropped Jena, 54-45 in their championship scrap.

Case led Centerville with 21 points, while Burlew was Fort Necessity's top scorer with 15. The sisters Claudine Watson and Johnnie Watson led Winnsboro with 28 and 19 points respectively, while Cobb of Jena also showed 28.

All - tournament teams were named as follows:

Girls — Johnnie Watson, Claudine Watson, Jenkins and Stringer, Winnsboro; Simmons, Cobb, and Flowers, Jena; M. Amberg, Georgetown; Hazel Brewer, LaSalle; Ross, Fort Necessity; and Carol Garrett, Winnfield.

Boys — Linder, Burlew and Jones, Fort Necessity; Case and Gaubert, Centerville; Everett Brooks and Jackie McAdams, LaSalle; Legg, Grayson; Till, Pollock; and McGuffie, Enterprise.

Paul Martin Looks 'Em Over

Twin Cities basketball teams which have been picking up seasoning for the most part begin to "play for keeps" within the week.

Coach Lennie Fant's Northeast State Indians open their Gulf States Conference race next Saturday night against Southeastern at Hammond after the Tribe experiences probably its sternest test of the season against mighty Arkansas State here tomorrow night in the Ouachita gym. The Arkansas culb recently was ranked 21st in an Associated Press national poll and drew three first place votes. Behind the Southeastern league opener, Northeast follows with McNeese here January 14 and Northwestern at Natchitoches, January 18, before a lull of two non-conference foes before returning to G.S.C. competition in February.

One of the hottest high school basketball rivalries of the 1956-57 campaign will be renewed Tuesday night at Jonesboro when the Neville High Tigers of Monroe tangle with the Jonesboro-Hodge Tigers in a district 2-AA conference opener. Neville will be opening defense of its state title, and J-H will be opening defense of its district crown, an unusual situation for members of the same district. They tied for the district title in regular play last year with J-H winning in a playoff. District runners-up are permitted to continue in bi-district play, and Neville and J-H went all the way through bi-district and regional to windup in the state title game, won by Neville.

The Monroe Tigers lost Bob Mosley and Johnny Blake by graduation, and now have regular Francis Genusa on the shelf with a sprained ankle, but J-H lost All-America high school star Charles Pixley so it could be another tough series.

Neville meets Haynesville there Friday night in another double-A scrap before returning home for a Saturday morning appearance in the Ouachita tournament.

Herb Holliman's Ouachita Lions join the West Monroe Rebs of Coach L. V. Norris in a 1-AAA conference opener here Tuesday night in the Ouachita gym, making it a full night for twin city cage powers as they start conference contention. They all get together again in the Thursday-Friday-Saturday Ouachita tourney.

And, while on this basketball subject, meet the area cage officials:

More than 600 basketball officials have registered with the Louisiana High School Athletic Association for this season, according to Commissioner T. H. Waters, who has about 100 officials for this section of the state and its immediate fringe area.

The association, listing men and women, rates the officials in two classes, those who have passed part one of the National Federation basketball rules test and those who have passed parts one and two. Over two thirds of the officials in this section have passed both tests.

Area rated officials are:

SHAW TUTORING COLLEGIANS

Hawaii All-Stars Favored In Hula

HONOLULU, Jan. 4 (UP)—The stage was set today for the 12th annual Hula Bowl Sunday, pitting the nation's top collegians as underdogs against a Hawaii All-Star team studded with top professionals.

However with top drawer coaching talen in the person of the Air Force Academy's Buck Shaw the collegians could upset the dope. In any event the experts freely predict this year's classic will be one of the finest offensive shows ever seen in Honolulu.

Shaw has had less than a week to shape up his dream collection headed by Texas A&M's All-America John David Crow. But his job was made easier because most of his players came from schools using the T-formation, the attack Shaw intends to throw against the All-Stars.

Shaw is the first collegiate coach brought over from the mainland since 1953 when Bud Wilkinson of Oklahoma led his troupe to a 33-14 victory over the All-Stars.

For the past two years Elroy Hirsch has acted as player-coach for the pro-bolstered All-Stars.

Old "Crazy Legs" this year will be leading a contingent of 11 professionals and 11 players drawn from the best local college players, semi-pros and military personnel.

It is small wonder the All-Stars are favored with the likes of Tobin Rote at quarterback, Hirsch and Kyle Rote at ends and backs R. C. Owens, Frank Gifford, Dicky Moegle and Joe Perry in the lineup.

Shaw said his boys can be expected to do their share of scoring, too, but "it will take ball control on our part to hold back the All-Stars with their big bulge in the passing department."

Going for the collegians with Crow will be such stars as King Hill, Rice quarterback; Joe Francis, Oregon State back; end Jimmy Phillips of Auburn; Dan Curry, Michigan State lineman; and Michigan State back Walt Kowalczyk.

Johnny Pott Climbs With Fine 67 Trip

By HAL WOOD

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 4 (UP)—E. J. (Dutch) Harrison, the one-time Arkansas hummingbird, gave the youngsters a golf lesson today as he shot his second straight sub-par round to take a two-stroke lead over the field at the halfway mark in the $40,000 Los Angeles Open.

While Friday's leaders staggered and stuttered around the long Rancho course, the old Dutchman, 48-years young and "feeling better than ever," came in with a 70 today to go with his opening round 68 for a 138 score after 36 holes.

There were five men tied for second at 140, Tommy Jacobs and Smiley Quick, both of Los Angeles; Charley Sifford and Stan Dudas, both of Philadelphia, and Gay Brewer Jr., of Cincinnati.

Some of them came from far back to get into the running. Many of the others among the first day leaders faded clear out of the picture. Among these was Mike Krak, Morgantown, W.Va., who had a 69 Friday and an 81 today.

Playing before a record-smashing second day gallery of 12,750 fans under a scorching sun, ol' Dutch mastered the course despite three-putts on three greens that were beautifully manicured.

Harrison was out in 36, back in 34, proving his iron play was near perfection.

"I sank putts from all over the place yesterday," said Harrison, "and the greens were rough then. Today when they were smooth, I couldn't do much."

However, he did knock in one 30-footer on the 16th just when his morale was starting to sag after three-putting the second, ninth and tenth holes.

Pott's score gave him a 36 hole total of 141 and a tie with Ken Venturi of San Francisco who had a 69; Bo Wininger, Odessa, Tex., Frank Stranahan, Toledo, Ohio, and Bobby Rosburg, Japa, Calif.

Tied with 142 were Bob Hill, Rochester, N.Y.; Jerry Barber, Los Angeles; Jay Hebert, Sanford, Fla.; Paul Harney, Worcester, Mass.; Billy Casper, San Diego, Calif.; and Johnny Bulla, Phoenix, Ariz.

It took a score of 149 or better to qualify for the final 36 holes to be played Sunday and Monday.

Among those who qualified were defending champion Doug Ford with a 144 and national and world champion Dick Mayer who barely made it with a 149.

Among those who missed were Ted Kroll; Krak, Noe Conrad, the former British amateur champion; Vic Ghezzi, Milon Marusic and Bill Nary.

HARRISON SHOWS THE WAY — Veteran E. J. "Dutch" Harrison chips to the 17th green during yesterday's second round in the $40,000 Los Angeles Open golf tournament and went on to card a 138 for two rounds and grab the mid-way lead. On this shot Harrison's ball stopped a foot from the pin and he canned the putt for a par 3. (AP Wirephoto.)

OWNER REGRETS

Richards Resigns As Cards' Coach

Richards, 50, had been at the Cardinal helm for three years. The action followed a poor 3-9 record this season in the Eastern Division of the National Football League.

The Cardinals had been tabbed as likely title contenders after posting a 7-5 record in 1956.

"After several days of thought," said Richards, "I have decided to resign as of today as Head Coach of the Chicago Cardinals for the best interest of everyone concerned.

"I want to wish to the owners and the Cardinal organization every success in the future."

Walter Wolfner, Managing Director of the team, who is in Miami Beach, Fla., said he regretted Richards' action. In a statement released here, he said: "It is with deepest regret that I learned of Ray Richards' decision to resign as head coach. My several years of association with Ray has been my finest experience in pro football. Ray and I have always got along fine together. Richards in my opinion is a fine coach and a fine gentleman."

Northeast On Lumberjacks' Grid Schedule

NACOGDOCHES, Tex., Jan. 4 (UP)— The Stephen F. Austin Lumberjacks will play a 10-game football schedule next year, with Southern Arkansas State replacing Louisiana Tech, Head Coach and Athletic Director Harold Fisher announced today.

The schedule included:

Sept. 13 — Northwestern Louisiana tentatively set at Nacogdoches but possibly to be played at Shreveport, La.

Sept. 20 — Northeast Louisiana at Monroe, La.

Oct 4 — Lamar Tech at Nacogdoshes.

Oct. 11 — Howard Payne at Nacogdoches.

Oct. 18 — Southwest Texas at San Marcos, Tex.

Oct. 25 — Texas A&I at Kingsville, Tex.

Nov. 1 — Sul Ross at Nacogdoches.

Nov. 8 — East Texas at Nacogdoches.

Nov. 15 — Sam Houston State at Huntsville, Tex.

The Lumberjacks finished third in the Lone Star Conference in 1957 in the second year under Fischer whose Lumberjack teams have a 10-10 record for the two-year period.

South Monroe Plays Logtown Tuesday Night

The South Monroe Junior High basketball teams, girls and boys, will meet Logtown in the South Monroe gymnasium Tuesday night. The girls' game opens the card at 7 o'clock.

Coach Clyde Perkins also announced the South Monroe boys will visit Beekman for a game Thursday.

Expansion Expected To Be Next Step For Big Leagues

By ED WILKS

NEW YORK, Jan. 4 (AP)—Now that major league baseball has all but officially approved a compromise plan for New York and west coast territories, what comes next—further franchise shifts, or expansion?

Commissioner Ford Frick, who drafted the territorial definition offered to the majors by a special four-man committee yesterday, has indicated he looks for expansion, perhaps to 12 teams in the national and American or to a third league. National League President Warren Giles also sees expansion as the more logical next step.

Significantly, however, Mayor Wagner's committee, set up to return the National League to New York, already is on record as being "reasonably sure" it can lure an existing NL franchise here now that the big town is "open."

The mayor's committee hasn't indicated which NL club or clubs it had in mind, although the Cincinnati Redlegs and the Pittsburgh Pirates have been mentioned off and on since the Dodgers and the Giants gave up and fled to the west coast.

Gabe Paul, General Manager of the Redlegs and a member of the territorial committee, indicated the Redlegs' parking difficulties in Cincinnati would be straightened out and further threats of shifting the franchise seem unlikely. "Unless," Paul added, "they (Cincinnati officials) get Mr. Crosley (Club owner Powel Crosley, Jr.) real mad."

There seems little opposition left to bar approval of the new territorial plan when the major leagues meet in joint session here in three weeks. Frick's vote would break a possible deadlock.

Basically, the plan provides the compromise first suggested by American Leaguer Chuck Comiskey, Vice President of the Chicago White Sox. At the World Series meetings in October, Comiskey said the NL could return to New York (Brooklyn or Queens) in a swap for AL permission to enter Los Angeles.

Under present baseball rules a league already established in a city could prevent the other league from setting up a franchise there. The AL laid claim to New York, since the New York Yankees are the only major league club left here, while the NL could hold Los Angeles closed because of the Dodgers.

San Francisco, new home of the Giants, wasn't considered a potential two-team city by Comiskey nor, under terms of the proposed new plan, by Frick and the territorial committee.

The new plan limits two-team operations to cities of 2 million or more population — namely, New York, Chicago, Detroit, Philadelphia and Los Angeles. Chicago is the only two-team city at present.

Under the new proposal, a club would need only the consent of its own league (necessary in any franchise shift) and a stadium no closer than 5 miles to the existing club's home. There would be no objection to the two clubs sharing the same stadium, if acceptable to both.

The 5-mile rule was proposed by Frank Lane, new General Manager of the Cleveland Indians and head of the territorial committee, to assure each club of loyal fan groups.

The rule leaves Manhattan and the Bronx, among New York's boroughs, to the Yankees, since no available stadium site in those two areas is outside a 5-mile radius of Yankee Stadium. It leaves Brooklyn and Queens open, however, with the city-proposed Flushing Meadows site in Queens some 8 miles away from Yankee Stadium by Frick's figuring.

The Flushing Meadows site, now used for commuter parking, housed the 1939 World's Fair. It is city owned and provides a 78-acre tract for construction of a stadium. It also could provide parking space for 12,000 cars.

Joe Cairnes, President of the Milwaukee Braves, and Roy Egan, White Sox attorney, were the other members of the territorial committee.

WIN IN LAST 10 MINUTES

Southern Upsets La. Tech, 68-59

RUSTON, La (Special) — Mississippi Southern turned on the scoring in the last 10 minutes to upset Louisiana Tech, 68-59, and give the Techsters their first loss on the home court this season here last night.

The visiting Southerners lead most of the first half but the Tech Bulldogs pulled up to a 37-37 halftime tie and it was nip-and-tuck in the initial 10 minutes of the second half.

The loss left Tech with a 9-2 season mark and gave the Southerners a 6-3 record for the season.

Forward Bob Boothe led the Mississippians with 21 points and he was followed by Don Eddy with 13. Three Tech players hit in the double figures with Jackie Moreland putting in 23 points and Charles Frye pumping in 14. Jim Tullos put in 13.

Mississippi Southern pulled away from a 44-44 deadlock with 11 minutes remaining in the contest and they were never behind after that. Both quintets got off to a slow start. Tech was unable to sink a field goal during the first eight minutes of action but kept within range by making eight out of their first nine free throws attempted.

The Bulldogs pumped in 23 out of 27 charity shots in the first half.

Neither team could get more than a five point lead during the iniital half. With four minutes remaining in the battle, Tech pulled to within three points with the score standing 54-51. But Southern then broke men loose for crip shots when the Bulldogs went into a full court press.

The next home game for Tech will be Wednesday night when they meet Centenary College.

Jonesboro Gets Ready For Neville Game

JONESBORO, La. (Special) — The Jonesboro - Hodge Tigers open their 1957-58 district 2-AA cage campaign on the local hardwood Tuesday night when they play host to the Neville Tigers of Monroe. The series between these two clubs in the past has been thrilling since they embarked upon each other in the state AA finals last year with Neville the victor.

Jonesboro has lacked the top - notch jump shooting of All -America Charlie Pixley, but have supplemented in the right places and Coach Sam Ledbetter seems to have made a well - balanced combination.

The local Bengals have a 9-5 record and one tourney victory under their belts, the tourney trophy coming at Quitman. They put on a great show at Gibsland tourney but lost by one point to Simsboro in the finals.

Fred Southerland and Francis Genusa may be the Neville mainstays this year, but Coach George Davis could have a few tricks up his sleeve with Ronnie McNabb, Neal McDonald and other upcoming cagers.

Bonita, Forest Win Oak Grove Tourney

OAK GROVE, La., (Special) — The Bonita High School boys and the Forest High girls clinched championships at the annual Oak Grove High School Basketball Tournament last night as they ended the three-day cage circus with triumphs over Bastrop and Lake Providence respectively. The Ram quint fell to Bonita, 46 to 34, after the Forest girls had beaten Lake Providence, 42 to 36.

McCowan led the Forest girls in their trophy final with 25 points while Barbara Leggette paced Lake Providence with 21. In the semi-finals yesterday the Forest girls stopped Oak Grove, 49-38, and Lake Providence eliminated Kilbourne, 39-25. Crowe's 25 points paced Forest against Oak Grove which was led by Thompson's 19. Leggette led Lake Providence with 23 against Kilbourne, the latter paced by Smith with eight.

Herrington led the Bonita boys against Bastrop with 19 points, and Brakefield paced the Rams with nine.

Bastrop, led by Powell with 17 points, beat Pioneer's boys in the semi-finals, 61-56, but Spann of Pioneer was the game's top scorer with 23 points. Bonita made the finals by halting host Oak Grove, 52-42, in their semi-final with Sims leading Bonita with 22, and Bradley pacing Oak Grove with 15.

Friday's results were:

Girls — Forest 44, Holly Ridge 24; Oak Grove 49, Delhi 46; Kilbourne 32, Pioneer 27; Epps 56, Monticello 33; Lake Providence 56, Epps 35.

Boys — Bastrop 75, Monticello 58; Pioneer 59; Holly Ridge 51; Bonita 47, Kilbourne 40; Oak Grove 64, Epps 49; Bastrop 40, Forest 38.

STRANAHAN WORRIES OVER SHOT—Anxiety is written over the face of Frank Stranahan as he watched a shot from a sand trap on the thirteenth hole stop four feet from the pin during yesterday's Los Angeles Open golf tournament. Stranahan missed the putt and took a bogie five on the hole. He shot a 72 yesterday after a first-round 69, for a two-day total of 141. (AP Wirephoto.)

TOURNEY OF PINES

Winnsboro's Girls, Centerville Victors

OLLA, La., (Special) — The Centerville boys from south Louisiana and the Winnsboro girls won the Tournament of the Pines, annual basketball tournament here last night in a meet that was described by Principal James Otto Lancaster of LaSalle High School as the "greatest show of basketball sportsmanship" he has ever seen.

"There was not a single incident of unsportsmanship during the tournament, not a single technical foul called, there were no rowdy fans, the athletes and coaches and game officials were all just great, the Tournament saw teams on their best sportsmanship winning or losing and I think this needs publicizing as much as the team victories," declared Principal Lancaster in thanking the teams that participated in the LaSalle High event.

Centerville's boys, coached by a former LaSalle faculty member, beat Fort Necessity in their title final, 48-35, and the Winnsboro girls dropped Jena, 54-45 in their championship scrap.

Case led Centerville with 21 points, while Burlew was Fort Necessity's top scorer with 15. The sisters Claudine Watson and Johnnie Watson led Winnsboro with 28 and 19 points respectively, while Cobb of Jena also showed 28.

All - tournament teams were named as follows:

Girls — Johnnie Watson, Claudine Watson, Jenkins and Stringer, Winnsboro; Simmons, Cobb, and Flowers, Jena; M. Amberg, Georgetown; Hazel Brewer, LaSalle; Ross, Fort Necessity; and Carol Garrett, Winnfield.

Boys — Linder, Burlew and Jones, Fort Necessity; Case and Gaubert, Centerville; Everett Brooks and Jackie McAdams, LaSalle; Legg, Grayson; Till, Pollock; and McGuffie, Enterprise.

PLAY REBS TUESDAY

21 Teams Enter Ouachita Tourney Here This Week

The Ouachita Parish High School Lions plunge into a big week of basketball this week in their first action of the new year when they tackle the West Monroe High Rebels in triple-A conference openers Tuesday and then host the annual Ouachita Invitational Basketball Tournament here Thursday, Friday, and Saturday.

The Tuesday night regularly scheduled action calls for varsity boys and girls games in which Coach Mary Lea George's Ouachita girls will open defense of their district 1-AAA title. They were runners-up to Istrouma of Baton Rouge for the state title last year. The Ouachita boys were runners-up for the district title, losing out in a playoff to Fair Park of Shreveport.

Coach Herbert H. Holliman of Ouachita last night announced 21 teams are registered for action in the weekend tournament with eight teams competing in the girls' division and 13 quintets appearing in the boys' brackets.

The girls' tournament is expected to be the fastest ever offered here in this class with such teams as Central of Delhi, Neville of Monroe, and Downsville, already tournament winners this season, plus such powers as Bastrop and Baskin expected to make a good run for the trophies. Ouachita and West Monroe loom as the darkhorses in this section, but they expect to let the fans know more about how they stack up when they clash in Tuesday's game.

T. N. Scott, a Gulf States Conference official, and Jim Brunning, both of Natchitoches, and Chester Coker, Winnsboro, have been named as tournament game officials.

Coach Holliman, who said pairings for the meet will be in the mail to contending coaches early this week, listed parirings as follows:

Girls

Thursday — Baskin vs. West Monroe, 1 p.m.; Downsville vs. Neville, 3:30 p.m.

Friday — Central vs. Calhoun, 2 p.m.; Ouachita vs. Bastrop, 3:15 p.m.

Saturday — Central - Calhoun winner vs. Ouachita - Bastrop winner, 10 a.m.; Baskin - West Monroe winner vs. Downsville-Neville winner, 11:15 a.m.; consolation, 5:30 p.m.; championship game, 8 p.m.

Boys

Thursday—Downnville vs. Southside, 2:15 p.m.; Weston vs. St. Matthew's, 4:45; Chatham vs. Bonita, 6:30; West Monroe vs. Mangham, 7:45.

Friday — Calhoun vs. Central 12:45 p.m.; West Monroe-Mangham winner vs. Chatham - Bonita winner, 5:30 p.m. Ouachita vs. Weston-St. Matthew's winner, 6:45 Bastrop vs. Calhoun - Central winner, 8 p.m.

Saturday — Neville vs. Downsville - Southside winner, 8:45 a.m.; semi-finals, 12:30 and 1:45 p.m.; consolation, 6:45 p.m.; championship game, 9:15 p.m.

WEST FAVORED

Squads Assemble For Pro Classic

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 4 (AP)—The East and West professional football squads, each 31 - strong and the pick of the two divisions of the National Football League, assembled today for the annual Pro Bowl game Jan. 12.

One squad reported to Coach Buddy Parker of the Pittsburgh Steelers, who will guide the East, and the other to Coach George Wilson of the champion Detroit Lions, who will direct the West.

Wilson is favored to field a winning team over Parker, the man he succeeded at Detroit just before the season began.

There was one late switch. Halfback Frank Gifford of the New York Giants, who is playing in the Hula Bowl in Honolulu, has been replaced by Cleveland's Ray Renfro for the East.

Earlier Parker named Steeler guard Dale Dodrill to replace Cleveland quarterback Tommy O'Connell, who had to bow out because of a leg injury. Parker still has two crack quarterbacks in Eddie LeBaron of the Washington Redskins and Earl Morrall of Pittsburgh.

The players are selected by the NFL coaches. The game has the official approval of the NFL and Commissioner Bert Bell.

The game, almost always a great spectacle, will be televised nationally but this area will be blacked out.

The lineup on offense now lists for the west such stars as quarterbacks Y. A. Tittle of the San Francisco 49ers and Johnny Unitas of the Baltimore Colts, halfbacks Hugh McElhenny of the 49ers, Tom Wilson and Jon Arnett of the Los Angeles Rams, Bert Rechichar of the Colts and fullback Rick Casares of the Chicago Bears.

The east has Ollie Matson of the Chicago Cardinals, fullback Jim Brown of Cleveland and the brace of quarterbacks. Their offensive ends include John Carson of the Redskins, and Jack McClairen of the Steelers.

Chuck Spieser Signs To Meet Bobby Layne

Spieser said he accepted the bout with Layne because he wants to keep in shape for the proposed 175-pound championship fight with Moore.

The contract between Spieser and Moore called for them to meet for the title at the State Fair Coliseum "sometime in January." Spieser agreed to put up a $100,000 guarantee for the title shot but has been able to raise only part of the money because no television sponsor has been found.

No date has ever been set for a Spieser-Moore match and it is doubtful whether the fight will materialize since Moore is holding out for the full $100,000 guarantee and the backers Spieser has managed to line up have indicated they want their money back.

Jack (Doc) Kearns, Moore's co-manager, hasn't "given up the ghost" as far as a title match is concerned. But he was quick to point out that a Spieser loss to Layne would remove the former NCAA champion from Michigan State U. from the title picture.

"Taking this bout with Layne was the biggest mistake Spieser has made since he fought (Tony) Anthony last spring," Kearns said.

Spieser met Anthony here last April in what was regarded as a title fight tune-up. Spieser was the top-ranking 175-pound contender and was in line for a summer shot at Moore's crown.

But Anthony knocked out Spieser and earned a crack at the title himself. Moore subsequently stopped Anthony.

PISTONS DEFEAT WARRORS

DETROIT, Jan. 4 (UP)—Guard Dic McGuire and Gene Shue combined 14 points in the last quarter today to give the Detroit Pistons a come-from-behind 81-78 victory over the Philadelphia Warriors in a nationally televised National Basketball Association game. It was the lowest scoring game in the NBA this season.

Kramer Gives Up Hope For Getting Rose

SYDNEY, Jan. 4 (UP)— Pro tennis promoter Jack Kramer virtually gave up hope today of landing Australian doubles star Mervyn Rose for his tour even as Aussie Lew Hoad took a 2-1 lead over Pancho Gonzales in their "world series."

Hoad, a failure in his first appearances as a pro last year in the United States, outlasted world champion Gonzales of Los Angeles, 6-3, 13-11, 6-4, in today's match at White City Stadium.

It was the second straight win for the blond Aussie star after Gonzales won the opening contest in the 100-match world-wide tour at Brisbane in five sets. Today's match was the most successful Kramer ever produced at White City, during a near-capacity crowd that paid a gate of nearly 10,000 pounds ($22,400).

But Kramer has almost despaired of landing Rose, long the "forgotten man" of Aussie tennis who had a brief moment of glory in a doubles win over the United States in the recent Davis Cup matches. Rose is generally rated the world's best amateur doubles player.

"I think we can write Mervyn off for now," said Kramer. "I don't think I can match what Rose thinks he can make staying an amateur, or whatever else he has in mind."

Giants Announce Agreement With Oklahoma City

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 4 (UP) —The San Francisco Giants announced tonight signing of a working agreement with Oklahoma City of the Class AA Texas League replacing it's former agreement with the Dallas club which withdrew from the circuit.

The former San Francisco Seals of the Pacific Coast League, whom the National Leaguers replaced here, had a similar agreement with Oklahoma City.

Carl Hubbell, director of the Giants' farm system, said a number of young players to be designated later would be sent to Oklahoma City for the 1958 season.

END RACING SAGA

Mayer's Nags Are Up For Auction Monday

By ALEX KAHN

POMON, Calif., Jan. 4 (UP)— The racing and breeding stock of the late film magnate Louis B. Mayer goes under the auctioneer's hammer Monday night at the Los Angeles County Fairgrounds as 59 thoroughbreds will be placed on sale, bringing to a close one of the great sagas of the sport.

Mayer, one of the leading figures in California racing, died last October and his racing stock was ordered sold as part of the liquidation of his multi-million dollar estate.

Included in Monday's sale are 13 horses in training, 22 broodmares, the stallions Grantor and Blaze, 13 newly-turned 2-year-olds and nine yearlings.

The auction was the sixth for the Mayer interests. Ten years ago after assembling one of the greatest collections of thoroughbreds in racing history, Mayer began dispersing his holdings in a series of five sales from February, 1947 through January, 1950.

The auctions attracted international attention as 248 head were sold for a total of $4,479,659. Included in the horses sold were such famed thoroughbreds of their day as Stepfather, Honeymoon, Be Faithful and Busher.

Mayer, although he gave up his vast breeding and racing interests because they took too much time away from his movie production interests, could not resist the sport and in 1951 made a more modest return as an owner and race patron.

Mayer embarked in the sport just prior to World War II and was able to accumulate some of the world's greatest breeding stock from countries where war conditions had blacked out racing.

By importing Beau Pere from Australia and Alibhai from England he was able to found thoroughbred dynasties that still are showing their effects on American breeding. The outstanding sire, Bernborough, was another of his importations from Australia.

Among the horses being sold Monday is the top-flight stakes-winner, Alidon, a son of Alibhai who won 12 races and $272,300 to date. Also included are such outstanding performers as Royal Clipper, a son of Ireland's Royal Charger; and Prize Host, by Your Host, the ill-fated California champion which Mayer bred but which was raced by his son-in-law, Wililam Goetz.

IBC CHALLENGED

Boxing Anti-trust Suit Will Go Before Court

By CHARLOTTE G. MOULTON

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4 (UP)— The Supreme Court gets down to post-holiday business Monday with the government's antitrust suit against big-time boxing high on the list of upcoming cases.

The appeal of the International Boxing Clubs from a decision against them in New York last summer is among a large batch of petitions for review filed in recent weeks. The government did not oppose an examination of the issues by the high court, which has immediate jurisdiction under the Sherman Antitrust Law.

The court is likely to set the case down for argument and later give a written opinion.

Opinions on other cases already argued will be forthcoming Monday. They could include the answer to an important citizenship question: "May Congress take away the citizenship of a native-born American for acts it deems not in the national interest?"

The IBC monopoly case is the first involving professional athletics to come before the court after a full-scale trial. Other appeals have merely tested the right of the Justice Department to prosecute.

The department first moved against big-time professional boxing in 1952. The complaint, revised in 1954, challenged the legality of IBC activities between 1949 and 1953.

According to the government, former heavyweight champion Joe Louis figured in the alleged conspiracy to monopolize championship fights. Louis was not a defendant in the case, however.

Federal District Judge Sylvester J. Ryan last July 2 decreed that the IBC must dissolve, that IBC President James D. Norris and Director Arthur M. Wirtz must sell their stock in Madison Square Garden, and that the Garden must lease its facilities to any promoter of a championship bout who applied.

Ryan said that as a result of his decree "professional championship boxing contests will be opened with television and radio broadcasting to legitimate and healthy competition."

Supreme Court Justice John M. Harlan stayed the effect of the degree on Oct. 29, 1957, pending the high court's disposition of the case.

The appealing parties said "there is a substantial question whether the district court in its zeal to eliminate Messrs. Norris and Wirtz from ownership in and management of Madison Square Garden has not inflicted unnecessary injury and damages upon the public and also to the Garden in its other sports activities."

The court may also agree to hear arguments on:

—The appeal of Angelo John La Marca, scheduled to be executed for kidnaping month-old Peter Weinberger in Westbury, N.Y., in June, 1956.

Bull Steamship Co. and three labor unions regarding court enforcement of no strike agreements.

—A contention by two nudist magazines that the postmaster general in 1954 improperly barred certain issues from the mails before a court determination on whether they were obscene.

PLAY REBS TUESDAY

21 Teams Enter Ouachita Tourney Here This Week

The Ouachita Parish High School Lions plunge into a big week of basketball this week in their first action of the new year when they tackle the West Monroe High Rebels in triple-A conference openers Tuesday and then host the annual Ouachita Invitational Basketball Tournament here Thursday, Friday, and Saturday.

The Tuesday night regularly scheduled action calls for varsity boys and girls games in which Coach Mary Lea George's Ouachita girls will open defense of their district 1-AAA title. They were runners-up to Istrouma of Baton Rouge for the state title last year. The Ouachita boys were runners-up for the district title, losing out in a playoff to Fair Park of Shreveport.

Coach Herbert H. Holliman of Ouachita last night announced 21 teams are registered for action in the weekend tournament with eight teams competing in the girls' division and 13 quintets appearing in the boys' brackets.

The girls' tournament is expected to be the fastest ever offered here in this class with such teams as Central of Delhi, Neville of Monroe, and Downsville, already tournament winners this season, plus such powers as Bastrop and Baskin expected to make a good run for the trophies. Ouachita and West Monroe loom as the darkhorses in this section, but they expect to let the fans know more about how they stack up when they clash in Tuesday's game.

T. N. Scott, a Gulf States Conference official, and Jim Brunning, both of Natchitoches, and Chester Coker, Winnsboro, have been named as tournament game officials.

Coach Holliman, who said pairings for the meet will be in the mail to contending coaches early this week, listed pairirings as follows:

Girls

Thursday — Baskin vs. West Monroe, 1 p.m.; Downsville vs. Neville, 3:30 p.m.

Friday — Central vs. Calhoun, 2 p.m.; Ouachita vs. Bastrop, 3:15 p.m.

Saturday — Central - Calhoun winner vs. Ouachita - Bastrop winner, 10 a.m.; Baskin - West Monroe winner vs. Downsville-Neville winner, 11:15 a.m.; consolation, 5:30 p.m.; championship game, 8 p.m.

Boys

Thursday—Downnville vs. Southside, 2:15 p.m.; Weston vs. St. Matthew's, 4:45; Chatham vs. Bonita, 6:30; West Monroe vs. Mangham, 7:45.

Friday — Calhoun vs. Central 12:45 p.m.; West Monroe-Mangham winner vs. Chatham - Bonita winner, 5:30 p.m. Ouachita vs. Weston-St. Matthew's winner, 6:45 Bastrop vs. Calhoun - Central winner, 8 p.m.

Saturday — Neville vs. Downsville - Southside winner, 8:45 a.m.; semi-finals, 12:30 and 1:45 p.m.; consolation, 6:45 p.m.; championship game, 9:15 p.m.

WEST FAVORED

Squads Assemble For Pro Classic

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 4 (UP)—The East and West professional football squads, each 31 - strong and the pick of the two divisions of the National Football League, assembled today for the annual Pro Bowl game Jan. 12.

One squad reported to Coach Buddy Parker of the Pittsburgh Steelers, who will guide the East, and the other to Coach George Wilson of the champion Detroit Lions, who will direct the West.

Wilson is favored to field a winning team over Parker, the man he succeeded at Detroit just before the season began.

There was one late switch. Halfback Frank Gifford of the New York Giants, who is playing in the Hula Bowl in Honolulu, has been replaced by Cleveland's Ray Renfro for the East.

Earlier Parker named Steeler guard Dale Dodrill to replace Cleveland quarterback Tommy O'Connell, who had to bow out because of a leg injury. Parker still has two crack quarterbacks in Eddie LeBaron of the Washington Redskins and Earl Morrall of Pittsburgh.

The players are selected by the NFL coaches. The game has the official approval of the NFL and Commissioner Bert Bell.

The game, almost always a great spectacle, will be televised nationally but this area will be blacked out.

The lineup on offense now lists for the west such stars as quarterbacks Y. A. Tittle of the San Francisco 49ers and Johnny Unitas of the Baltimore Colts, halfbacks Hugh McElhenny of the 49ers, Tom Wilson and Jon Arnett of the Los Angeles Rams, Bert Rechichar of the Colts and fullback Rick Casares of the Chicago Bears.

The east has Ollie Matson of the Chicago Cardinals, fullback Jim Brown of Cleveland and the brace of quarterbacks. Their offensive ends include John Carson of the Redskins, and Jack McClairen of the Steelers.

Chuck Spieser Signs To Meet Bobby Layne

Spieser said he accepted the bout with Layne because he wants to keep in shape for the proposed 175-pound championship fight with Moore.

The contract between Spieser and Moore called for them to meet for the title at the State Fair Coliseum "sometime in January." Spieser agreed to put up a $100,000 guarantee for the title shot but has been able to raise only part of the money because no television sponsor has been found.

No date has ever been set for a Spieser-Moore match and it is doubtful whether the fight will materialize since Moore is holding out for the full $100,000 guarantee and the backers Spieser has managed to line up have indicated they want their money back.

Jack (Doc) Kearns, Moore's comanager, hasn't "given up the ghost" as far as a title match is concerned. But he was quick to point out that a Spieser loss to Layne would remove the former NCAA champion from Michigan State U. from the title picture.

"Taking this bout with Layne was the biggest mistake Spieser has made since he fought (Tony) Anthony last spring," Kearns said.

Spieser met Anthony here last April in what was regarded as a title fight tune-up. Spieser was the top-ranking 175-pound contender and was in line for a summer shot at Moore's crown.

But Anthony knocked out Spieser and earned a crack at the title himself. Moore subsequently stopped Anthony.

PISTONS DEFEAT WARRORS

DETROIT, Jan. 4 (UP)—Guard Dic McGuire and Gene Shue combined 14 points in the last quarter today to give the Detroit Pistons a come-from-behind 81-78 victory over the Philadelphia Warriors in a nationally televised National Basketball Association game. It was the lowest scoring game in the NBA this season.

IBC CHALLENGED

Boxing Anti-trust Suit Will Go Before Court

By CHARLOTTE G. MOULTON

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4 (UP)— The Supreme Court gets down to post-holiday business Monday with the government's antitrust suit against big-time boxing high on the list of upcoming cases.

The appeal of the International Boxing Clubs from a decision against them in New York last summer is among a large batch of petitions for review filed in recent weeks. The government did not oppose an examination of the issues by the high court, which has immediate jurisdiction under the Sherman Antitrust Law.

The court is likely to set the case down for argument and later give a written opinion.

Opinions on other cases already argued will be forthcoming Monday. They could include the answer to an important citizenship question: "May Congress take away the citizenship of a native-born American for acts it deems not in the national interest?"

The IBC monopoly case is the first involving professional athletics to come before the court after a full-scale trial. Other appeals have merely tested the right of the Justice Department to prosecute.

The department first moved against big-time professional boxing in 1952. The complaint, revised in 1954, challenged the legality of IBC activities between 1949 and 1953.

According to the government, former heavyweight champion Joe Louis figured in the alleged conspiracy to monopolize championship fights. Louis was not a defendant in the case, however.

Federal District Judge Sylvester J. Ryan last July 2 decreed that the IBC must dissolve, that IBC President James D. Norris and Director Arthur M. Wirtz must sell their stock in Madison Square Garden, and that the Garden must lease its facilities to any promoter of a championship bout who applied.

Ryan said that as a result of his decree "professional championship boxing contests will be opened with television and radio broadcasting to legitimate and healthy competition."

Supreme Court Justice John M. Harlan stayed the effect of the degree on Oct. 29, 1957, pending the high court's disposition of the case.

The appealing parties said "there is a substantial question whether the district court in its zeal to eliminate Messrs. Norris and Wirtz from ownership in and management of Madison Square Garden has not inflicted unnecessary injury and damages upon the public and also to the Garden in its other sports activities."

The court may also agree to hear arguments on:

—The appeal of Angelo John La Marca, scheduled to be executed for kidnaping month-old Peter Weinberger in Westbury, N.Y., in June, 1956.

Bull Steamship Co. and three labor unions regarding court enforcement of no strike agreements.

—A contention by two nudist magazines that the postmaster general in 1954 improperly barred certain issues from the mails before a court determination on whether they were obscene.

Giants Announce Agreement With Oklahoma City

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 4 (UP) —The San Francisco Giants announced tonight signing of a working agreement with Oklahoma City of the Class AA Texas League replacing its former agreement with the Dallas club which withdrew from the circuit.

The former San Francisco Seals of the Pacific Coast League, whom the National Leaguers replaced here, had a similar agreement with Oklahoma City.

Carl Hubbell, director of the Giants' farm system, said a number of young players to be designated later would be sent to Oklahoma City for the 1958 season.

END RACING SAGA

Mayer's Nags Are Up For Auction Monday

By ALEX KAHN

POMON, Calif., Jan. 4 (UP)— The racing and breeding stock of the late film magnate Louis B. Mayer goes under the auctioneer's hammer Monday night at the Los Angeles County Fairgrounds as 59 thoroughbreds will be placed on sale, bringing to a close one of the great sagas of the sport.

Mayer, one of the leading figures in California racing, died last October and his racing stock was ordered sold as part of the liquidation of his multi-million dollar estate.

Included in Monday's sale are 13 horses in training, 22 broodmares, the stallions Grantor and Blaze, 13 newly-turned 2-year-olds and nine yearlings.

The auction was the sixth for the Mayer interests. Ten years ago after assembling one of the greatest collections of thoroughbreds in racing history, Mayer began dispersing his holdings in a series of five sales from February, 1947 through January, 1950.

The auctions attracted international attention as 248 head were sold for a total of $4,479,659. Included in the horses sold were such famed thoroughbreds of their day as Stepfather, Honeymoon, Be Faithful and Busher.

Mayer, although he gave up his vast breeding and racing interests because they took too much time away from his movie production interests, could not resist the sport and in 1951 made a more modest return as an owner and race patron.

Mayer embarked in the sport just prior to World War II and was able to accumulate some of the world's greatest breeding stock from countries where war conditions had blacked out racing.

By importing Beau Pere from Australia and Alibhai from England he was able to found thoroughbred dynasties that still are showing their effects on American breeding. The outstanding sire, Bernborough, was another of his importations from Australia.

Among the horses being sold Monday is the top-flight stakes-winner, Alidon, a son of Alibhai who won 12 races and $272,300 to date. Also included are such outstanding performers as Royal Clipper, a son of Ireland's Royal Charger; and Prize Host, by Your Host, the ill-fated California champion which Mayer bred but which was raced by his son-in-law, Wililam Goetz.

BOWLING

With Tommy Higgins

The old year has bowed out and bowlers hope the new year has come with a bang for them—lots of strikes and better bowling.

For recreation more and more of the major business concerns are turning to bowling. A quick rundown finds Olin Mathieson with eight men's teams and four ladies' teams. There are two divisions of the men keglers. Frostkraft American League and Frostcraft National League. The Termites are leading by three points over the Kraftsmen in the American, but the Kraftsmen have registered high team series (2,846) and high team game (1,015).

The Carrugated Squares are out front in the National League. The Marketeers, in second place, are five points behind the leaders. The T-Socs hold high game (1,004) and high series (2,872) for the company league.

Another league composed strictly of company employees is the Industrial Equipment League. This circuit is topped by the very fine Southwest Gas five, leading by four points over Daly's Camera Shop. A great deal of credit should go to the top-flight bowling of J. R. Hood who holds the top average for the league—a fat 175. J. R. is flanked by such fine keglers as John Lacy, Son Wood, and Art Smith.

Southern Equipment, Foremost Dairy, Montgomery Insurance, Slagle-Johnson, Ford, Bacon and Davis, C.S.C. Hi-D, Monroe Concrete, and Falstaff are the teams that make up the rest of the league. Team series is held by Foremost Dairy (3,093) and high team belongs to Hi-D's outfit—a big 1,076. Guy Martin holds individual honors with a 248 game and a 615 series.

The Industrial League, doing little bowling during the hoildays, has a close race going. Only four points separate first place Louisiana Power and Light and sixth place C.S.C. Peak.

C.S.C. Peak has bowled the high team series, a 3,063, and L. and B. Athletic Association holds the high team game, a 1,092.

Doug Brewton's 167 is high individual average, and he holds high game for the league (243).

Henderson Curb Market continues to lead the Pioneer League. Bob Scott, E. B. Peddy, Jerry Higgins, Hollis Greene, and Bob Creighton have made it hard climbing for such fine teams as Fink's Men's Wear, Tom Spatafora's Grocery, Ouachita Security, Schlit Beer, the Bowling Center, and Chavis.

Tom Spatafora is clinging to high team game (1,118) and Fink's has bowled high team series (3,140). Sonny Durham has high individual game (344) and Luke Coonrod boasts high series (637).

Earnest Carter's big 267 game and The Forge, leading its league by four points, are two of the many highlights of the Major League this season. Others are high team series, LECO 3,148—and high team game—Royal Feed and Seed 1,143—and high individual series—Sonny Durham 650.

A red hot battle is raging in the Kegler League. Clover Leaf Dairy is on top by a mere point and a half over Jax Beer. Monroe "66", Pan-Am, Spatafora Rexall, and A. and C. Music are all within striking distance. One bowling night could change the standings entirely.

Stan Bagwell and Hollis Greene are tied for high individual game (246) and Tommy Higgins has bowled high individual series (668).

A glance at the Ladies League shows Holiday Inn leading by a mere point and half over Howard Griffin; Spatafora's Pharmacy bringing up third place only four points behind.

Norma Brown has bowled high game (233) and high series (593) while Myrtle Draughn, who has been doing some fine pin toppling, holds high average, 170.

The Business Women's League, which, in years past, has come up with some ding dong finishes for first place, finds the standings quite different this year. Ora Lee Johnston's top-notch bowling has put Delta Music Company out in front by five and a half points over second place Fields. Ora Lee holds high averages (156), high game (220), and high series (580) for the league.

Rendezvous has bowled high team game (759), and high team series (2,139).

Warrior Quint Falls Before Pistons, 81-78

DETROIT, Jan. 4 (AP)—Veteran Dick McGuire sparked a fourth quarter rally that earned the Detroit Pistons an 81-78 triumph over the Philadelphia Warriors today in a National Basketball Association contest that was televised nationally.

McGuire, the playmaker, scored only 13 points but got nine of them in a frantic final period that saw the Detroit club overcome an eight point deficit they faced after the first minute of play in the period.

The triumph gave the Detroit club two straight home victories for the first time this season.

The Pistons held a 20-16 lead after the first period but the Warriors took command behind Woody Sauldsberry in the second period and had a 44-39 lead at the half. At one stage in the third period, the Warriors were in front by as much as 13 points.

Detroit's George Yardley, the NBA's leading scorer, was held to 16 points and at one stretch in the second half missed on 10 straight attempts from the field.

Today's game was the lowest scoring of the 1957-58 NBA season.

Big Walter Dukes was a giant under both boards for the Pistons although he collected a flock of personal fouls early and did little in the way of scoring. The Detroit scoring was evenly divided, Gene Shue leading the way with 17, Yardly picking up 16, Harry Gallatin 15 and McGuire 13.

WARRIOR HAS HIS TROUBLES — Ernie Beck (7), Philadelphia Warriors guard, goes up for a shot in first period of game with Detroit Pistons at Detroit yesterday but finds the ball deflected by Pistons' guard Gene Shue (21) as the ball takes off in the opposite direction. In background is Dick McGuire (15) of Detroit and Paul Arizin (11) of Philadelphia. (AP Wirephoto.)

Robert E. Lee Handicap Won By Hoop Band

With a crowd of 12,651 looking on, Johnny Choquette moved Hoop Band into a two-length lead soon after the start of the mile and one-sixteenth event, widened it to five lengths heading for home and then successfully fought off St. Amour II's closing bid to gain the decision.

Rockcastle, another outsider, finished third in the field of 11 handicap stars prepping for the $50,000 added Tropical Park Handicap, one and one-half lengths behind St. Amour II. Gray Phantom, who shared top weight of 126 pounds with Fabius and the second choice, finished seventh.

Hoop Band, winner of five of 21 starts last year, negotiated the middle distance course over a fast strip in 1:42 1-5, only one-fifth of a second off the track mark he set a year ago, and rewarded his backers with an $18.40, $8.00 and $6.40 payoff. Hoop Band carried 118 pounds. St. Amour II returned $4.90 and $4.70, while Rockcastle paid $8.10.

Both Gray Phantom, winner of his last three starts, and Fabius, the 1956 Preakness winner, started off well, but both fell far back into the pack before the field had reached the top of the stretch and neither proved a threat in the run to the wire, as the front-running Hoop Band, who picked up a winner's purse of $6,400, won as he pleased.

Body Of Italian Racer Returned Home For Burial

Selva died Dec. 29 in a trial run of the Orange Bowl regatta when his Alfa Romeo-engined speedboat overturned at more than 100 miles an hour.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION

Dallas Owners Apply For Class AAA League Berth

DALLAS, Jan. 4 (UP)— The Burnett interests, which only last Monday turned the Dallas baseball franchise back to the Texas League, today applied for membership in the Class AAA American Association.

While the Burnetts — the widow of the late R. W. (Dick) Burnett and her two daughters — gave up the franchise, they still own 10,000-capacity Burnett Stadium and more than 600,000 square feet of real estate surrounding it near the downtown section of Dallas.

The application for membership was in the form of a telegram to American Association headquarters in Denver. It said:

"The withdrawal of the Dallas baseball club and its owners from the Texas League has been accepted by unanimous vote of the directors. The Burnett interests wish to make application for membership in the American Association. Please advise as to formal procedure."

The move was the first step designed to bring higher classification baseball to this city of 625,000, but it faces some legal pitfalls.

The Class AA Texas League still owns the Dallas territory and has hopes of finding someone to operate the franchise here, although whoever elects to do so will have to reach some amicable rental agreement with the Burnett's for use of the stadium and grounds.

The Burnetts, through their former general manager, Warner H. Lewis, have indicated that this rantal figure would "be reasonable, but by that we do not mean cheap."

The price might be so high, no operator would risk it. And, in that case, Dallas would automatically become "open territory" for the American Association.

Both Dallas and Houston, the big population backbone cities of the Texas League, tried to get league approval last fall to seek a berth in a higher classification league, but were voted down 6-2.

The Burnetts, who saw attendance dwindling year after year despite first-place ball clubs, indicated all along that if they didn't get Class AAA ball they would sell or lease their franchise or not operate here at all. All efforts to sell or lease fell through, so they turned the franchise back.

NO OPENING

DENVER, Jan. 4 (UP)—Ed Doherty, president of the American Association, said tonight there are no franchises available in the Class AAA league for new teams.

Doherty said he had not received a telegram sent by the Burnett interests of Dallas, asking what procedures should be followed to apply for membership in the American Association. He said he presumed it would be in his office Monday.

"In any case," Doherty told United Press, "we already have eight franchises in eight cities. Our constitution states that we must have eight franchises, no more and no less. At this time, we just have no vacancies.

"And I think baseball's blue book (of regulations) makes it clear that, at least until the opening day of next season, the Texas League holds the Dallas territory. The Texas League could fill that franchise with a team that plays in an open lot, if it wished," he said.

The Burnett interests own the baseball stadium at Dallas. They have withdrawn their team from the Texas League, and have offered to rent the stadium to a new franchise holder at a "reasonable" but not "cheap" figure.

The application for membership in the American Association apparently was based on the assumption that no one will be found to take over the Dallas franchise in the Texas League and rent the Burnett Stadium. In that case, Dallas would become "open territory" when the 1958 baseball season begins.

Doherty made it clear that the American Association does not expect any of its present member teams to have any difficulty exercising their franchises.

King O' Swords 1st In Old Hickory Run

The son of Blue Swords, winning his first race since an October triumph at Keeneland in Lexington, Ky., was two lengths in front of Speed Rouser at the end of the 1 and one-sixteenth-mile run. Joe W. Brown's Tenacious, the 11-10 favorite of the crowd of 13,780, took the show spot, one and one-half lengths behind Speed Rouser.

King o'Swords was overlooked in the betting and returned $18.60, $7.80 and $4.60. Speed Rouser, third choice at 6-1 behind Tenacious, and W. Hal Bishop's entry of Bernburgoo and River Gate, paid $7 and $4.60. Tenacious returned $2.80.

The victory was worth $6,560 to Keyes and was King o' Swords' third victory in his last seven outings. He won only $5,375 during 1957.

Speed Rouser was out first as the nine - horse field left the gate, with King O'Sword and Araway, 54-1 shot, fighting for the runner-up spot.

King O' Swoards took the lead as the field came out of the long back stretch run and showed a two - length lead over Speed Rouser entering the long dash for home. Jockey Johnny Heckmann took King O' Swords to the rail and Speed Rouser took another shot at the lead with tenacious moving up in the middle of the track.

King O' Swords held his advantage for the last eight of a mile and gave little ground to the leading challengers in the final 100 yards.

The time for the event was 1:46 4-5 over a track classified fast. Earlier races, however, showed the strip to be somewhat dull. The time was three seconds off the track mark.

The race was named in honor of Gen Andrew Jackson, who defeated the British in the Battle of New Orleans on Jan. 8, 1815.

In the runnerup feature, Bishop's Arrant Bully streaked through on the inside to win by one length over War Eagle and returned $7, $4 and $2.60.

The victory was the first in a week for Jockey Clarence Meaux, who surrendered the lead in the jockey's race to Ray Broussard.

The daily double returned $174 with Royal Bloom scoring a front-running victory in the first to pay $6.80 and War Acres, a field horse, winning the second and returning $21.80.

Kansas Expects Chamberlain's Help Tuesday

LAWRENCE, Kan., Jan. 4 (UP) —Wilt Chamberlain, seven-foot basketball All-America at Kansas, is "coming along fine" and may be able to play in the next Kansas game on Tuesday, his doctor said today.

Chamberlain became ill after the Big Eight conference pre-season tournament early this week and missed Thursday's game against Oklahoma State.

Contradicting earlier reports, Dr. Kollbjorn Jenssen of the University Student hospital said Chamberlain was suffering a urinary tract infection. He said the infection was caused by bacteria and was not the result of an injury while playing.

Earlier reports were that Chamberlain suffered a groin injury while playing against St. Josephs in Philadelphia Dec. 14.

Kansas, without Chamberlain, lost to Oklahoma State 52-50 in overtime last Thursday.

SIGN JOE YOUNG

REGINA, Sask. Jan. 4 (AP) —The Saskatchewan Roughriders of the Western Interprovincial Football Union today announced they have signed Joe Young, 6-2, 220-pound end from the University of Arizona. He is their first import signed for the 1958 season.

NON-TITLE BOUT

Jack Curtis, Jr. To Meet Barney

Young Jack Curtis, Jr. takes on veteran state heavyweight champion Bill Barney in a 75-minute co-main event bout on promoter Gus Kallio's regular Monday night wrestling card but Wild Bill's title belt will be safe.

Since Curtis refused to okay a winner - take-all match for the title, the bout will not be for the championship. However, Curtis says that if he wins Monday night, he wants a crack at the chain pionship.

A tag team bout provides the rest of the entertainment Monday night with Bernard Hudgemyer and Charley Laye meeting George Curtis and Sailor Moran over the 75-minute route. Both of the night's matches will go to the winner of two falls.

The two Curtises, Uncle George and Nephew Jack, Jr., are making their first appearance in the Monroe ring in some time and both are quick to admit they have their eyes on Barney's title belt. In fact, there seems to be a overload of challengers for Barney's newly won championship but the West Monroe mechanic is in no hurry to part with his prize.

Wild Bill says he has been reading the state rule book lately and claims he is going to be the champ for a "long time." Barney explained that the champion can engage in non-title bouts and in the meantime is going to listen to all the challengers and hear their terms.

"I am a hard worker and a business man and I might as well use my first and best hold on them even before a match," says Bill. "I'll bring my title belt to the ring with the understanding that the winner gets all the money and the championship. But if he wants an non-title match, then we can wrestle 40-60 or 50-50."

So it looks as if Barney intends to make a little loot out of his title as who wouldn't?

Bernard Hudgemyer, from Duluth, Minnesota, is said to have started back to the Southern Wrestling territory as soon as he learned Barney had won the state title, so it looks like he is interested in becoming the champion also. Hedgemyer has a reputation as a pretty rough fellow and he will have a tough partner in Laye.

Sailor Moran lost his title match last week but is interested in another chance. "I lost but I am still just a young man and I may beat him next time," he said.

Although it would be stretching the word a bit to say that Moran is a "young" man, he still might get another title shot if he wins a few matches impressively. The balding redhead gave Barney a pretty good fight last week.

Laye, who lost the title to Barney two weeks ago, is also eyeing a return bout with Bill.

Golf Schedule Shows 5 New Tournaments

DUNEDIN, Fla., Jan. 4 (UP)— Five new tournaments will highlight the Professional Golfers' Association 1958 spring and summer schedule, it was announced today.

Two new $50,000 events added to the schedule are the Buick Open Invitation June 19-22 at Grand Blanc, Mich., and the Pepsi-Boys Clubs championship June 26-29 at Norwich, N.Y.

Two other additions, the PGA said, are the $40,000 Vancouver Open Invitation Aug. 29-Sept. 1 at Vancouver, B.C., and the Denver Centennial Open invitation Sept. 11-14 at Denver, Colo.

The PGA said the world championship July 31-Aug. 3 at Chicago carries the largest purse of any event on the tour—$105,000. It added that for the first time, this event will operate as an invitation tournament.

BOWLING

With Tommy Higgins

The old year has bowed out and bowlers hope the new year has come with a bang for them—lots of strikes and better bowling.

For recreation more and more of the major business concerns are turning to bowling. A quick rundown finds Olin Mathieson with eight men's teams and four ladies' teams. There are two divisions of the men keglers. Frostkraft American League and Frostcraft National League. The Termites are leading by three points over the Kraftsmen in the American, but the Kraftsmen have registered high team series (2,846) and high team game (1,015).

The Carrugated Squares are out front in the National League. The Marketeers, in second place, are five points behind the leaders. The T-Socs hold high game (1,004) and high series (2,872) for the company league.

Another league composed strictly of company employees is the Industrial Equipment League. This circuit is topped by the very fine Southwest Gas five, leading by four points over Daly's Camera Shop. A great deal of credit should go to the top-flight bowling of J. R. Hood who holds the top average for the league—a fat 175. J. R. is flanked by such fine keglers as John Lacy, Son Wood, and Art Smith.

Southern Equipment, Foremost Dairy, Montgomery Insurance, Slagle-Johnson, Ford, Bacon and Davis, C.S.C. Hi-D, Monroe Concrete, and Falstaff are the teams that make up the rest of the league. Team series is held by Foremost Dairy (3,093) and high team belongs to Hi-D's outfit—a big 1,076. Guy Martin holds individual honors with a 248 game and a 615 series.

The Industrial League, doing little bowling during the hoildays, has a close race going. Only four points separate first place Louisiana Power and Light and sixth place C.S.C. Peak.

C.S.C. Peak has bowled the high team series, a 3,063, and L. and B. Athletic Association holds the high team game, a 1,092.

Doug Brewton's 167 is high individual average, and he holds high game for the league (243).

Henderson Curb Market continues to lead the Pioneer League. Bob Scott, E. B. Peddy, Jerry Higgins, Hollis Greene, and Bob Creighton have made it hard climbing for such fine teams as Fink's Men's Wear, Tom Spatafora's Grocery, Ouachita Security, Schlit Beer, the Bowling Center, and Chavis.

Tom Spatafora is clinging to high team game (1,118) and Fink's has bowled high team series (3,140). Sonny Durham has high individual game (344) and Luke Coonrod boasts high series (637).

Earnest Carter's big 267 game and The Forge, leading its league by four points, are two of the many highlights of the Major League this season. Others are high team series, LECO 3,148—and high team game—Royal Feed and Seed 1,143—and high individual series—Sonny Durham 650.

A red hot battle is raging in the Kegler League. Clover Leaf Dairy is on top by a mere point and a half over Jax Beer. Monroe "66", Pan-Am, Spatafora Rexall and A. and C. Music are all within striking distance. One bowling night could change the standings entirely.

Stan Bagwell and Hollis Greene are tied for high individual game (246) and Tommy Higgins has bowled high individual series (668).

A glance at the Ladies League shows Holiday Inn leading by a mere point and half over Howard Griffin; Spatafora's Pharmacy bringing up third place only four points behind.

Norma Brown has bowled high game (233) and high series (593) while Myrtle Draughn, who has been doing some fine pin toppling, holds high average, 170.

The Business Women's League, which, in years past, has come up with some ding dong finishes for first place, finds the standings quite different this year. Ora Lee Johnston's top-notch bowling has put Delta Music Company out in front by five and a half points over second place Fields. Ora Lee holds high averages (156), high game (220), and high series (580) for the league.

Rendezvous has bowled high team game (759), and high team series (2,139).

Warrior Quint Falls Before Pistons, 81-78

DETROIT, Jan. 4 (AP)—Veteran Dick McGuire sparked a fourth quarter rally that earned the Detroit Pistons an 81-78 triumph over the Philadelphia Warriors today in a National Basketball Association contest that was televised nationally.

McGuire, the playmaker, scored only 13 points but got nine of them in a frantic final period that saw the Detroit club overcome an eight point deficit they faced after the first minute of play in the period.

The triumph gave the Detroit club two straight home victories for the first time this season.

The Pistons held a 20-16 lead after the first period but the Warriors took command behind Woody Sauldsberry in the second period and had a 44-39 lead at the half. At one stage in the third period, the Warriors were in front by as much as 13 points.

Detroit's George Yardley, the NBA's leading scorer, was held to 16 points and at one stretch in the second half missed on 10 straight attempts from the field.

Today's game was the lowest scoring of the 1957-58 NBA season.

Big Walter Dukes was a giant under both boards for the Pistons although he collected a flock of personal fouls early and did little in the way of scoring. The Detroit scoring was evenly divided, Gene Shue leading the way with 17, Yardly picking up 16, Harry Gallatin 15 and McGuire 13.

Robert E. Lee Handicap Won By Hoop Band

With a crowd of 12,651 looking on, Johnny Choquette moved Hoop Band into a two-length lead soon after the start of the mile and one-sixteenth event, widened it to five lengths heading for home and then successfully fought off St. Amour II's closing bid to gain the decision.

Rockcastle, another outsider, finished third in the field of 11 handicap stars prepping for the $50,000 added Tropical Park Handicap, one and one-half lengths behind St. Amour II. Gray Phantom, who shared top weight of 126 pounds with Fabius and the second choice, finished seventh.

Hoop Band, winner of five of 21 starts last year, negotiated the middle distance course over a fast strip in 1:42 1-5, only one-fifth of a second off the track mark he set a year ago, and rewarded his backers with an $18.40, $8.00 and $6.40 payoff. Hoop Band carried 118 pounds. St. Amour II returned $4.90 and $4.70, while Rockcastle paid $8.10.

Both Gray Phantom, winner of his last three starts, and Fabius, the 1956 Preakness winner, started off well, but both fell far back into the pack before the field had reached the top of the stretch and neither proved a threat in the run to the wire, as the front-running Hoop Band, who picked up a winner's purse of $6,400, won as he pleased.

Body Of Italian Racer Returned Home For Burial

Selva died Dec. 29 in a trial run of the Orange Bowl regatta when his Alfa Romeo-engined speedboat overturned at more than 100 miles an hour.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION

Dallas Owners Apply For Class AAA League Berth

DALLAS, Jan. 4 (UP)— The Burnett interests, which only last Monday turned the Dallas baseball franchise back to the Texas League, today applied for membership in the Class AAA American Association.

While the Burnetts — the widow of the late R. W. (Dick) Burnett and her two daughters — gave up the franchise, they still own 10,000-capacity Burnett Stadium and more than 600,000 square feet of real estate surrounding it near the downtown section of Dallas.

The application for membership was in the form of a telegram to American Association headquarters in Denver. It said:

"The withdrawal of the Dallas baseball club and its owners from the Texas League has been accepted by unanimous vote of the directors. The Burnett interests wish to make application for membership in the American Association. Please advise as to formal procedure."

The move was the first step designed to bring higher classification baseball to this city of 625,000, but it faces some legal pitfalls.

The Class AA Texas League still owns the Dallas territory and has hopes of finding someone to operate the franchise here, although whoever elects to do so will have to reach some amicable rental agreement with the Burnetts for use of the stadium and grounds.

The Burnetts, through their former general manager, Warner H. Lewis, have indicated that this rantal figure would "be reasonable, but by that we do not mean cheap."

The price might be so high, no operator would risk it. And, in that case, Dallas would automatically become "open territory" for the American Association.

Both Dallas and Houston, the big population backbone cities of the Texas League, tried to get league approval last fall to seek a berth in a higher classification league, but were voted down 6-2.

The Burnetts, who saw attendance dwindling year after year despite first-place ball clubs, indicated all along that if they didn't get Class AAA ball they would sell or lease their franchise or not operate here at all. All efforts to sell or lease fell through, so they turned the franchise back.

NO OPENING

DENVER, Jan. 4 (UP)—Ed Doherty, president of the American Association, said tonight there are no franchises available in the Class AAA league for new teams.

Doherty said he had not received a telegram sent by the Burnett interests of Dallas, asking what procedures should be followed to apply for membership in the American Association. He said he presumed it would be in his office Monday.

"In any case," Doherty told United Press, "we already have eight franchises in eight cities. Our constitution states that we must have eight franchises, no more and no less. At this time, we just have no vacancies.

"And I think baseball's blue book (of regulations) makes it clear that, at least until the opening day of next season, the Texas League holds the Dallas territory. The Texas League cocld fill that franchise with a team that plays in an open lot, if it wished," he said.

The Burnett interests own the baseball stadium at Dallas. They have withdrawn their team from the Texas League, and have offered to rent the stadium to a new franchise holder at a "reasonable" but not "cheap" figure.

The application for membership in the American Association apparently was based on the assumption that no one will be found to take over the Dallas franchise in the Texas League and rent the Burnett Stadium. In that case, Dallas would become "open territory" when the 1958 baseball season begins.

Doherty made it clear that the American Association does not expect any of its present member teams to have any difficulty exercising their franchises.

King O' Swords Ist In Old Hickory Run

The son of Blue Swords, winning his first race since an October triumph at Keeneland in Lexington, Ky., was two lengths in front of Speed Rouser at the end of the 1 and one-sixteenth-mile run. Joe W. Brown's Tenacious, the 11-10 favorite of the crowd of 13,780, took the show spot, one and one-half lengths behind Speed Rouser.

King o'Swords was overlooked in the betting and returned $18.60, $7.80 and $4.60. Speed Rouser, third choice at 6-1 behind Tenacious, and W. Hal Bishop's entry of Bernburgoo and River Gate, paid $7 and $4.60. Tenacious returned $2.80.

The victory was worth $6,500 to Keyes and was King o' Swords' third victory in his last seven outings. He won only $5,375 during 1957.

Speed Rouser was out first as the nine - horse field left the gate, with King O'Sword and Araway, 54-1 shot, fighting for the runner-up spot.

King O' Swoards took the lead as the field came out of the long back stretch run and showed a two - length lead over Speed Rouser entering the long dash for home. Jockey Johnny Heckmann took King O' Swords to the rail and Speed Rouser took another shot at the lead with tenacious moving up in the middle of the track.

King O' Swords held his advantage for the last eight of a mile and gave little ground to the leading challengers in the final 100 yards.

The time for the event was 1:46 4-5 over a track classified fast. Earlier races, however, showed the strip to be somewhat dull. The time was three seconds off the track mark.

The race was named in honor of Gen Andrew Jackson, who defeated the British in the Battle of New Orleans on Jan. 8, 1815.

In the runnerup feature, Bishop's Arrant Bully streaked through on the inside to win by one length over War Eagle and returned $7, $4 and $2.60.

The victory was the first in a week for Jockey Clarence Meaux, who surrendered the lead in the jockey's race to Ray Broussard.

The daily double returned $174 with Royal Bloom scoring a front-running victory in the first to pay $6.80 and War Acres, a field horse, winning the second and returning $21.80.

Kansas Expects Chamberlain's Help Tuesday

LAWRENCE, Kan., Jan. 4 (UP) —Wilt Chamberlain, seven-foot basketball All-America at Kansas, is "coming along fine" and may be able to play in the next Kansas game on Tuesday, his doctor said today.

Chamberlain became ill after the Big Eight conference pre-season tournament early this week and missed Thursday's game against Oklahoma State.

Contradicting earlier reports, Dr. Kollbjorn Jenssen of the University Student hospital said Chamberlain was suffering a urinary tract infection. He said the infection was caused by bacteria and was not the result of an injury while playing.

Earlier reports were that Chamberlain suffered a groin injury while playing against St. Josephs in Philadelphia Dec. 14.

Kansas, without Chamberlain, lost to Oklahoma State 52-50 in overtime last Thursday.

SIGN JOE YOUNG

REGINA, Sask. Jan. 4 (AP) —The Saskatchewan Roughriders of the Western Interprovincial Football Union today announced they have signed Joe Young, 6-2, 220-pound end from the University of Arizona. He is their first import signed for the 1958 season.

NON-TITLE BOUT

Jack Curtis, Jr. To Meet Barney

Young Jack Curtis, Jr. takes on veteran state heavyweight champion Bill Barney in a 75-minute co-main event bout on promoter Gus Kallio's regular Monday night wrestling card but Wild Bill's title belt will be safe.

Since Curtis refused to okay a winner - take-all match for the title, the bout will not be for the championship. However, Curtis says that if he wins Monday night, he wants a crack at the chain pionship.

A tag team bout provides the rest of the entertainment Monday night with Bernard Hudgemyer and Charley Laye meeting George Curtis and Sailor Moran over the 75-minute route. Both of the night's matches will go to the winner of two falls.

The two Curtises, Uncle George and Nephew Jack, Jr., are making their first appearance in the Monroe ring in some time and both are quick to admit they have their eyes on Barney's title belt. In fact, there seems to be a overload of challengers for Barney's newly won championship but the West Monroe mechanic is in no hurry to part with his prize.

Wild Bill says he has been reading the state rule book lately and claims he is going to be the champ for a "long time." Barney explained that the champion can engage in non-title bouts and in the meantime is going to listen to all the challengers and hear their terms.

"I am a hard worker and a business man and, I might as well use my first and best hold on them even before a match," says Bill. "I'll bring my title belt to the ring with the understanding that the winner gets all the money and the championship. But if he wants an non-title match, then we can wrestle 40-60 or 50-50."

So it looks as if Barney intends to make a little loot out of his title as who wouldn't?

Bernard Hudgemyer, from Duluth, Minnesota, is said to have started back to the Southern Wrestling territory as soon as he learned Barney had won the state title, so it looks like he is interested in becoming the champion also. Hedgemyer has a reputation as a pretty rough fellow and he will have a tough partner in Laye.

Sailor Moran lost his title match last week but is interested in another chance. "I lost but I am still just a young man and I may beat him next time," he said.

Although it would be stretching the word a bit to say that Moran is a "young" man, he still might get another title shot if he wins a few matches impressively. The balding redhead gave Barney a pretty good fight last week.

Laye, who lost the title to Barney two weeks ago, is also eyeing a return bout with Bill.

Golf Schedule Shows 5 New Tournaments

DUNEDIN, Fla., Jan. 4 (UP)— Five new tournaments will highlight the Professional Golfers' Association 1958 spring and summer schedule, it was announced today.

Two new $50,000 events added to the schedule are the Buick Open Invitation June 19-22 at Grand Blanc, Mich., and the Pepsi-Boys Clubs championship June 26-29 at Norwich, N.Y.

Two other additions, the PGA said, are the $40,000 Vancouver Open Invitation Aug. 29-Sept. 1 at Vancouver, B.C., and the Denver Centennial Open invitation Sept. 11-14 at Denver, Colo.

The PGA said the world championship July 31-Aug. 3 at Chicago carries the largest purse of any event on the tour—$105,000. It added that for the first time, this event will operate as an invitation tournament.

MAN AND MISSILE

Day Of The Ballistic Missile Is About Here

By BEM PRICE

WASHINGTON (AP)—The day of the ballistic missile which has both intercontinental range and near pinpoint accuracy is just about here.

To reach this development stage, scientists have duplicated the principles of the universe and created temperatures 1½ times hotter than the sun.

They have developed guidance instruments which navigate without reference to any point on earth, instruments so sensitive that the weight of a lint speck from a polishing cloth will spin them off course by several degrees.

There apparently are well-founded reports that the Sperry Gyroscope Co. of Great Neck, N.Y., has produced a device known as the accelerometer which can detect—and correct—a deviation in the flight path of a missile of one hundredth of one degree.

This means that a missile fired at the moon some 238,000 miles away would hit a target no longer than a football field.

Further, these instruments are sturdy enough to be packed inside a missile which accelerates at nine times the force of gravity.

From the military standpoint two major problems have had to be mastered:

1. How to guide a missile from Point A to Point B 5,000 miles or more distant with near-pinpoint accuracy.

2. How to bring back an object ranging 600 to 1,000 miles in space without having it burned to a cinder by atmospheric friction.

To solve the first problem — at least theoretically — scientists have taken the gyroscope, which employs the principles of the universe, and incorporated it into the navigation system known as "inertial guidance."

With this system a missile, an airplane, a ship or submarine can be directed to its destination without compass, radio or radar and without a glimpse of earth, sun or stars.

The solution to the second problem involved an almost incredible search for a material—and how to shape that material once found—which had the ability:

To withstand the shock of firing. To enter the minus-100-degree cold of space without cracking. To withstand temperatures of 15,000 degrees Fahrenheit — 1½ times hotter than the sun's surface—without burning up.

The world spins on its axis with an equatorial speed of 1,000 miles per hour plus. This centrifugal force keeps its axis pointed to within one degree of the North Star.

In brief, a gyroscope can be given enough spin to keep its axis in a fixed position. If you want to change the direction of an object, you simply change the axis of the gyroscope.

The new inertial guidance system employing the gyroscope was first announced last April 18 by the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. It was largely the work of Dr. Charles S. Draper and Dr. Walter Wrigley.

They began work in 1939 on the problem under the sponsorship of Sperry and the U. S. Navy Bureau of Ordnance.

The heart of the system is a completely free-floating gyroscope sealed in a four-inch cylinder about the sixe of a tomato can. It spins in a fluid at 12,000 revolutions per minute supported by practically frictionless sapphire bearings.

By aligning the axis of the gyroscope to an imaginary star, any object which moves and can be controlled can be directed to a pre-determined target.

Further, no natural penomena such as weather, sunspots or magnetic influences will cause it to deviate from its path.

The problem of re-entry has been tackled by nearly 20 private concerns. One of the pioneers in the field is AVCO Manufacturing Corp. at Everett, Mass.

AVCO is under a 111-million-dollar contract to the Air Force to build the nose cone for the intercontinental ballistic missile Titan, now being made by the Martin Co., of Baltimore.

At the Massachusetts laboratories of AVCO a 55-year-old invention known as the shock tube was refined by Dr. Arthu Krantrowitz, one of the nation's top scientists in gas dynamics.

Kantrowitz's shock tube is a large, cannonlike assembly which, when fired, produces a shock wave so fast that its travel time is measured in millionths of a second.

The tube is fired by the high compression of a combination of gases or the explosion of oxygen and hydrogen tempered by helium and nitrogen.

As the gases flow over any object placed in the chamber of the tube conditions result which approximate that of a missiel nose cone traveling at 18,000 miles per hour. The resistance of the object to the flow of gases produces temperatures of 15,000 degrees or more.

AVCO has announced that it finally does have a cone which will meet the military's requirements. While no details are available it is known that the cone is blunt and rounded with a needle projecting outward to break the sound barrier.

Corn is the most important food plant in the United States. It is grown in every state, and on three quarters of all the farms. Though relatively little corn is eaten by people, vast quantities of it are fed to animals to produce eggs, milk, meat, and other animal products for man.

This means that a missile fired at the moon some 238,000 miles away would hit a target no longer than a football field.

Further, these instruments are sturdy enough to be packed inside a missile which accelerates at nine times the force of gravity.

From the military standpoint two major problems have had to be mastered:

1. How to guide a missile from Point A to Point B 5,000 miles or more distant with near-pinpoint accuracy.

2. How to bring back an object ranging 600 to 1,000 miles in space without having it burned to a cinder by atmospheric friction.

To solve the first problem — at least theoretically — scientists have taken the gyroscope, which employs the principles of the universe, and incorporated it into the navigation system known as "inertial guidance."

With this system a missile, an airplane, a ship or submarine can be directed to its destination without compass, radio or radar and without a glimpse of earth, sun or stars.

The solution to the second problem involved an almost incredible search for a material—and how to shape that material once found—which had the ability:

To withstand the shock of firing. To enter the minus-100-degree cold of space without cracking. To withstand temperatures of 15,000 degrees Fahrenheit — 1½ times hotter than the sun's surface—without burning up.

The world spins on its axis with an equatorial speed of 1,000 miles per hour plus. This centrifugal force keeps its axis pointed to within one degree of the North Star.

In brief, a gyroscope can be given enough spin to keep its axis in a fixed position. If you want to change the direction of an object, you simply change the axis of the gyroscope.

The new inertial guidance system employing the gyroscope was first announced last April 18 by the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. It was largely the work of Dr. Charles S. Draper and Dr. Walter Wrigley.

They began work in 1939 on the problem under the sponsorship of Sperry and the U. S. Navy Bureau of Ordnance.

The heart of the system is a completely free-floating gyroscope sealed in a four-inch cylinder about the sixe of a tomato can. It spins in a fluid at 12,000 revolutions per minute supported by practically frictionless sapphire bearings.

By aligning the axis of the gyroscope to an imaginary star, any object which moves and can be controlled can be directed to a pre-determined target.

Further, no natural penomena such as weather, sunspots or magnetic influences will cause it to deviate from its path.

The problem of re-entry has been tackled by nearly 20 private concerns. One of the pioneers in the field is AVCO Manufacturing Corp. at Everett, Mass.

AVCO is under a 111-million-dollar contract to the Air Force to build the nose cone for the intercontinental ballistic missile Titan, now being made by the Martin Co., of Baltimore.

At the Massachusetts laboratories of AVCO a 55-year-old invention known as the shock tube was refined by Dr. Arthu Krantrowitz, one of the nation's top scientists in gas dynamics.

Kantrowitz's shock tube is a large, cannonlike assembly which, when fired, produces a shock wave so fast that its travel time is measured in millionths of a second.

The tube is fired by the high compression of a combination of gases or the explosion of oxygen and hydrogen tempered by helium and nitrogen.

As the gases flow over any object placed in the chamber of the tube conditions result which approximate that of a missiel nose cone traveling at 18,000 miles per hour. The resistance of the object to the flow of gases produces temperatures of 15,000 degrees or more.

AVCO has announced that it finally does have a cone which will meet the military's requirements. While no details are available it is known that the cone is blunt and rounded with a needle projecting outward to break the sound barrier.

Corn is the most important food plant in the United States. It is grown in every state and on three quarters of all the farms. Though relatively little corn is eaten by people, vast quantities of it are fed to animals to produce eggs, milk, meat, and other animal products for man.

GUIDE TO GOOD READING

Now Is Good Season For Steady Reading

By FRANCES FLANDERS
Ouachita Parish Librarian

Now that the holiday season is over it is time that many people are ready to settle down to reading. This is the perfect time of year to read, for the weather usually keeps one indoors and a good book has an irrestible appeal. This week we have new books of all types to offer you. In fact there are so many that it is hard to decide just where to begin. Since most people enjoy fiction, I will tell you about the new fiction titles first. Alistair MacLean is a young novelist whose books have been extremely popular. His latest title is "South by Java Head." It has its setting in Singapore in the days just before its fall to the Japanese. It is the story of a group of men and women who escaped in the last ship to leave the harbor and of the exciting adventures which befell them. "The Bachelor's Baby" by Gwen Davenport is a hilarious and sophisticated story of the perfect secretary and how her baby cluttered up the boss's life. Miss Davenport writes with charm and ability and it is a book which will be widely read and enjoyed.

"Kampong" is the title of a most unusual and powerful novel dealing with the desperate fight of a medical unit to stamp out an outbreak of cholera in Indonesia. Set in an exotic background, with a cast of unforgettable characters, this book will appeal to those who like far away places and to those who like to read about medical subjects. A new mystery story is "Death of a Postman" by John Creasey. This is a tense exciting story of the work of Scotland Yard in solving a murder and preventing a crime wave.

Stories of personal adventure are always exciting whether they take place in war or peace. "Family at Sea" by John Caldwell is the story of how an adventurous young family crossed the wide Pacific in a 36-foot ketch. This family sailed from San Francisco to Australia, a distance of more than 8,000 miles. The entire ship's company consisted of the author, his wife, and two young sons, aged five and one. An exciting behind - the - scenes story of the role of photo - intelligence in the winning of World War II is called "Air Spy" and was written by Constance Babington-Smith.

One of the most beautiful books that I have seen in a long time and one that will be invaluable to those interested in the subject is called "The Concise Encyclopedia of English Pottery and Porcelain." It is profusely illustrated in color. We purchased two copies of this book, one for the headquarters library and one for the West Monroe Library. It will be classified as a reference book and will always be available when the patrons need to consult it. Are you interested in making jewelry? If so, you will want to see "Jewelry Making for The Beginning Craftsman" by Greta Pack. This book will fill a gap in our collection and we are sure that it will be widely used. Many people have seen and enjoyed the lovely Japanese miniature trees. Now we have a book called "The Japanese Art of Miniature Trees and Landscapes; Their Creation, Care and Enjoyment" written by Yuji Yoshimura and Giovanna M. Halford. This is a book for the expert gardener, of which this area has many, and we feel that it will be used and enjoyed by them.

One of the most popular subject fields among patrons of the Ouachita Parish Public Library is religion. This week we have a number of interesting new books in this field. There are two biographies of outstanding religious leaders who had a profound affect on the world. One is called "George Whitefield, Wayfaring Witness." It was written by Stuart C. Henry and deals with the fabulous career of this famous 18th century evangelist. The other is called "The Three Worlds of Albert Schweitzer" and was written by Robert Payne. This is the story of one of the great men of the modern world and what he has done for humanity. "Christian Worship" by Horton Davies is a history and explanation of the rituals of the Christian church. Books of devotions are always in demand and the newest one of this type is "Christian Maturity" by E. Stanley Jones. It is a book of daily devotional reading which help one to reach maturity. Another book which will be most valuable to young people is called "Youth Programs for Christian Growth." It contains 32 complete worship services on important topics and was compiled by Ruth Schroeder. A very valuable book of the self-help variety is "Letting God Help You" written by John A. Redhead. This is a book for everyone who needs help in Christian living.

We live in a wonderful country and there is no better way to learn about it than reading books which give us a picture of places we may not have been able to visit. "America's National Parks" by Nelson Beecher Keyes is a photographic encyclopedia of our magnificent natural wonderlands. Don't miss it. The American cowboy has a great appeal for many readers who will be happy to see "The Best of the American Cowboy" compiled and edited by Ramon F. Adams. Another fine collection is "Parade with Banners" by Donald Curross Peattie, a collection of stories of the American spirit.

There are other new books on a variety of subjects: "How to Predict What People Will Be" is the key to motivation research and was written by Louis Cheskin. This should be helpful to the merchant. "The Best Plays of 1956-57" edited by Louis Kronenberger is always eagerly awaited by the public. "Educating Gifted Children" by Robert F. DeHaan and Robert J. Havighurst is a very fine treatise on this subject.

TOO MUCH SEX

Jones' Latest Poor Quality

SOME CAME RUNNING. By James Jones. Scribner's. $7.50.

Is sex worth what a man pays for it?

Looking back at his prize-winning novel, "From Here to Eternity," and at a short story he wrote for New World Writing, I wonder whether this isn't the only question he ever asked. He has no end of answers, and he takes all the space to elaborate on them: It was a long short story; "Eternity" with 861 pages took an eternity to read, as critics noted; and this one runs to 1,266 pages, or probably the longest ever written by anybody with a short, one-syllable name like Jones.

"Some Came Running" is pure unadulterated sex, and adulterated, too. Yet it is not the sex part that bedevils Jones, but the why of the sex. In an ideal world, I suspect, he wouldn't have a jot or tittle of sex, he'd even banish the bees and flowers. Or if that isn't what he really means, why does he let it pester him so?

You may remember that in a bitter mood Karen in "Eternity" claimed every woman died three deaths: When "she is seduced of her virginity — her freedom — and husband," and she identifies the second seduction, from freedom, with a sneering:

"I believe they call it marriage."

Here the man is in the bitter mood. But it's still the same ceaseless fidgeting. Gwen accuses the writer-hero Dave and his writer friends of a curious kind of total frustration: If they can persuade a girl to love them they're so happy they stop writing; if they can't persuade her, they're so wretched they stop writing. But that is true in effect of all these men and women: Nobody gets what he wants, nobody wants what he gets. And in a way that describes the reader's perplexed response to this novel itself.

It's a story of Dave Hirsch who returns to his Midwest birthplace from which, after he brought trouble to a teen-age girl, he had been obliged by ambitious brother Frank to flee. Frank runs a jewelry store, has a wife Agnes to whom he is unfaithful with Geneve, Edith and others; Agnes thinks of taking her doctor as lover, and their daughter hops into bed, or rather bushes, with Wally. Edith's grandmother picks up white-haired drunks. Doris Fredric pretends she's a virgin and isn't, while Gwen pretends she isn't and is. Dave, unable to get anywhere with Gwen, goes to brothels with his friend 'Bama, a gambler who does well with women because, he says, he has no ethics or morals.

There are a lot of unlikelihoods and incredibilities: Dave supine before his brother in their youth, Frank becoming a millionaire in his shoe-string business operations, Dave's totally unjustified affair with Ginnie. Even when Jones creates a mood, he's apt to destroy it with words that don't read the way they look, "shed" for "she'd" and "wed" for "we'd; he thinks "accost" means "accuse," and writes one phrase I can't translate at all: "bask in the glory they were deflecting him."

But these are minor compared to the dogged, frenetic reiteration that sex is sex is sex and why must it eternally interfere, foil, frustrate and balk? Jones doesn't need 1,200 pages to tell us some like it hot, some like it cold as the nursery rhyme taught long ago; that women are more realistic than men; that European women are better than American —James Michener said the same of Japanese in a fifth of Jones's space. The funniest line in the book, and it wasn't meant that way, is author Dave's independent decision with respect to a book he has written: "If it didn't sell because there wasn't enough sex in it, why to hell with that."

But in spite of all this, in spite of the overpowering single-minded preoccupation, make no mistake about it: Jones is a writer. It is his privilege to pick on any subect he pleases. He can set it afire, make people really talk, and carry a story along. And he is serious, exactly like his Dave: If all this sex does indeed prove unbelievably saleable, that's not the reason why he put it in.

From Writer's Notebook Is Good Reading

"Nothing good can come from writers who are at ease in their Zion."

"The literary mind needs to be misunderstood; it requires something hard in the air that surrounds it."

"The great man" — lawyer, businessman—does "not know that some problems cannot be solved by pressing a button, that literary taste and skill are the reward of years of humble effort."

"By good work a writer earns a reputation; then his reputation earns him a lucrative job; then the lucrative job destroys the reputation."

"Gibbon observes that the ancient Germans, when they were sommoned to a public meeting, would lag behind the appointed time in order to show their independence. — Similarly, my friend X and other editorial potentates rattle their papers on their desks for 10 or 20 minutes, before they admit their suppliants."

Work, conditions of work, rewards and penalties for it, and the likelihood that it won't be appreciated anyway — that's the sum of these reflections culled from what Brooks culled from his "Notebook." He has a lot of discerning comments on travel, woman, genius, biography, and he groups them under various stimulating heads — novelists, words, the avant - garde, the literary life and others. One of the most cultured, and American-cultured, minds of our time, Brooks has a relaxed and informal mood which in its way is as richly satisfying as Brooks the historian of our literature.

'Vanessa' May Become 1st Successful U.S. Opera

By W. G. ROGERS
Associated Press Arts Editor

NEW YORK (AP)—Next Wednesday night for the first time in 20 years the Metropolitan Opera will stage a full-length American opera, "Vanessa," by Samuel Barber, with libretto by Gian-Carlo Menotti.

Dimitri Mitropoulos, who will conduct, gave me this forecast:

"I'm sure it will be the first successful American opera."

In a way that isn't saying much because, box-officewise at the Met, American opera has come at the bottom of the list, or even a little below that.

First American opera which the Met ventured to produce was "The Pipe of Desire," by Frederic S. Converse, a one-acter that enjoyed two and only two performances in 1910.

Most Disappeared Fast

Barber's is the 20th. Of this number, only eight have been full-length. Deems Taylor's "Peter Ibbetson," premiered in 1931, led with 16 performances in four seasons, and runner-up, again by Taylor, was "The King's Henchman," 1927, with 14 performances. In third place was Louis Gruenberg's "The Emperor Jones," 1933, with nine, and then Charles Wakefield Cadman's "Shanewis," 1918, with eight. Most of them had two to four performances and then were lost somewhere; the public preferred the Italian style, or the German, and the Met preferred to satisfy the public.

It has been 11 years since America's Met offered anything American, and that was a one-acter which had two performances.

Now we are promised a much brighter prospect. Mitropoulos exulted: " 'Vanessa' is highly dramatic, and very melodic, with wonderful duets and solos and a masterpiece of a quintet at the end.

"Also what is magnificent about it is the sense of economy of time, the sense of the theater kind of time that so few writers have known except Verdi and Puccini, but that both Barber and Menotti know very well. They are America's two best theatre-minded writers."

"What's more, I know what the public likes and I know the public will like this," Mitropoulos continued. 'It doesn't want things too highly elaborated, or too intellectual, it wants operatic things straight and clear.

"Barber has not only a great musical talent but also a fine practical talent. He has understood an essential secret, that when you make a work too difficult you foil your own purpose.

"This is Barber writing out of his own wide experience, this is the same Barber, not a new one, but mature."

What does Barber have to say?

He comes honestly by his commitment to a career in music, for he is the nephew of Louise Homer and in fact he once studied voice. That stood him in good stead, he remembers, when it came time to demonstrate his completed opus to Met manager Rudolf Bing, Bing's artistic director Max Rudolf and assorted other persons: Barber sat at the piano at his publisher's and sang —it's a two-hour work—for soprano, tenor and the rest. It worked, and the Met accepted "Vaness" in 1956.

Barber said he had always been looking for a libretto. "I talked to Dylan Thomas, but the war interfered. I talked to James Agree, and to Thornton Wilder. Then Menotti volunteered to write one.

"Menotti and I have been friends forever. We were fellow students at the Curtis Institute.

"He began in 1954, and did the first scene up to the time when, after the ladies young and old have discussed the long absent lover, Anatol appears in their doorway.

"But that was as far as Menotti could get, for he was rehearsing 'The Saint of Bleecker Street,' and all fall and winter we had to leave that hapless tenor standing in that drafty doorway."

But isn't that bad for a composer, too?

Just as hard as on the tenor, Barber said. But he finally got the complete book, and had all his orchestration done more than a year ago.

Chekhovian Shadows

"I have used the full resources of the modern orchestral technique, and at the same time I on occasion let the voices predominate. There is something Chekhovian about Menotti's characters, and that interested me greatly."

When did he first compose? At 7. When did he do his first opera? At 9, to a libretto furnished by the family cook. Where did he get that flossy name Vanessa? Out of a book entitled "How to Name Your Child."

MAIN COURSE—If he likes, a Hong Kong diner can choose the snake from which his meal will be carved. This well-fattened specimen tipped the scale at 10 pounds.

IN HONG KONG

Cafes Specialize In Snake Dishes

By ROBERT TUCKMAN

HONG KONG (AP) — Snakes are in season now in Hong Kong.

You can order up a snake soup, snake steak or snake stew in most Chinese restaurants serving Cantonese-style food.

One of the most popular dishes is a mixture of snake, cat and chicken meat which is listed on the menu as "Dragon, Tiger and Phoenix" stew.

The Chinese consider snake meat a delicacy — and a health treatment. It is reputed to be good for everything from sore toe to long life.

The snake eating season is in the late fall and winter months, after the snakes have "fattened up" during the summer.

A bowl of snake soup (three varieties of snakes) costs 1.50 Hong Kong dollars (25 cents in American money). Five - snake and seven-snake soups run higher.

The kinds of snakes offered include cobra, garter, and varieties known to the Chinese as "three treads," "white flower," and "three climber."

If you're a real snake gourmet, you can select the snakes you want before they are cooked.

An expert snake chef — and it takes an expert — can kill and skin a snake for cooking in a minute and a half.

So enthusiastic are some Chinese about snake food that they have banded together in a "snake Feasters Association." Every now and then they hold a snakefest.

You can also eat dogs, cats or 100-year-old eggs in Hong Kong.

But that's another three meals.

MARCH OF SCIENCE

Comet May Not Be Actually On Fire

NEW YORK, Jan. 4 (AP)—Those comets that blaze fiery trails across our skies may not really be on fire at all. In fact, they may be icebergs of space. And pretty dirty icebergs, at that.

At any rate, that's the theory fathered and propounded by Dr. Fred C. Whipple director of the Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory in Cambridge, Mass.

With Russia's Sputniks drawing attention to the heavens above, more and more questions are being asked about comets and probably more and more comets will be seen.

Comets are a collection of frozen gases, ice and bits of spatial dust, dirt and meteors. They form far out in space, millions of miles from the sun. Moving through space, they gather speed as they near the sun and the pull of gravity increases.

At the same time, subtle changes begin to occur as the frozen nucleus of the comet warms up. The gases vaporize somewhat and become fluorescent in the rays of the sun. The dust of the nucleus reflects the light of the sun, too.

As it first appears to us on earth the nucleus (or head) looks like a bright point of light—a little star. As it moves faster and more gases vaporize, the tail appears, a thin stream of fluorescent gases and dust.

There are very few rules for a comet to follow. One inescapable law is that it must revolve around the sun. Some pass close to the sun, some pass far away.

Comets move in elongated eclipses, some of fantastic size. It is estimated that the orbit of a comet sighted in 1864 is so long it may be more than two million years before it returns.

About 50 comets are known to have orbital periods of less than 100 years. Halley's spectacular comet, which took up most of the southwestern sky when it appeared to the naked eye in 1910, is expected to show up again about 1985. Its tail was so long that the head appeared in some places in early morning while the tail was still visible to other parts of the earth the preceding evening.

The comet of 1744 had six tails in a great fan. The Great Comet of 1843 had a tail 200 million miles long.

The head of a comet may be 30,000 miles in diameter or it may be a million. Some comets ten times as large as the earth have been seen.

It has been guessed that meteor showers which sometimes drop on the arth really are worn-out comets, trapped by the earth's gravity.

But anyone can be sure they will have to learn the nature of comets themselves — something astronomers admit is still in the realm of conjecture.

TV notes

NEW YORK (UP) — The 15-episode serial that began this week on ABC's "Mickey Mouse Club" was filmed entirely in Britain. The leading players in "Clint and Mac" are Neil Wolfe, 16-year-old son of a U. S. Army officer, and Jonathan Bailey, 13, a British actor. The girl is a 13-year-old British actress named Sandra Michaels.

The Jan. 9 "Shower of Stars" on CBS will have Tommy Sands, Jo Stafford, Paul Weston, Ed Wynn and Chiquita and Johnson aiding Jack Benny.

New additions to the already "loaded" cast for the "The Bridge of San Luis Rey" on the CBS "Du Pont Show of the Month" Jan. 21 include such important players as Hume Cronyn, Rita Gam, Kurt Kaszner and Theodore Bikel.

Paul Newman and Joanne Woodward will co-star in the Jan. 16 "Playhouse 90" show on CBS. This will be a play entitled "The 80-Yard Run," based on a short story by Irwin Shaw.

The CBS network introduces "Dotto" on Jan. 6. This is a five-a-week at 11:30 a.m. show featuring a champion and a challenger competing for money prizes in a contest that calls for them to trace dots and form a picture. Answering general knowledge questions for point values also figures in the game. Five dollars will be paid for each connected dot, and the first to identify the person, place or thing being formed by linking the dots is the winner.

GUIDE TO GOOD READING

Now Is Good Season For Steady Reading

By FRANCES FLANDERS
Ouachita Parish Librarian

Now that the holiday season is over it is time that many people are ready to settle down to reading. This is the perfect time of year to read, for the weather usually keeps one indoors and a good book has an irrestible appeal. This week we have new books of all types to offer you. In fact there are so many that it is hard to decide just where to begin. Since most people enjoy fiction, I will tell you about the new fiction titles first. Alistair MacLean is a young novelist whose books have been extremely popular. His latest title is "South by Java Head." It has its setting in Singapore in the days just before its fall to the Japanese. It is the story of a group of men and women who escaped in the last ship to leave the harbor and of the exciting adventures which befell them. "The Bachelor's Baby" by Gwen Davenport is a hilarious and sophisticated story of the perfect secretary and how her baby cluttered up the boss's life. Miss Davenport writes with charm and ability and it is a book which will be widely read and enjoyed.

"Kampong" is the title of a most unusual and powerful novel dealing with the desperate fight of a medical unit to stamp out an outbreak of cholera in Indonesia. Set in an exotic background, with a cast of unforgettable characters, this book will appeal to those who like far away places and to those who like to read about medical subjects. A new mystery story is "Death of a Postman" by John Creasey. This is a tense exciting story of the work of Scotland Yard in solving a murder and preventing a crime wave.

Stories of personal adventure are always exciting whether they take place in war or peace. "Family at Sea" by John Caldwell is the story of how an adventurous young family crossed the wide Pacific in a 36-foot ketch. This family sailed from San Francisco to Australia, a distance of more than 8,000 miles. The entire ship's company consisted of the author, his wife, and two young sons, aged five and one. An exciting behind - the - scenes story of the role of photo - intelligence in the winning of World War II is called "Air Spy" and was written by Constance Babington-Smith.

One of the most beautiful books that I have seen in a long time and one that will be invaluable to those interested in the subject is called "The Concise Encyclopedia of English Pottery and Porcelain.' It is profusely illustrated in color. We purchased two copies of this book, one for the headquarters library and one for the West Monroe Library. It will be classified as a reference book and will always be available when the patrons need to consult it. Are you interested in making jewelry? If so, you will want to see "Jewelry Making for The Beginning Craftsman" by Greta Pack. This book will fill a gap in our collection and we are sure that it will be widely used. Many people have seen and enjoyed the lovely Japanese miniature trees. Now we have a book called "The Japanese Art of Miniature Trees and Landscapes; Their Creation, Care and Enjoyment" written by Yuji Yoshimura and Giovanna M. Halford. This is a book for the expert gardener, of which this area has many, and we feel that it will be used and enjoyed by them.

One of the most popular subject fields among patrons of the Ouachita Parish Public Library is religion. This week we have a number of interesting new books in this field. There are two biographies of outstanding religious leaders who had a profound affect on the world. One is called "George Whitefield, Wayfaring Witness." It was written by Stuart C. Henry and deals with the fabulous career of this famous 18th century evangelist. The other is called "The Three Worlds of Albert Schweitzer" and was written by Robert Payne. This is the story of one of the great men of the modern world and what he has done for humanity. "Christian Worship" by Horton Davies is a history and explanation of the rituals of the Christian church. Books of devotions are always in demand and the newest one of this type is "Christian Maturity" by E. Stanley Jones. It is a book of daily devotional reading which help one to reach maturity. Another book which will be most valuable to young people is called "Youth Programs for Christian Growth." It contains 32 complete worship services on important topics and was compiled by Ruth Schroeder. A very valuable book of the self-help variety is "Letting God Help You" written by John A. Redhead. This is a book for everyone who needs help in Christian living.

We live in a wonderful country and there is no better way to learn about it than reading books which give us a picture of places we may not have been able to visit. "America's National Parks" by Nelson Beecher Keyes is a photographic encyclopedia of our magnificent natural wonderlands. Don't miss it. The American cowboy has a great appeal for many readers who will be happy to see "The Best of the American Cowboy" compiled and edited by Ramon F. Adams. Another fine collection is "Parade with Banners" by Donald Curross Peattie, a collection of stories of the American spirit.

There are other new books on a variety of subjects: "How to Predict What People Will Be" is the key to motivation research and was written by Louis Cheskin. This should be helpful to the merchant. "The Best Plays of 1956-57" edited by Louis Kronenberger is always eagerly awaited by the public. "Educating Gifted Children" by Robert F. DeHaan and Robert J. Havighurst is a very fine treatise on this subject.

TOO MUCH SEX

Jones' Latest Poor Quality

SOME CAME RUNNING. By James Jones. Scribner's. $7.50.

Is sex worth what a man pays for it?

Looking back at his prize-winning novel, "From Here to Eternity," and at a short story he wrote for New World Writing, I wonder whether this isn't the only question he ever asked. He has no end of answers, and he takes all the space to elaborate on them: It was a long short story; "Eternity" with 861 pages took an eternity to read, as critics noted; and this one runs to 1,266 pages, or probably the longest ever written by anybody with a short, one-syllable name like Jones.

"Some Came Running" is pure unadulterated sex, and adulterated, too. Yet it is not the sex part that bedevils Jones, but the why of the sex. In an ideal world, I suspect, he wouldn't have a jot or tittle of sex, he'd even banish the bees and flowers. Or if that isn't what he really means, why does he let it pester him so?

You may remember that in a bitter mood Karen in "Eternity" claimed every woman died three deaths: When "she is seduced of her virginity — her freedom — and husband," and she identifies the second seduction, from freedom, with a sneering:

"I believe they call it marriage."

Here the man is in the bitter mood. But it's still the same ceaseless fidgeting. Gwen accuses the writer-hero Dave and his writer friends of a curious kind of total frustration: If they can persuade a girl to love them they're so happy they stop writing; if they can't persuade her, they're so wretched they stop writing. But that is true in effect of all these men and women: Nobody gets what he wants, nobody wants what he gets. And in a way that describes the reader's perplexed response to this novel itself.

It's a story of Dave Hirsch who returns to his Midwest birthplace from which, after he brought trouble to a teen-age girl, he had been obliged by ambitious brother Frank to flee. Frank runs a jewelry store, has a wife Agnes to whom he is unfaithful with Geneve, Edith and others; Agnes thinks of taking her doctor as lover, and their daughter hops into bed, or rather bushes, with Wally. Edith's grandmother picks up white-haired drunks. Doris Fredric pretends she's a virgin and isn't, while Gwen pretends she isn't and is. Dave, unable to get anywhere with Gwen, goes to brothels with his friend 'Bama, a gambler who does well with women because, he says, he has no ethics or morals.

There are a lot of unlikelihoods and incredibilities: Dave supine before his brother in their youth, Frank becoming a millionaire in his shoe-string business operations, Dave's totally unjustified affair with Ginnie. Even when Jones creates a mood, he's apt to destroy it with words that don't read the way they look, "shed" for "she'd" and "wed" for "we'd; he thinks "accost" means "accuse," and writes one phrase I can't translate at all: "bask in the glory they were deflecting him."

But these are minor compared to the dogged, frenetic reiteration that sex is sex is sex and why must it eternally interfere, foil, frustrate and balk? Jones doesn't need 1,200 pages to tell us some like it hot, some like it cold as the nursery rhyme taught long ago; that women are more realistic than men; that European women are better than American —James Michener said the same of Japanese in a fifth of Jones's space. The funniest line in the book, and it wasn't meant that way, is author Dave's independent decision with respect to a book he has written: "If it didn't sell because there wasn't enough sex in it, why to hell with that."

But in spite of all this, in spite of the overpowering single-minded preoccupation, make no mistake about it: Jones is a writer. It is his privilege to pick on any subect he pleases. He can set it afire, make people really talk, and carry a story along. And he is serious, exactly like his Dave: If all this sex does indeed prove unbelievably saleable, that's not the reason why he put it in.

From Writer's Notebook Is Good Reading

"Nothing good can come from writers who are at ease in their Zion."

"The literary mind needs to be misunderstood; it requires something hard in the air that surrounds it."

"The great man" — lawyer, businessman—does "not know that some problems cannot be solved by pressing a button, that literary taste and skill are the reward of years of humble effort."

"By good work a writer earns a reputation; then his reputation earns him a lucrative job; then the lucrative job destroys the reputation."

"Gibbon observes that the ancient Germans, when they were sommoned to a public meeting, would lag behind the appointed time in order to show their independence. — Similarly, my friend X and other editorial potentates rattle their papers on their desks for 10 or 20 minutes, before they admit their suppliants."

Work, conditions of work, rewards and penalties for it, and the likelihood that it won't be appreciated anyway — that's the sum of these reflections culled from what Brooks culled from his "Notebook." He has a lot of discerning comments on travel, woman, genius, biography, and he groups them under various stimulating heads — novelists, words, the avant - garde, the literary life and others. One of the most cultured, and American-cultured, minds of our time, Brooks has a relaxed and informal mood which in its way is as richly satisfying as Brooks the historian of our literature.

'Vanessa' May Become 1st Successful U.S. Opera

By W. G. ROGERS
Associated Press Arts Editor

NEW YORK (AP)—Next Wednesday night for the first time in 20 years the Metropolitan Opera will stage a full-length American opera, "Vanessa," by Samuel Barber, with libretto by Gian-Carlo Menotti.

Dimitri Mitropoulos, who will conduct, gave me this forecast:

"I'm sure it will be the first successful American opera."

In a way that isn't saying much because, box-officewise at the Met, American opera has come at the bottom of the list, or even a little below that.

First American opera which the Met ventured to produce was "The Pipe of Desire," by Frederic' S. Converse, a one-acter that enjoyed two and only two performances in 1910.

Most Disappeared Fast

Barber's is the 20th. Of this number, only eight have been full-length. Deems Taylor's "Peter Ibbetson," premiered in 1931, led with 16 performances in four seasons, and runner-up, again by Taylor, was "The King's Henchman," 1927, with 14 performances. In third place was Louis Gruenberg's "The Emperor Jones," 1933, with nine, and then Charles Wakefield Cadman's "Shanewis," 1918, with eight. Most of them had two to four performances and then were lost somewhere; the public preferred the Italian style, or the German, and the Met preferred to satisfy the public.

It has been 11 years since America's Met offered anything American, and that was a one-acter which had two performances.

Now we are promised a much brighter prospect. Mitropoulos exulted: " 'Vanessa' is highly dramatic, and very melodic, with wonderful duets and solos and a masterpiece of a quintet at the end.

"Also what is magnificent about it is the sense of economy of time, the sense of the theater kind of time that so few writers have known except Verdi and Puccini, but that both Barber and Menotti know very well. They are America's two best theatre-minded writers."

"What's more, I know what the public likes and I know the public will like this," Mitropoulos continued. 'It doesn't want things too highly elaborated, or too intellectual, it wants operatic things straight and clear.

"Barber has not only a great musical talent but also a fine practical talent. He has understood an essential secret, that when you make a work too difficult you foil your own purpose.

"This is Barber writing out of his own wide experience, this is the same Barber, not a new one, but mature."

What does Barber have to say? He comes honestly by his commitment to a career in music, for he is the nephew of Louise Homer and in fact he once studied voice. That stood him in good stead, he remembers, when it came time to demonstrate his completed opus to Met manager Rudolf Bing, Bing's artistic director Max Rudolf and assorted other persons; Barber sat at the piano at his publisher's and sang —it's a two-hour work—for soprano, tenor and the rest. It worked, and the Met accepted "Vaness" in 1956.

Barber said he had always been looking for a libretto. "I talked to Dylan Thomas, but the war interfered. I talked to James Agree, and to Thornton Wilder. Then Menotti volunteered to write one.

"Menotti and I have been friends forever. We were fellow students at the Curtis Institute.

"He began in 1954, and did the first scene up to the time when, after the ladies young and old have discussed the long absent lover, Anatol appears in their doorway.

"But that was as far as Menotti could get, for he was rehearsing 'The Saint of Bleecker Street,' and all fall and winter we had to leave that hapless tenor standing in that drafty doorway."

But isn't that bad for a composer, too?

Just as hard as on the tenor, Barber said. But he finally got the complete book, and had all his orchestration done more than a year ago.

Chekhovian Shadows

"I have used the full resources of the modern orchestral technique, and at the same time I on occasion let the voices predominate. There is something Chekhovian about Menotti's characters, and that interested me greatly."

When did he first compose? At 7. When did he do his first opera? At 9, to a libretto furnished by the family cook. Where did he get that flossy name Vanessa? Out of a book entitled "How to Name Your Child."

MAIN COURSE—If he likes, a Hong Kong diner can choose the snake from which his meal will be carved. This well-fattened specimen tipped the scale at 10 pounds.

IN HONG KONG

Cafes Specialize In Snake Dishes

By ROBERT TUCKMAN

HONG KONG (AP) — Snakes are in season now in Hong Kong.

You can order up a snake soup, snake steak or snake stew in most Chinese restaurants serving Cantonese-style food.

One of the most popular dishes is a mixture of snake, cat and chicken meat which is listed on the menu as "Dragon, Tiger and Phoenix" stew.

The Chinese consider snake meat a delicacy — and a health treatment. It is reputed to be good for everything from sore toe to long life.

The snake eating season is in the late fall and winter months, after the snakes have "fattened up" during the summer.

A bowl of snake soup (three varieties of snakes) costs 1.50 Hong Kong dollars (25 cents in American money). Five - snake and seven-snake soups run higher.

The kinds of snakes offered include cobra, garter, and varieties known to the Chinese as "three treads," "white flower," and "three climber."

If you're a real snake gourmet, you can select the snakes you want before they are cooked.

An expert snake chef — and it takes an expert — can kill and skin a snake for cooking in a minute and a half.

So enthusiastic are some Chinese about snake food that they have banded together in a "snake Feasters Association." Every now and then they hold a snakefest.

You can also eat dogs, cats or 100-year-old eggs in Hong Kong.

But that's another three meals.

MARCH OF SCIENCE

Comet May Not Be Actually On Fire

NEW YORK, Jan. 4 (AP)—Those comets that blaze fiery trails across our skies may not really be on fire at all. In fact, they may be icebergs of space. And pretty dirty icebergs, at that.

At any rate, that's the theory fathered and propounded by Dr. Fred C. Whipple director of the Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory in Cambridge, Mass.

With Russia's Sputniks drawing attention to the heavens above, more and more questions are being asked about comets and probably more and more comets will be seen.

Comets are a collection of frozen gases, ice and bits of spatial dust, dirt and meteors. They form far out in space, millions of miles from the sun. Moving through space, they gather speed as they near the sun and the pull of gravity increases.

At the same time, subtle changes begin to occur as the frozen nucleus of the comet warms up. The gases vaporize somewhat and become fluorescent in the rays of the sun. The dust of the nucleus reflects the light of the sun, too.

As it first appears to us on earth the nucleus (or head) looks like a bright point of light—a little star. As it moves faster and more gases vaporize, the tail appears, a thin stream of fluorescent gases and dust.

There are very few rules for a comet to follow. One inescapable law is that it must revolve around the sun. Some pass close to the sun, some pass far away.

Comets move in elongated eclipses, some of fantastic size. It is estimated that the orbit of a comet sighted in 1864 is so long it may be more than two million years before it returns.

About 50 comets are known to have orbital periods of less than 100 years. Halley's spectacular comet, which took up most of the southwestern sky when it appeared to the naked eye in 1910, is expected to show up again about 1985. Its tail was so long that the head appeared in some places in early morning while the tail was still visible to other parts of the earth the preceding evening.

Some comets are highly unusual. The comet of 1744 had six tails in a great fan. The Great Comet of 1843 had a tail 200 million miles long.

The head of a comet may be 30,000 miles in diameter or it may be a million. Some comets ten times as large as the earth have been seen.

It has been guessed that meteor showers which sometimes drop on the arth really are worn-out comets, trapped by the earth's gravity.

But anyone can be sure they will have to learn the nature of comets themselves — something astronomers admit is still in the realm of conjecture.

TV notes

NEW YORK (UP) — The 15-episode serial that began this week on ABC's "Mickey Mouse Club" was filmed entirely in Britain. The leading players in "Clint and Mac" are Neil Wolfe, 16-year-old son of a U. S. Army officer, and Jonathan Bailey, 13, a British actor. The girl is a 13-year-old British actress named Sandra Michaels.

The Jan. 9 "Shower of Stars" on CBS will have Tommy Sands, Jo Stafford, Paul Weston, Ed Wynn and Chiquita and Johnson aiding Jack Benny.

New additions to the already "loaded" cast for the "The Bridge of San Luis Rey" on the CBS "Du Pont Show of the Month" Jan. 21 include such important players as Hume Cronyn, Rita Gam, Kurt Kaszner and Theodore Bikel.

Paul Newman and Joanne Woodward will co-star in the Jan. 16 "Playhouse 90" show on CBS. This will be a play entitled "The 80-Yard Run," based on a short story by Irwin Shaw.

The CBS network introduces "Dotto" on Jan. 6. This is a five-a-week at 11:30 a.m. show featuring a champion and a challenger competing for money prizes in a contest that calls for them to trace dots and form a picture. Answering general knowledge questions for point values also figures in the game. Five dollars will be paid for each connected dot, and the first to identify the person, place or thing being formed by linking the dots is the winner.

La. Revamps Tax Forms For Public

By JAMES MCLEAN

BATON ROUGE, Jan. 4 (AP) — Revenue Collector James S. Reily today made public a streamlined set of Louisiana income tax regulations based on a year of staff study.

The work—417 pages — represents the first "comprehensive achievement in this field of administration since 1938," he said.

The state collector hastened to assure taxpayers the tax laws and rates remain unchanged.

"The changes in regulations," he emphasized, "were designed to cover the multitude of minute details necessary for proper administration—which could not be dealt with directly in an effective manner by the Legislature."

The lawmakers enact an outline, the revenue staff has to fill in the procedure. For instance, a major revision clarifies how a resident or non-resident is determined in figuring the state tax liability.

Under the law, Louisiana residents pay a full tax no matter where they earn it. Non-residents or temporary workers pay only on income sources earned in this state, with the new revision make this category clear.

Answers Questions

While the new regulations might not win approval of all the more than 100,000 taxpayers, Reily said, "they do make the department's position known on many questions of importance to the taxpayer and the state."

Although the revisions were not designed primarily to tighten enforcement, Reily's assistants said the changes will have that effect since the department is making a written declaration of policies on many points not covered previously.

The job was undertaken because of inquiries from attorneys, accountants and taxpayers in general.

While the income tax forms less than 10 per cent of state revenues, Reily said, there is more interest in its regulations than in any other tax rules.

Some of the major points covered:

1. Companies have been relieved of the necessity of filing many thousands of information returns on small dividends, because the department has lifted the $100 floor to $500.

2. The liability of workers temporarily employed Louisiana has been made clear.

3. The proper way to handle "sickness benefits" is explained. Basically, taxpayers receiving pay under sickness or similar wage continuation plans may exclude such pay from gross income, provided certain requirements are met.

4. A method is provided for spreading the consolidated federal tax liability back to the individual companies involved.

5. The method of computing the amount of federal income taxes attributable to income not taxes is outlined in detail.

6. More than 60 pages are devoted to some regulations dealing with the complex problems arising in the field of depreciation, depletion and intangible drilling and development costs.

7. Full details are provided for many problems concerning foreign corporations which account for a substantial portion of the state's income tax collections. For instance, methods for allocating interest and non-business deductions are provided, as well as methods for determining the amounts to be used in the various factors provided in the statutory formula used to determine the formula used to determine the correct tax liability.

The first copies — some 4,000 were printed—are being distributed to other states with state income taxes, because of mutual arrangements with Louisiana, and to fill orders mostly from attorneys and accounts. Copies may be obtained from the department at $3.83 each.

New Disney Film Appealing To All

The gorgeous Technicolor production is, in form, a wild animal operetta, featuring the life and loves of a fascinating pair of western pine squirrels, along with a troupe of their forest companions on nature's great evergreen stage in the Utah wilderness.

Adapted and greatly expanded from Felix Salten's beguiling animal romance, the amusing, exciting, tender and at moments ferocious behavior of the principals, Perri and Porro, and company shapes into intense natural crama. While the performers may be comparatively small in size, their spirit and courage and charming personality give them true greatness. Altogether, they create a new dimension in screen diversion.

The particular appeal of "Perri" —tch romantic charm — lies in the fact that here for the first time on the theatre screen the lives of two beautiful wild animals are intimately followed.

While the substance comes direct from living nature, the treatment is Disney throughout. There is a keen sense of the fabulous about the splendid presentation, enacted against magnificent backdrop of mountain woodland. Animal cries and bird song run through the musical score and the three major songs, "Break of Day," "Now to Sleep" and "Together Time." There is fantasy in the music as well as in the eefe dream sequence and ballets dedicated to the seasons.

Perri and Porro are utterly fascinating and will seal the heart from many an audience — creatures as lovely as ever have been brought to the theatre, in fable or in equally wondrous fact.

"Perri" is released by Buena Vista.

'Peyton Place' Now Showing At Paramount

DIANE VARSI

When the makers of "Peyton Place" started making the film over a year ago they also started a search for an unknown actress to portray the pivotal role of "Allison MacKenzie."

Little did they realize at the time that the search would yield an amazing girl like Diane Varsi. The girl is 19-years old and from San Francisco.

Diane's brilliant debut opposite such screen veterans as Lana Turner, Lloyd Nolan, Betty Field and Arthur Kennedy in "Peyton Place," and other young stars like Hope Lange, Lee Phillips, Russ Tamblyn, Terry Moore, David Nelson and Barry Coe, won her enthusiastic appraisal of her work.

The film of "Peyton Place" is now showing at the Paramount Theatre on a selected run and patrons are asked to see it from the beginning to enjoy it the most.

The lengthy film, two hours and 42 minutes, has been hailed as one of the greatest of all films and was produced in CinemaScope and in Color.

Tot's Health Condition Now Being Probed

FORT WORTH, Jan. 4 (UP)—A three-year-old boy, who weighs only 20 pounds, was in temporary custody of the county probation office today while recovering from severe bruises.

Assistant Probation Officer Ralph Woods said Richard Roy Turner, in addition to his bruises, has two teeth missing. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Victor O. Turner, took the child to a doctor Thursday night, who in turn placed him in St. Joseph's Hospital.

An inquiry is underway as to how the child was bruised. Tarrant county authorities studied a report from Neal Wofford, chief probation officer at Cleburne, near where the Turners formerly lived, which said the child had been mistreated eight months ago.

Rising Crime Rate Hits Penal System

BATON ROUGE, Jan. 4 (AP)—A rising crime rate has tossed a monkey wrench into operations of Louisiana's penal and correctional institutions, institutions director Edward Grant said today.

He added, in a year-end report, patients were crammed into the State Colony and Training School for the mentally retarded until the institutions board was forced to close the Pineville institution to new patients through June, except to fill vacancies.

"Unfortunately," Grant said, "we cannot close down our penitentiary at Angola or our correctional schools just because they are overcrowded."

One possible outlet for surplus prison population at Angola penitentiary is the Louisiana Correctional Institute at DeQuincy.

Designed for 500 youthful first offenders, LCI was completed this fall and awaits funds from the 1958 Legislature to start operations.

Solution Seen

Grant pointed to a possible long-term solution to overcrowding in a testing program devised to discover potential delinquets before they get into trouble.

The Institutions Department's research staff has developed the test which Grant said "may well provide some local groups with information needed for their first step in crime prevention—the only permanent solution to Louisiana's growing problem of delinquency."

Grant said Angola had a population of 3,392 at the end of 1957 in an institution built to house 2,750. The State Colony had 1,619 and a waiting list of over 400.

In the correctional schools, the State Industrial School for Colored Youth at Scotlandville had 477 children, Louisiana Training Institute at Monroe 312 boys, while the State Industrial School for Girls at Pineville had 74, the only decrease of the year.

Grant said the high crime rate had built up over the past 10 years and "if nothing is done to slow it down, the problem will become worse, not better. . . ."

Cites Progress

But even with overcrowding, the institutions director said, progress was made at Angola in:

1. A new 33-day orientation-quarantine period for testing and classifying new prisoners more accurately.

2. An expanded educational program with emphasis on illiterates, who make up 22 per cent of the total prison population. In the last five months, Grant said, 150 prisoners have been taught to read and write.

3. Expanded vocational training which benefits prisoners and also helps produce food and equipment for the prison and other state institutions.

4. Increasing emphasis on job placement for prisoners who are getting ready to go home.

Sale of prison products to other state agencies brought in more than one million dollars in 1957, Grant said.

Overcrowding in correctional schools, he said, resulted in "premature releases" of many children last year to make beds available for new youths coming in.

"There is a real danger in releasing these children before we have had sufficient time to rehabilitate or help them," Grant said. "We are risking the possibility that they get into trouble again and be returned to the correctional school or even to the state penitentiary for another more serious offense."

OUTSTANDING MOVIES

Universal Plans Celebration Films

The Universal - International Company, Inc., has fifteen large pictures on the way to celebrate its 45th year of continuous motion picture production.

The 15 top - budget features will be merchandised as part of an 18-week anniversary drive which is presently in progress. Big-name stars attractive new personalities developed at U-I's studio training school, and important producers and directors will provide the selling punch for story properties which top - rated screen scripters have provided.

Leading the list was the recently seen movie "The Tarnished Angels" which was in Monroe in December. Another soon to be seen in Monroe is "All Mine to Give," a Technicolor drama starring Glynis Johns, Cameron Mitchell, Rex Thompson and Patty McCormick.

A modern - day story of Texas, "The Man in the Shadow," starring Jeff Chandler, Orson Welles and Colleen Miller, will start the February releases, followed by others of similar stature: "Flood Tide" a CinemaScope drama starring George Nader, Cornell Borchers and Michel Ray, and "Touch of Evil" a cops and thugs yard with a marquee - studded lineup comprising Charlton Heston, Orson Welles, Janet Leigh, Joseph Calleia and Akim Tamiroff.

A comedy with George Gobel as the romantic sprite and Diana Dora as the lady in the title—"I Married A Woman" — will be the first of the March issues. The others: "The Lady Takes a Flyer," starring Lana Turner and Jeff Chandler, a story about pilots who ferry planes to all sections of the globe; and "Damn Citizen," a drama with the breaking up of a vice setup in Louisiana, starring Keith Andes and Margaret Hayes.

Hedy Lamarr returns to the screen in "The Female Animal" the leadoff release for the final month. It also stars Jane Powell, George Nader and Jan Sterling.

Set poinsettias in the basement when they have gone dormant, then set them out in the border when the weather warms up in the spring. You won't get any blossoms, but you will have a good foliage background plant.

La. Revamps Tax Forms For Public

By JAMES MCLEAN

BATON ROUGE, Jan. 4 (AP) — Revenue Collector James S. Reily today made public a streamlined set of Louisiana income tax regulations based on a year of staff study.

The work—417 pages — represents the first "comprehensive achievement in this field of administration since 1938," he said.

The state collector hastened to assure taxpayers the tax laws and rates remain unchanged.

"The changes in regulations," he emphasized, "were designed to cover the multitude of minute details necessary for proper administration—which could not be dealt with directly in an effective manner by the Legislature."

The lawmakers enact an outline, the revenue staff has to fill in the procedure. For instance, a major revision clarifies how a resident or non-resident is determined in figuring the state tax liability.

Under the law, Louisiana residents pay a full tax no matter where they earn it. Non-residents or temporary workers pay only on income sources earned in this state, with the new revision make this category clear.

Answers Questions

While the new regulations might not win approval of all the more than 100,000 taxpayers, Reily said, "they do make the department's position known on many questions of importance to the taxpayer and the state."

Although the revisions were not designed primarily to tighten enforcement, Reily's assistants said the changes will have that effect since the department is making a written declaration of policies on many points not covered previously.

The job was undertaken because of inquiries from attorneys, accountants and taxpayers in general.

While the income tax forms less than 10 per cent of state revenues, Reily said, there is more interest in its regulations than in any other tax rules.

Some of the major points covered:

1. Companies have been relieved of the necessity of filing many thousands of information returns on small dividends, because the department has lifted the $100 floor to $500.

2. The liability of workers temporarily employed Louisiana has been made clear.

3. The proper way to handle "sickness benefits" is explained. Basically, taxpayers receiving pay under sickness or similar wage continuation plans may exclude such pay from gross income, provided certain requirements are met.

4. A method is provided for spreading the consolidated federal tax liability back to the individual companies involved.

5. The method of computing the amount of federal income taxes attributable to income not taxes is outlined in detail.

6. More than 60 pages are devoted to some regulations dealing with the complex problems arising in the field of depreciation, depletion and intangible drilling and development costs.

7. Full details are provided for many problems concerning foreign corporations which account for a substantial portion of the state's income tax collections. For instance, methods for allocating interest and non-business deductions are provided, as well as methods for determining the amounts to be used in the various factors provided in the statutory formula used to determine the formula used to determine the correct tax liability.

The first copies — some 4,000 were printed—are being distributed to other states with state income taxes, because of mutual arrangements with Louisiana, and to fill orders mostly from attorneys and accounts. Copies may be obtained from the department at $3.83 each.

'Peyton Place' Now Showing At Paramount

DIANE VARSI

When the makers of "Peyton Place" started making the film over a year ago they also started a search for an unknown actress to portray the pivotal role of "Allison MacKenzie."

Little did they realize at the time that the search would yield an amazing girl like Diane Varsi. The girl is 19-years old and from San Francisco.

Diane's brilliant debut opposite such screen veterans as Lana Turner, Lloyd Nolan, Betty Field and Arthur Kennedy in "Peyton Place," and other young stars like Hope Lange, Lee Phillips, Russ Tamblyn, Terry Moore, David Nelson and Barry Coe, won her enthusiastic appraisal of her work.

The film of "Peyton Place" is now showing at the Paramount Theatre on a selected run and patrons are asked to see it from the beginning to enjoy it the most.

The lengthy film, two hours and 42 minutes, has been hailed as one of the greatest of all films and was produced in CinemaScope and in Color.

New Disney Film Appealing To All

The gorgeous Technicolor production is, in form, a wild animal operetta, featuring the life and loves of a fascinating pair of western pine squirrels, along with a troupe of their forest companions on nature's great evergreen stage in the Utah wilderness.

Adapted and greatly expanded from Felix Salten's beguiling animal romance, the amusing, exciting, tender and at moments ferocious behavior of the principals, Perri and Porro, and company shapes into intense natural drama. While the performers may be comparatively small in size, their spirit and courage and charming personality give them true greatness. Altogether, they create a new dimension in screen diversion.

The particular appeal of "Perri" —teh romantic charm — lies in the fact that here for the first time on the theatre screen the lives of two beautiful wild animals are intimately followed.

While the substance comes direct from living nature, the treatment is Disney throughout. There is a keen sense of the fabulous about the splendid presentation, enacted against magnificent backdrop of mountain woodland. Animal cries and bird song run through the musical score and the three major songs, "Break of Day," "Now to Sleep" and "Together Time." There is fantasy in the music as well as in the eefe dream sequence and ballets dedicated to the seasons.

Perri and Porro are utterly fascinating and will seal the heart from many an audience — creatures as lovely as ever have been brought to the theatre, in fable or in equally wondrous fact.

"Perri" is released by Buena Vista.

Tot's Health Condition Now Being Probed

FORT WORTH, Jan. 4 (UP)—A three-year-old boy, who weighs only 20 pounds, was in temporary custody of the county probation office today while recovering from severe bruises.

Assistant Probation Officer Ralph Woods said Richard Roy Turner, in addition to his bruises, has two teeth missing. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Victor O. Turner, took the child to a doctor Thursday night, who in turn placed him in St. Joseph's Hospital.

An inquiry is underway as to how the child was bruised. Tarrant county authorities studied a report from Neal Wofford, chief probation officer at Cleburne, near where the Turners formerly lived, which said the child had been mistreated eight months ago.

MOA TZE-TUNG

Rules World's Largest Block Of Reds, But Soviet Union Leaders Set Policy

By JOHN BRODERICK

HONG KONG, Jan. 4 (AP)—Mao Tze-tung rules a staggering 640 million people. And his Communist party—with 12 million members—is the world's largest, even bigger than that of Russia.

But Red China's boss is content to leave world communist leadership to Moscow and the man who seems to be his exact opposite, Nikita Khrushchev.

They met recently during the celebrations in Moscow of the 40th anniversary of the Bolshevik Revolution. It was a study on contrasts—Mao, reserved, quiet, the thinker, poet and scholar; Khrushchev, flamboyant, master of the wisecrack, a boisterous drinker.

Mao is in no hurry to take the helm in the global communist movement. He knows that once China has industrialized, the very weight of his country's numbers—it will be a billion by 1980—will give it to him, or his successors.

Meanwhile, he is in the enviable position of being communism's most revered living figure, without being committed to the harsh decisions which often have alienated Moscow from the rest of the communist world.

Influence

And his influence among the satellites, and in Russia itself, continues to make itself felt.

A few, almost imperceptible creases have crept into his moon-like face, and there is a dash of gray in his receding black hair. But, at 64, Mao gives every evidence of being more robust than he was 12 years ago.

And his control over the Red leadership appears more secure than ever. To the rank-and-file, he is more than a leader. He is a symbol of Chinese communism.

Though he is a disciple of Karl Marx, the bourgeois German who gave birth to communism in the last century, Mao has refused to apply Marxism in China on the Russian model.

He has insisted that there are separate roads to communism, depending on circumstances in each country. Moscow has permitted him this view, but it has discouraged its acceptance in the communist countries of eastern Europe it seeks to control.

Mao reasserted China's independence during the Moscow celebrations when he said, "The Chinese revolution has its own national characteristics and it is entirely necessary to take these into consideration."

Khrushchev may not have liked it, but he also proclaimed, as he has in the past, the right of other communist nations to follow their own national bent on the way to socialism.

It Was Clear

It was clear, he said, that if a proleterian revolutionary of any country failed to apply the lessons and experience of the Russian revolution "in a creative way in the light of specific conditions in his own country, he would not be able to master Leninism, which represents a new stage in the development of Marxism, and he would not be able to solve the problems of revolusion and construction in his own country correctly."

Against the fanfare and publicity given the Russians' Sputniks, these words made few headlines. But their significance probably was not wasted on the representatives of the European satellites who were present.

Mao had been scheduled to make a swing through the satellite states on his way back to Moscow. But, suddenly, without explanation he canceled it and flew directly to Peiping.

The reason has never been given, but it now seems possible Khrushchev persuaded him that his presence in Moscow, Budapest and Belgrade might have been regarded there are encouragement for those who sought greater independence from Moscow.

He Climbed

Mao climbed to prominence in world communism in the 1930s when he defied Moscow's directives on how to carry out the revolution in China. Instead of basing his strength on the proletariat, or working class, which was small and weak, he turned to the peasants. Through agrarian reforms, and an army of peasants, he swept to victory in 1949 over the Chinese Nationalists.

Then, as today, he paid public lip service to the Moscow leadership. He made some grave mistakes by following Stalin's instructions in the years that followed. But by then he had achieved his goal—in his own way.

He has been head of the Chinese Communist party since the Political Bureau voted him into power at the little city of Tsunyi in January 1935.

There have been recurring reports both of his death and of his falling from grace over the years. But when he went to Moscow in November, almost none of the Russian leaders who had been present at the Kremlin seven years earlier, on his previous visit, were left to greet him.

His particular genius has been to keep the Chinese party together, and its leadership virtually intact, for the past 22 years.

Almost the same men who plotted the overthrow of the Kuomintang from their caves in Yenan now rule with him behind the high, red walls of the Forbidden City in Peiping.

Summer

Last summer, at the height of the campaign of criticism of the party which he had launched in February, he took a long vacation from Peiping. During that time, the party set in motion a counter-campaign o discredit the "rightists" who had dared to question the right of the communists to rule.

There seems some evidence, now, that Liu Shao-Chi, a party vice chairman, and Peng Chen, mayor of Peiping, assumed the leadership during that period. The viciousness of the attacks against the "rightists," which engendered a wave of fear among the nation's five million intellectuals, were in sharp contrast to Mao's advice that the critics should be dealt with "as softly as a breeze, as gently as rain."

When he returned to the capital, the atmosphere changed perceptibly. The non-communists were assured they would not be punished if they conformed. And the anti-rightist campaign most much of its air of venom.

Though he is white-faced and flabby-looking, Mao reportedly has great physical endurance. He is said to have swum the turbulent Yangtze River, not once but three times, last year. And when he returned to Peiping after an exhausting round of ceremonies and entertainments in Moscow, he was described as fit and healthy-looking.

Pleasant

This son of a Hunanese peasant had even in his teens a sense of mission. As a youth he built up his constitution by taking long hikes, dressing in the lightest clothing in cold weather and swimming the year round, no matter how icy the water.

This training probably saved his life when, years later, he had to beat a perilous retreat at the head of a Red army, from Kiangsi Province to Shensi, thousands of miles away. Under fire of the troops of Chiang-Kai-shek, he and his men had to ford raging torrents, scale mountains, cross blazing deserts before they reached Yenan.

He often was reduced to eating grass and the bark of trees.

In 1945, when this writer first met him, Mao was an invalid in Yenan, the city of 10,0 caves in China's northwest. He was suffering from a breakdown brought on by overwork. He rarely met people and was under the constant attendance of two Russian doctors.

The communists ruled roughly one-third of China at that time, and the party was a quarter of what it is today. For months, Mao was, because of his illness, in political eclipse. Chou En-lai, the party's foreign affairs expert, carried on the unsuccessful reneogiations for a coalition government with the Kuomintang. The big decisions were made by the ruling Politburo, headed by Liu Shao-Chi.

Few Months

But a few months later, Mao was back on his feet and in unquestionable control. The series of directives and speeches which came from his Chinese writing brush in the next few years guided the Reds to victory. It was he who decided that the Nationalists should be left in possession of the big cities and exhausted by guerrilla attacks against their lines of communication. He advocated a policy of leniency to prisoners which resulted in thousands of Nationalist desertions. He laid down a policy of cooperation with the intellectuals which won over millions of students and thinkers.

When the Reds had seized power, it was he who decided that the country should "lean to one side" in cooperating with Soviet Russia, to the exclusion of the West.

He decreed that China should go through a period of controlled democracy and capitalism, only to scrap the idea a few years later. When his associates wanted to slow down the rate of socialization of China's farms and industries, he gave the order to speed it up.

And, last February, he reversed China's policy of rejecting outside ideas and called for a new approach. "Let all flowers bloom, let a hundred schools of thought contend," he declared.

He has returned from the Moscow celebration to a nation still tossed by the fever of that command and the countercommand which choked off what had begun as full freedom of expression.

Mao Lived

In Yenan, Mao lived in a mud hut, dressed in patched, blue cotton clothes, walked around in dirty sneakers. Today, he is said to live somewhere in Peiping's Forbidden City, long the home of emperors. But his tastes are described as still as simple as before.

His dry humor has none of the boisterousness of Khrushchev's. And instead of carousing, he spends long hours at work or in contemplation. From these labors come the lengthy but considered speeches which embody a new line, or a new Communist Chinese approach to a major problem.

When he dies, who will succeed him? No one, of course, knows. Nominally, Chu Teh, onetime commander in chief of the armies and now a vice chairman, would step into the job. But the real power probably would reside in Liu Shao-chi, the long-winded, onetime labor organizer who is also a vice chairman of the party's Central Committee.

Though Chou En-lai is China's premier and is, next to Mao himself, best known to the outside world, Mao's mantle is unlikely to fall on him. He is not as popular in the party Central Committee—which will make the decision on succession—as Liu.

Police Chief's Aids Are Helping Youths

THERMOPOLIS, Wyo. (AP) —When a boy starts to go bad in this central Wyoming town of 4,700 population, the second person to know it is Chief of Police Melvin Mathews.

Members of the Junior Police first try to interest a budding delinquent in constructive outlets for his energy, for instance, their own Junior Police organization.

A junior lawbreaker doesn't have much of a chance here. The force of alert, trained youngsters know pretty much what the other teen - agers are doing. A bicycle is stolen and is soon located. Any petty shop lifting is spotted.

Adult lawbreakers also at times discover to their dismay the efficiency of the Junior Police. A motorist speeding through town last summer crashed into a parked automobile, backed away and fled the scene.

A few hours later he was in custody. Two small boys, Bobby Porter and Duane Elliott, had seen the violation and phoned police the erring driver's car license number and a complete description of his automobile.

The youngsters were members of Mathews' Junior Police and had been trained for such an emergency.

Mathews', who started his youth group in May, 1956, figures his program has reduced juvenile delinquency by 85 per cent.

In return, he arranges hayrides and other entertainment for the boys and their girl friend. He helps them put on picnics, teaches judo and the correct handling of firearms.

Mayor Robert D. H. Butcher likes both the police department and the junior auxiliary.

Kiehle-Barnette Vows Said In Shreveport

Saturday, Dec. 14 at eight o'clock in the evening, Miss Jane Barnette of Shreveport became the bride of Richard Edward Kiehle, lieutenant, United States Army Air Force. The couple exchanged their wedding vows in the Chew Memorial Chapel of the First Baptist Church of Shreveport, with the Rev. Z. T. Young of West Monroe, grandfather of the bride, and the Rev. Robert J. Hearn, assistant pastor of the First Baptist Church of Shreveport, officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Owen Barnette of Shreveport, and he is the son of Colonel and Mrs. Edward George Kiehle of Arlington, Va.

As the guests were being seated by Lieut. Vernon Walker and Lieut. Yuzuru Morita of Shreveport, Marjorie Casanova, organist, played the traditional wedding music and accompanied Charles Rhodes who sang "Because" and other selections, and at the conclusion of the ceremony, "The Lord's Prayer."

The young couple pledged their vows before an altar decorated with greenery flanked by large baskets of white gladiola and tall branched candelabra holding white tapers. The family pews were marked by white satin bows.

Miss Patricia Greer and Mrs Roy Cardino of Shreveport, dressed in identical dresses of light blue taffeta with full waltz length skirts and matching head-dress, were the candle lighters.

Mrs. Wayne McGee of Shreveport attended the bride as matron of honor, and wore a light blue brocaded taffeta sheath with white fly away panels and blue satin cummerbund with matching head-dress. Her flowers were pink roses.

Lieut. Bill Hensley of Dalton Tex., was best man.

The bride given in marriage by her father, was gowned in a chapel length, imported Chantilly lace and tulle dress, designed with empire waist and defined with draped taffeta that opened into floating back panels. The long lace sleeves came to petal points over the hands. Her bouffant skirt of lace was further enhanced with an inset of pleated tulle accenting the front top skirt. Hoop and crinolines gave a graceful fullness to the full chapel train. The veil of bridal illusion fell in misty tiers from a crown of seed pearls and sequins and her bridal bouquet was a large white orenid caught in the center of an arrangement of white stephanotis, maline and white satin streamers.

Mrs. Barnette chose for her daughter's wedding a dinner sheath in Dior blue, fashioned of lace over taffeta, and accented with matching satin panels forming a soft drape at the side. Designed with low cut neckline and brief sleeves, complimented with elbow length gloves, matching satin pumps and closely fitting jeweled ha , completed her costume. Her corsage was of white roses. Mrs. Kiehle wore a light pink crepe sheath fashioned with a pink satin cummerbund. Her hat and slippers matched her gown, and her corsage was of blue iris.

The reception was held immediately following the ceremony in the Chapel Reception Room, which was decorated with arrangements of white flowers and fern. Miss Mary Jane Albritton presided at the bride's book. Forming the receiving line with the young couple were their parents and members of the bridal party. The bride's table was covered with a white satin cloth centered with white flowers. The crystal punch service was placed at one end of the table and was presided over by Miss Betty Jo Abbott of Shreveport, and at the other end of the table was the three-tiered wedding cake topped by a miniature bridal couple. Mrs. John P. Collins of Evansville, Ind., aunt of the bride, served the cake. During the reception individual rice bags of net and satin were passed among the guests by Marie Kiehle, sister of the bridegroom, Teresa Gail Young and John LeRoy Young of Sicily Island cousins of the bride, and Clarence Owen Barnette, Jr., young brother of the bride.

Their wedding trip was to points of interest in Tennessee, Virginia and Washington, D. C., and ending in Arlington, Va., where the young couple will spend the holidays with Lieutenant Kiehle's parents. The bride chose for travel, a black and white tweed suit with mink collar. Her costume was accented by raglan push - up sleeves and she wore white gloves. Her other accessories were of black. Her corsage was the white orchid from her bridal bouquet.

The couple will return in mid-January and will make their home in Bossier City. Lieutenant Kiehle is stationed at Barksdale Air Force Base, and is a navigator bombardier in the 353rd Bombardment Squadron.

Tallulah DAR Hold Annual Yule Luncheon

TALLULAH — The annual Christmas luncheon meeting of the Tallulah chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution was held at the plantation home of Mrs. John Carpenter, Bakalum. Co - hostesses were Mrs. R. L. Bailey Jr., Mrs Cliff Clark, Mrs. R. L. Ammons and Mrs. J. G. Wyly. A number of out of town guests were in attendance.

Preceding the session a delicious turkey luncheon was served from the table with its red net cover over satin centered with an attractive Christmas arrangement.

The regent, Mrs. H. P. Warden, presided. Mrs. J. G. Wyly spoke on National Defense and an interesting film was shown at the D. A. R. sponsored school for mountain children at Tamasee, South Carolina. A feature of the meeting was the collection of gifts brought by each guest for children of the school. The singing of Christmas carols by the group concluded the meeting.

Guests for the enjoyable affair were Mrs. Edward Schneider and Mrs. Crawford Rose of Lake Providence, Mrs. T. Hicks of Shreveport, Mrs. George T. Madison of Bastrop, Miss Frances Flanders, Mrs. James B. Madison, Mrs. Shelby Meek and Mrs. V. A Trousdale of Monroe, Mrs. Conrad McDuffie of Oak Ridge, Mrs. E. D. Herr and Mrs. A. B. # Questions On Good Taste Answered By Emily Post

Question: My husband and I received an invitation to a wedding taking place in three weeks. My husband travels a good deal and there is a possibility that he may be away at that time. If he is not, he would like very much to go to the wedding. However, since there is some doubt about his being here, must I decline the invitation, or may I accept tentatively?

Mrs. Post: To a general party you would not be wrong in accepting for your husband. If later on you find he will be away, you can then telephone and explain.

Question: Will you please tell me the correct way to have matchbook covers printed for our forthcoming wedding? My fiance's name is Gerald but everyone knows him as Jerry. Would it be proper to use Jerry and Anne (or should it be Anne and Jerry) for these items?

Mrs. Post: Usually, and most correctly, they are marked with the combined initials of the bride and groom. But at a small informal wedding you could use "Anne and Jerry" if you prefer.

Question: I prefer single sheets of letter paper for personal letters and have these marked with my initials. I wondered about the second sheet of paper — should this be left plain but otherwise a matching sheet, or is each sheet marked the same way.

Mrs. Post: Stamped first sheet and blank sheets following are quite correct. People who write many-page letters often order as much as three quire of plain paper for use with each quire of stamped paper.

Question: My son is not officially engaged as yet but they plan to announce their engagement in about three months. His fiancee will have a birthday in two weeks and my son would like to give her a hope chest. Would this be proper, or should he wait until after they are officially engaged to give it to her?

Mrs. Post: It is not the man's place to give his fiancee a hope chest. Properly it is given to her by her parents.

Question: There is a friend whose young son is in the habit of opening the family's mail. I've stayed with them and know whereof I speak. His mother takes a very weak stand against this practice. There are times I wish to write the mother something personal; at any rate something I'd rather not have the boy read. Would it be discourteous to write personal on the envelope — which, of course, I wouldn't do normally when addressing envelopes to home addresses.

Mrs. Post: Yes, but I think you ought to explain to your friend first why you may do this occasionally so that others in the family could not take offense. This might even induce her to take a firmer stand against the boy's bad habit.

Question: Don't you consider it affected for a woman to sit smoking with her glove on?

Mrs. Post: I should describe the procedure as awkward rather than affected, which, it seems to me, it certainly would be if attempted for any length of time.

Question: Are the printed thank-you cards available for a busy bride's use proper to send for wedding gifts? It seems to me they make good sense and would put an end to all the complaints one hears about brides not acknowledging gifts promptly.

Mrs. Post: A folded card imprinted with thank you on the face might be used in place of note paper. In other words, write a short message of your own on the inside, such as: "Dear Mrs. Jones, It was more than thoughtful of you and Mr. Jones to send us such a lovely clock. Thank you very, very much. Affectionately (or Sincerely) Mary Smith. Anything less personal would certainly be shabby thanks for the effort generally involved in sending a wedding gift.

Question: When inviting guests out to the suburbs for the week end and the house is several miles from the station, is it the hostess's obligation to go to the train to meet them and drive them to the house, or is it up to them to get there by themselves?

Mrs. Post: It is not her obligation to go to the train for them if there is some means of conveyance that they can take to get to her house.

Question: Will you please tell me the proper way for a married woman to sign a check? I have always signed my checks Mary J. Brown. However, many of the young wives around here sign Mrs. John Smith or Mrs. Helen Green. I would very much like to know what is the correct form.

Mrs. Post: You are correct. Your "signature" is Mary J. Brown.

Question: If a man has asked a girl for a date some time in advance, does she have a right to expect to hear from him again a day or two before the time specified?

Mrs. Post: Yes. In fact, he should realize that this is an essential courtesy, especially if she doesn't know him very well.

Question: I would like to know if it is ever proper for a woman to wear a ring over her glove?

Mrs. Post: It is in very worst possible taste.

Outdoor Grill Can Be Used During Winter

Don't put away the outdoor barbecue grill just because cold weather is on the way. Cooking over an open charcoal fire can be just as enjoyable indoors during the winter as outdoors in warm weather.

Except on the coldest days, an outdoor grill can be used for either spit or grill cookery in a garage or on a porch which shields the cook from the wind. And if you stick to spit cookery, you even can use the grill in an enclosed room, such as a basement recreation room, according to home economists at Arvin Industries, one of the largest producers of barbecue braziers.

When using the grill indoors, build the fire in the rear section of the fire bowl and place a drip pan in the front section. This keeps meat juices off hot coals and prevents smoke and flare-ups. If possible, place the grill near a window that can be opened slightly.

Home economists point out that department stores continually use outdoor grills for indoor demonstrations with good results and it is practical for the home chef to follow the same procedures.

Winter is a good time to try out on the family some of the fancy dishes you'll want to serve to guests in the summer. So keep the grill handy. Weather no longer limits its use.

Kiehle-Barnette Vows Said In Shreveport

Saturday, Dec. 14 at eight o'clock in the evening, Miss Jane Barnette of Shreveport became the bride of Richard Edward Kiehle, lieutenant, United States Army Air Force. The couple exchanged their wedding vows in the Chew Memorial Chapel of the First Baptist Church of Shreveport, with the Rev. Z. T. Young of West Monroe, grandfather of the bride, and the Rev. Robert J. Hearn, assistant pastor of the First Baptist Church of Shreveport, officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Owen Barnette of Shreveport, and he is the son of Colonel and Mrs. Edward George Kiehle of Arlington, Va.

MRS. GEORGE CLARK

Miss Peggy Louise Hines, George Clark, Exchange Vows In Evening Rites

Miss Peggy Louise Hines, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Hines, and George Clark, son of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Clark, all of Monroe, were united in marriage on December twenty-eighth.

The Rev. Ralph Cain officiated over the double - ring ceremony in the Memorial Methodist Church at seven - thirty in the evening.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was gowned in Chantilly lace and tulle over satin and fashioned with an Elizabethan neckline outlined with tiny seed pearls and sequins. A crown of pearls held a fingertip veil of illusion. Lace sleeves ended at a point at the wrist. The overskirt of lace was caught at several points with pearls and the tiered skirt of tulle formed a chapel length train. She carried a white Bible topped by a bouquet of lilies of the valley, centered with a white orchid.

The vows were said before pink burning candles flanked by standards of pink gladioli and ferns. Miss Betty Hines served her sister as maid of honor. She wore a gown of pale pink crystalite over coral taffeta with a cummerbund of coral chiffon and a crescent shaped hat of coral with matching shoes. Her bouquet consisted of pink carnations attached to a pink satin covered wedding bell.

The matron of honor, Mrs. Dennis Fields, and the candlelighters, Libby McCoy and Linda Bickham, were dressed identical to the maid of honor. They wore wristlets of white carnations.

John W. Clark Jr., served his brother as best man. The groomsmen and ushers were John Ralph Eunson, Sidney Jones, Jr., David Watson and Charles Cobb.

Mrs. Hines chose to wear for her daughter's wedding, a mauve lace sheath over taffeta with matching accessories. Her corsage was a lavendar orchid. The groom's mother chose a blue lace dress with matching accessories and an orch.d.

Reception

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was held at the church. The bride's table was overlaid with white and held a three tiered wedding cake as the central decor. Silver candelabrum holding pink burning tapers were to either end of the table.

The tea girls were Linda Clark, Judy Harrison, and Carol McKinley. Assisting with the courtesies were Mrs. Marvin Ellis, Miss Gloria McIlwain, Mrs. Allie Mae Durbin, Mrs. J. D. Petty and Mrs. James R. Cullipher III. Miss Marilyn Gill presided at the guest book.

The bride chose to travel in a beige and brown tweed suit. They will be at home at 2706½ South Grand upon their return to the city.

Out - of - town guests attending were: Mrs. Allie Mae Durbin of Calhoun; Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Hurley of Delhi; Mrs. J. H. ## Girl Scout News

Still catching up on Christmas? Well, we are with news, too. One piece of news we wanted to share with you was the Scout's part of the Christmas program of the Sherrouse P. T. A. Girls from eight troops, spic and span in uniform, marched in, followed by Cub Scouts. Featured speaker for the inspirational Christmas program was our profesisonal worker, Annis Klie. Recognized for their contribution to Scouting were the leaders of troops 3, 25, 38, 51, 57, 58, 60 and of Troop 1, now in Junior High, but started at Sherrouse when the girls were in the second grade.

Brownie Scouts gave the Brownie Promise and Intermediates, the Girl Scout Promise as part of the program. The entire group sang "Silent Night" while the fifth-grade choir sang a descant.

Troop 40, Mrs. J. S. Salisbury and Mrs. R. L. Kiper as leaders, brought toys to their meeting a few weeks before Christmas, toys which they then turned over to the Salvation Army. For their others the girls made potholders.

Troop 10 reports a crafts project, with Christmas gifts in mind, of pomander balls and powder puffs decorated with lifelike faces. Mrs. Emil Wisakowsky and Mrs. S. S. Hollan are leaders.

Troop 32, Mrs. J. L. Wood leader, dressed dolls for the Salvation Army. At first thought, it sounds as if sewing for small dolls is beyond the ability and patience of nine - year - old girls, but their leader says each girl carried out her own idea with remarkable success. The girls also did caroling in their neighborhood, with a party afterwards, of course.

The girls of Troop 48 didn't quite have time to finish their pottery project, but leaders, Mrs. M. A. Denoux and Mrs. Floyd Stone, say that the girls are going to have some worthwhile pieces to show for their work. Some of the girls were interested enough to put in extra time on their project. All are making small bowls or ash trays, starting by wedging clay and shaping it into a pinch pot, then sponging and scraping to a smooth finish and decorating according to each girl's own idea. After the bowl is fired, each girl will paint on the glaze, which will make the object glossy and waterproof. Girls and mamas are going to be mighty proud, we think.

Time for grownups to be making plans to attend the annual meeting of the council, which will be held at United Gas auditorium on Thursday evening, January 16. Every adult member has a share in the affairs of the council and should plan to take part in decisions. You'll hear more about plans a bit later.

Bonnie Sue Meredith And Mack Anthony Thomas Wed In Morning Ceremony

At 10 o'clock, on Friday, in St. John's Church, in Columbia, Miss Bonnie Sue Meredith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Willard W. Meredith, became the bride of Mack Anthony Thomas, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Thomas of Tallulah.

The bride's father gave her in marriage. She was lovely in a gown of off white peau de soie and re-embroidered Alencon lace. The moulded bodice, fastened down the back with tiny seed pearl buttons, featured a Mandarin collar and long pointed sleeves. The semi-bouffant skirt had added back fullness which swept into a chapel train. She carried a crescent shaped bouquet of feathered carnations interspersed with glittered net, lilies of the valley, and velvet leaves with a rosary attached.

Miss Lane West of Natchitoches was maid of honor and Miss Peggy King of Tallulah, the bridesmaid. They were dressed alike in romance blue chiffon. The long torso draped bodices featured cowl necklines with deep V in the back. In their hair they wore half hats of blue velvet trimmed in roses centered with pearls and carried bouquets of white carnations tied with satin streamers.

Edd Shamis, of Santa Ana, Calif., was the best man and the groomsmen and ushers included Gene Thomas, of Boise, Idaho, Lynn Naylor of Tallulah and Larry Whitaker of Ruston. Altar boys were Leroy Admas III and John Adams.

At the conclusion of the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Meredith entertained at a reception in the parlors of the Methodist Church, where a green and white theme was used in the decorations. The bride's table, covered with a cut work cloth criss-crossed with satin ribbons and caught at the corners with clusters of white chrysanthemums, held the square wedding cake surrounded with pouffs of tulle and greenery and the bridesmaids bouquets. The cake was served by Mrs. J. B. Meredith, of St. Francsville and Mrs. Percy Hindman, of Oakdale, aunts of the bride. Miss Ann Godfrey registered the guests and assisting in serving were Miss Betty Warner Miss Margaret Minard, Miss Bert Hearn, Mrs. W. P. Bush, and Miss Flossie Carroll.

When the couple departed on their wedding trip, Mrs. Thomas wore a gray suit with fur trim and red hat. They will make their home in Ruston.

Among the out of town guests were, Edd Shamis, of Santa Anna, Calif., Gene Thomas, Boise, Ida., Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Thomas, of Tallulah, Lynn Naylor, of Tallulah, Larry Whitaker, of Ruston, Mr. and Mrs. Percy Hindman, Oakdale, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Meredith, Jerry and Danny of St. Francisville, Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Cannon, Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Myatt, Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Myatt, Jr., of Monroe, Miss Peggy King, Tallulah, William E. Adcock of Coushatta, Miss Nancy Lou Parker, Earl B. Parker of Vicksburg, Miss.

Textured woolen coats will be lined with fur from nutria to muskrat in 1958, predicts Women's Wear Daily, a trade publication. Look for linings of lightweight and medium priced furs, such as mole, processed broadtail and Persian lamb.

MRS. GEORGE CLARK

Miss Peggy Louise Hines, George Clark, Exchange Vows In Evening Rites

Miss Peggy Louise Hines, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Hines, and George Clark, son of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Clark, all of Monroe, were united in marriage on December twenty-eighth.

The Rev. Ralph Cain officiated over the double - ring ceremony in the Memorial Methodist Church at seven - thirty in the evening.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was gowned in Chantilly lace and tulle over satin and fashioned with an Elizabethan neckline outlined with tiny seed pearls and sequins. A crown of pearls held a fingertip veil of illusion. Lace sleeves ended at a point at the wrist. The overskirt of lace was caught at several points with pearls and the tiered skirt of tulle formed a chapel length train. She carried a white Bible topped by a bouquet of lilies of the valley, centered with a white orchid.

The vows were said before pink burning candles flanked by standards of pink gladioli and ferns. Miss Betty Hines served her sister as maid of honor. She wore a gown of pale pink crystalite over coral taffeta with a cummerbund of coral chiffon and a crescent shaped hat of coral with matching shoes. Her bouquet consisted of pink carnations attached to a pink satin covered wedding bell.

The matron of honor, Mrs. Dennis Fields, and the candlelighters, Libby McCoy and Linda Bickham, were dressed identical to the maid of honor. They wore wristlets of white carnations.

John W. Clark Jr., served his brother as best man. The groomsmen and ushers were John Ralph Eunson, Sidney Jones, Jr., David Watson and Charles Cobb.

Mrs. Hines chose to wear for her daughter's wedding, a mauve lace sheath over taffeta with matching accessories. Her corsage was a lavendar orchid. The groom's mother chose a blue lace dress with matching accessories and an orchid.

Reception

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was held at the church. The bride's table was overlaid with white and held a three tiered wedding cake as the central decor. Silver candelabrum holding pink burning tapers were to either end of the table.

The tea girls were Linda Clark, Judy Harrison, and Carol McKinley. Assisting with the courtesies were Mrs. Marvin Ellis, Miss Gloria McIlwain, Mrs. Allie Mae Durbin, Mrs. J. D. Petty and Mrs. James R. Cullipher III, Miss Marilyn Gill presided at the guest book.

Kiehle-Barnette Vows Said In Shreveport

Saturday, Dec. 14 at eight o'clock in the evening, Miss Jane Barnette of Shreveport became the bride of Richard Edward Kiehle, lieutenant, United States Army Air Force. The couple exchanged their wedding vows in the Chew Memorial Chapel of the First Baptist Church of Shreveport, with the Rev. Z. T. Young of West Monroe, grandfather of the bride, and the Rev. Robert J. Hearn, assistant pastor of the First Baptist Church of Shreveport, officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Owen Barnette of Shreveport, and he is the son of Colonel and Mrs. Edward George Kiehle of Arlington, Va.

As the guests were being seated by Lieut. Vernon Walker and Lieut. Yuzuru Morita of Shreveport, Marjorie Casanova, organist, played the traditional wedding music and accompanied Charles Rhodes who sang "Because" and other selections, and at the conclusion of the ceremony, "The Lord's Prayer."

The young couple pledged their vows before an altar decorated with greenery flanked by large baskets of white gladiola and tall branched candelabra holding white tapers. The family pews were marked by white satin bows.

Miss Patricia Greer and Mrs Roy Cardino of Shreveport, dressed in identical dresses of light blue taffeta with full waltz length skirts and matching head-dress, were the candle lighters.

Mrs. Wayne McGee of Shreveport attended the bride as matron of honor, and wore a light blue brocaded taffeta sheath with white fly away panels and blue satin cummerbund with matching headdress. Her flowers were pink roses.

Lieut. Bill Hensley of Denton Tex., was best man.

The bride given in marriage by her father, was gowned in a chapel length, imported Chantilly lace and tulle dress, designed with empire waist and defined with draped taffeta that opened into floating back panels. The long lace sleeves came to petal points over the hands. Her bouffant skirt of lace was further enhanced with an inset of pleated tulle accenting the front top skirt. Hoop and crinolines gave a graceful fullness to the full chapel train. The veil of bridal illusion fell in misty tiers from a crown of seed pearls and sequins and her bridal bouquet was a large white orchid caught in the center of an arrangement of white stephanotis, maline and white satin streamers.

Mrs. Barnette chose for her daughter's wedding a dinner sheath in Dior blue, fashioned of lace over taffeta, and accented with matching satin panels forming a soft drape at the side. Designed with low cut neckline and brief sleeves, complimented with elbow length gloves, matching satin pumps and closely fitting jeweled hat, completed her costume. Her corsage was of white roses. Mrs. Kiehle wore a light pink crepe sheath fashioned with a pink satin cummerbund. Her hat and slippers matched her gown, and her corsage was of blue iris.

The reception was held immediately following the ceremony in the Chapel Reception Room, which was decorated with arrangements of white flowers and fern. Miss Mary Jane Albritton presided at the bride's book. Forming the receiving line with the young couple were their parents and members of the bridal party. The bride's table was covered with a white satin cloth centered with white flowers. The crystal punch service was placed at one end of the table and was presided over by Miss Betty Jo Abbott of Shreveport, and at the other end of the table was the three-tiered wedding cake topped by a miniature bridal couple. Mrs. John P. Collins of Evansville, Ind., aunt of the bride, served the cake. During the reception individual rice bags of net and satin were passed among the guests by Marie Kiehle, sister of the bridegroom, Teresa Gail Young and John LeRoy Young of Sicily Island cousins of the bride, and Clarence Owen Barnette, Jr., young brother of the bride.

Their wedding trip was to points of interest in Tennessee, Virginia and Washington, D. C., and ending in Arlington, Va., where the young couple will spend the holidays with Lieutenant Kiehle's parents. The bride chose for travel, a black and white tweed suit with mink collar. Her costume was accented by raglan push - up sleeves and she wore white gloves. Her other accessories were of black. Her corsage was the white orchid from her bridal bouquet.

The couple will return in mid-January and will make their home in Bossier City. Lieutenant Kiehle is stationed at Barksdale Air Force Base, and is a navigator bombardier in the 353rd Bombardment Squadron.

Questions On Good Taste Answered By Emily Post

Question: My husband and I received an invitation to a wedding taking place in three weeks. My husband travels a good deal and there is a possibility that he may be away at that time. If he is not, he would like very much to go to the wedding. However, since there is some doubt about his being here, must I decline the invitation, or may I accept tentatively?

Mrs. Post: To a general party you would not be wrong in accepting for your husband. If later on you find he will be away, you can then telephone and explain.

Question: Will you please tell me the correct way to have matchbook covers printed for our forthcoming wedding? My fiance's name is Gerald but everyone knows him as Jerry. Would it be proper to use Jerry and Anne (or should it be Anne and Jerry) for these items?

Mrs. Post: Usually, and most correctly, they are marked with the combined initials of the bride and groom. But at a small informal wedding you could use "Anne and Jerry" if you prefer.

Question: I prefer single sheets of letter paper for personal letters and have these marked with my initials. I wondered about the second sheet of paper — should this be left plain but otherwise a matching sheet, or is each sheet marked the same way.

Mrs. Post: Stamped first sheet and blank sheets following are quite correct. People who write many-page letters often order as much as three quire of plain paper for use with each quire of stamped paper.

Question: My son is not officially engaged as yet but they plan to announce their engagement in about three months. His fiancee will have a birthday in two weeks and my son would like to give her a hope chest. Would this be proper, or should he wait until after they are officially engaged to give it to her?

Question: There is a friend whose young son is in the habit of opening the family's mail. I've stayed with them and know whereof I speak. His mother takes a very weak stand against this practice. There are times I wish to write the mother something personal; at any rate something I'd rather not have the boy read. Would it be discourteous to write personal on the envelope — which, of course, I wouldn't do normally when addressing envelopes to home addresses.

Mrs. Post: Yes, but I think you ought to explain to your friend first why you may do this occasionally so that others in the family could not take offense. This might even induce her to take a firmer stand against the boy's bad habit.

Question: Don't you consider it affected for a woman to sit smoking with her glove on?

Mrs. Post: I should describe the procedure as awkward rather than affected, which, it seems to me, it certainly would be if attempted for any length of time.

Question: Are the printed thank-you cards available for a busy bride's use proper to send for wedding gifts? It seems to me they make good sense and would put an end to all the complaints one hears about brides not acknowledging gifts promptly.

Mrs. Post: A folded card imprinted with thank you on the face might be used in place of note paper. In other words, write a short message of your own on the inside, such as: "Dear Mrs. Jones, It was more than thoughtful of you and Mr. Jones to send us such a lovely clock. Thank you very, very much. Affectionately (or Sincerely) Mary Smith. Anything less personal would certainly be shabby thanks for the effort generally involved in sending a wedding gift.

Question: When inviting guests out to the suburbs for the week end and the house is several miles from the station, is it the hostess's obligation to go to the train to meet them and drive them to the house, or is it up to them to get there by themselves?

Mrs. Post: It is not her obligation to go to the train for them if there is some means of conveyance that they can take to get to her house.

Question: Will you please tell me the proper way for a married woman to sign a check? I have always signed my checks Mary J. Brown. However, many of the young wives around here sign Mrs. John Smith or Mrs. Helen Green. I would very much like to know what is the correct form.

Mrs. Post: You are correct. Your "signature" is Mary J. Brown.

Question: If a man has asked a girl for a date some time in advance, does she have a right to expect to hear from him again a day or two before the time specified?

Mrs. Post: Yes. In fact, he should realize that this is an essential courtesy, especially if she doesn't know him very well.

Question: I would like to know if it is ever proper for a woman to wear a ring over her glove?

Mrs. Post: It is in very worst possible taste.

Outdoor Grill Can Be Used During Winter

Don't put away the outdoor barbecue grill just because cold weather is on the way. Cooking over an open charcoal fire can be just as enjoyable indoors during the winter as outdoors in warm weather.

Except on the coldest days, an outdoor grill can be used for either spit or grill cookery in a garage or on a porch which shields the cook from the wind. And if you stick to spit cookery, you even can use the grill in an enclosed room, such as a basement recreation room, according to home economists at Arvin Industries, one of the largest producers of barbecue braziers.

When using the grill indoors, build the fire in the rear section of the fire bowl and place a drip pan in the front section. This keeps meat juices off hot coals and prevents smoke and flare-ups. If possible, place the grill near a window that can be opened slightly.

Home economists point out that department stores continually use outdoor grills for indoor demonstrations with good results and it is practical for the home chef to follow the same procedures.

Winter is a good time to try out on the family some of the fancy dishes you'll want to serve to guests in the summer. So keep the grill handy. Weather no longer limits its use.

Kiehle-Barnette Vows Said In Shreveport

Saturday, Dec. 14 at eight o'clock in the evening, Miss Jane Barnette of Shreveport became the bride of Richard Edward Kiehle, lieutenant, United States Army Air Force. The couple exchanged their wedding vows in the Chew Memorial Chapel of the First Baptist Church of Shreveport, with the Rev. Z. T. Young of West Monroe, grandfather of the bride, and the Rev. Robert J. Hearn, assistant pastor of the First Baptist Church of Shreveport, officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Owen Barnette of Shreveport, and he is the son of Colonel and Mrs. Edward George Kiehle of Arlington, Va.

As the guests were being seated by Lieut. Vernon Walker and Lieut. Yuzuru Morita of Shreveport, Marjorie Casanova, organist, played the traditional wedding music and accompanied Charles Rhodes who sang "Because" and other selections, and at the conclusion of the ceremony, "The Lord's Prayer."

The young couple pledged their vows before an altar decorated with greenery flanked by large baskets of white gladiola and tall branched candelabra holding white tapers. The family pews were marked by white satin bows.

Miss Patricia Greer and Mrs Roy Cardino of Shreveport, dressed in identical dresses of light blue taffeta with full waltz length skirts and matching head-dress, were the candle lighters.

Mrs. Wayne McGee of Shreveport attended the bride as matron of honor, and wore a light blue brocaded taffeta sheath with white fly away panels and blue satin cummerbund with matching head-dress. Her flowers were pink roses.

The bride given in marriage by her father, was gowned in a chapel length, imported Chantilly lace and tulle dress, designed with empire waist and defined with draped taffeta that opened into floating back panels. The long lace sleeves came to petal points over the hands. Her bouffant skirt of lace was further enhanced with an inset of pleated tulle accenting the front top skirt. Hoop and crinolines gave a graceful fullness to the full chapel train. The veil of bridal illusion fell in misty tiers from a crown of seed pearls and sequins and her bridal bouquet was a large white orchid caught in the center of an arrangement of white stephanotis, maline and white satin streamers.

Mrs. Barnette chose for her daughter's wedding a dinner sheath in Dior blue, fashioned of lace over taffeta, and accented with matching satin panels forming a soft drape at the side. Designed with low cut neckline and brief sleeves, complimented with elbow length gloves, matching satin pumps and closely fitting jeweled ha , completed her costume. Her corsage was of white roses. Mrs. Kiehle wore a light pink crepe sheath fashioned with a pink satin cummerbund. Her hat and slippers matched her gown, and her corsage was of blue iris.

The reception was held immediately following the ceremony in the Chapel Reception Room, which was decorated with arrangements of white flowers and fern. Miss Mary Jane Albritton presided at the bride's book. Forming the receiving line with the young couple were their parents and members of the bridal party. The bride's table was covered with a white satin cloth centered with white flowers. The crystal punch service was placed at one end of the table and was presided over by Miss Betty Jo Abbott of Shreveport, and at the other end of the table was the three-tiered wedding cake topped by a miniature bridal couple. Mrs. John P. Collins of Evansville, Ind., aunt of the bride, served the cake. During the reception individual rice bags of net and satin were passed among the guests by Marie Kiehle, sister of the bridegroom, Teresa Gail Young and John LeRoy Young of Sicily Island cousins of the bride, and Clarence Owen Barnette, Jr., young brother of the bride.

Their wedding trip was to points of interest in Tennessee, Virginia and Washington, D. C., and ending in Arlington, Va., where the young couple will spend the holidays with Lieutenant Kiehle's parents. The bride chose for travel, a black and white tweed suit with mink collar. Her costume was accented by raglan push - up sleeves and she wore white gloves. Her other accessories were of black. Her corsage was the white orchid from her bridal bouquet.

The couple will return in mid-January and will make their home in Bossier City. Lieutenant Kiehle is stationed at Barksdale Air Force Base, and is a navigator bombardier in the 353rd Bombardment Squadron.

MRS. GEORGE CLARK

Miss Peggy Louise Hines, George Clark, Exchange Vows In Evening Rites

Miss Peggy Louise Hines, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Hines, and George Clark, son of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Clark, all of Monroe, were united in marriage on December twenty-eighth.

The Rev. Ralph Cain officiated over the double - ring ceremony in the Memorial Methodist Church at seven - thirty in the evening.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was gowned in Chantilly lace and tulle over satin and fashioned with an Elizabethan neckline outlined with tiny seed pearls and sequins. A crown of pearls held a fingertip veil of illusion. Lace sleeves ended at a point at the wrist. The overskirt of lace was caught at several points with pearls and the tiered skirt of tulle formed a chapel length train. She carried a white Bible topped by a bouquet of lilies of the valley, centered with a white orchid.

The vows were said before pink burning candles flanked by standards of pink gladioli and ferns. Miss Betty Hines served her sister as maid of honor. She wore a gown of pale pink crystalite over coral taffeta with a cummerbund of coral chiffon and a crescent shaped hat of coral with matching shoes. Her bouquet consisted of pink carnations attached to a pink satin covered wedding bell.

The matron of honor, Mrs. Dennis Fields, and the candlelighters, Libby McCoy and Linda Bickham, were dressed identical to the maid of honor. They wore wristlets of white carnations.

John W. Clark Jr., served his brother as best man. The groomsmen and ushers were John Ralph Eunson, Sidney Jones, Jr., David Watson and Charles Cobb.

Mrs. Hines chose to wear for her daughter's wedding, a mauve lace sheath over taffeta with matching accessories. Her corsage was a lavendar orchid. The groom's mother chose a blue lace dress with matching accessories and an orchid.

Reception

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was held at the church. The bride's table was overlaid with white and held a three tiered wedding cake as the central decor. Silver candelabrum holding pink burning tapers were to either end of the table.

The tea girls were Linda Clark, Judy Harrison, and Carol McKinley. Assisting with the courtesies were Mrs. Marvin Ellis, Miss Gloria McIlwain, Mrs. Allie Mae Durbin, Mrs. J. D. Petty and Mrs. James R. Cullipher III. Miss Marilyn Gill presided at the guest book.

The bride chose to travel in a beige and brown tweed suit. They will be at home at 2706½ South Grand upon their return to the city.

Out - of - town guests attending were: Mrs. Allie Mae Durbin of Calhoun; Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Hurley of Delhi; Mrs. J. H. Bagley, Miss Sallie Bantz, Mr. Albert Bantz of Fort Worth, Texas; Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd E. Bantz of Michigan City, Ind., Mr. and Mrs. Percy McCollum, Mike and Cathy of Jackson, Miss.; Mrs. Lucy Hall, Mrs. Marvin Ellis and Robert, Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Hogg Jr., all of Ruston; and Mr. Fred Hines and Mac of Hodge.

Girl Scout News

Still catching up on Christmas? Well, we are with news, too. One piece of news we wanted to share with you was the Scout's part of the Christmas program of the Sherrouse P. T. A. Girls from eight troops, spic and span in uniform, marched in, followed by Cub Scouts. Featured speaker for the inspirational Christmas program was our profesisonal worker, Annis Klie. Recognized for their contribution to Scouting were the leaders of troops 3, 25, 38, 51, 57, 58, 60 and of Troop 1, now in Junior High, but started at Sherrouse when the girls were in the second grade.

Brownie Scouts gave the Brownie Promise and Intermediates, the Girl Scout Promise as part of the program. The entire group sang "Silent Night" while the fifth-grade choir sang a descant.

Troop 40, Mrs. J. S. Salisbury and Mrs. R. L. Kiper as leaders, brought toys to their meeting a few weeks before Christmas, toys which they then turned over to the Salvation Army. For their others the girls made potholders.

Troop 10 reports a crafts project, with Christmas gifts in mind, of pomander balls and powder puffs decorated with lifelike faces. Mrs. Emil Wisakowsky and Mrs. S. S. Hollan are leaders.

Troop 32, Mrs. J. E. Wood leader, dressed dolls for the Salvation Army. At first thought, it sounds as if sewing for small dolls is beyond the ability and patience of nine - year - old girls, but their leader says each girl carried out her own idea with remarkable success. The girls also did caroling in their neighborhood, with a party afterwards, of course.

The girls of Troop 48 didn't quite have time to finish their pottery project, but leaders, Mrs. M. A. Denoux and Mrs. Floyd Stone, say that the girls are going to have some worthwhile pieces to show for their work. Some of the girls were interested enough to put in extra time on their project. All are making small bowls or ash trays, starting by wedging clay and shaping it into a pinch pot, then sponging and scraping to a smooth finish and decorating according to each girl's own idea. After the bowl is fired, each girl will paint on the glaze, which will make the object glossy and waterproof. Girls and mamas are going to be mighty proud, we think.

Time for grownups to be making plans to attend the annual meeting of the council, which will be held at United Gas auditorium on Thursday evening, January 16. Every adult member has a share in the affairs of the council and should plan to take part in decisions. You'll hear more about plans a bit later.

Bonnie Sue Meredith And Mack Anthony Thomas Wed In Morning Ceremony

At 10 o'clock, on Friday, in St. John's Church in Columbia, Miss Bonnie Sue Meredith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Willard W. Meredith, became the bride of Mack Anthony Thomas, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Thomas of Tallulah.

The bride's father gave her in marriage. She was lovely in a gown of off white peau de soie and re-embroidered Alencon lace. The moulded bodice, fastened down the back with tiny seed pearl buttons, featured a Mandarin collar and long pointed sleeves. The semi-bouffant skirt had added back fullness which swept into a chapel train. She carried a crescent shaped bouquet of feathered carnations interspersed with glittered net, lilies of the valley, and velvet leaves with a rosary attached.

Miss Lane West of Natchitoches was maid of honor and Miss Peggy King of Tallulah, the bridesmaid. They were dressed alike in romance blue chiffon. The long torso draped bodices featured cowl necklines with deep V in the back. In their hair they wore half hats of blue velvet trimmed in roses centered with pearls and carried bouquets of white carnations tied with satin streamers.

Edd Shamis, of Santa Ana, Calif., was the best man and the groomsmen and ushers included Gene Thomas, of Boise, Idaho, Lynn Naylor of Tallulah and Larry Whitaker of Ruston. Altar boys were Leroy Admas III and John Adams.

At the conclusion of the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Meredith entertained at a reception in the parlors of the Methodist Church, where a green and white theme was used in the decorations. The bride's table, covered with a cut work cloth criss-crossed with satin ribbons and caught at the corners with clusters of white chrysanthemums, held the square wedding cake surrounded with pouffs of tulle and greenery and the bridesmaids bouquets. The cake was served by Mrs. J. B. Meredith, of St. Francisville and Mrs. Percy Hindman, of Oakdale, aunts of the bride. Miss Ann Godfrey registered the guests and assisting in serving were Miss Betty Warner Miss Margaret Minard, Miss Bert Hearn, Mrs. W. P. Bush, and Miss Flossie Carroll.

When the couple departed on their wedding trip, Mrs. Thomas wore a gray suit with fur trim and red hat. They will make their home in Ruston.

Among the out of town guests were, Edd Shamis, of Santa Anna, Calif., Gene Thomas, Boise, Ida., Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Thomas, of Tallulah, Lynn Naylor, of Tallulah, Larry Whitaker, of Ruston, Mr. and Mrs. Percy Hindman, Oakdale, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Meredith, Jerry and Danny of St. Francisville, Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Cannon, Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Myatt, Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Myatt, Jr., of Monroe, Miss Peggy King, Tallulah, William E. Adcock of Coushatta, Miss Nancy Lou Parker, Earl B. Parker of Vicksburg, Miss.

Textured woolen coats will be lined with fur from nutria to muskrat in 1958, predicts Women's Wear Daily, a trade publication. Look for linings of lightweight and medium priced furs, such as mole, processed broadtail and Persian lamb.

MRS. GEORGE CLARK

Miss Peggy Louise Hines, George Clark, Exchange Vows In Evening Rites

Miss Peggy Louise Hines, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Hines, and George Clark, son of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Clark, all of Monroe, were united in marriage on December twenty-eighth.

The Rev. Ralph Cain officiated over the double - ring ceremony in the Memorial Methodist Church at seven - thirty in the evening.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was gowned in Chantilly lace and tulle over satin and fashioned with an Elizabethan neckline outlined with tiny seed pearls and sequins. A crown of pearls held a fingertip veil of illusion. Lace sleeves ended at a point at the wrist. The overskirt of lace was caught at several points with pearls and the tiered skirt of tulle formed a chapel length train. She carried a white Bible topped by a bouquet of lilies of the valley, centered with a white orchid.

The vows were said before pink burning candles flanked by standards of pink gladioli and ferns. Miss Betty Hines served her sister as maid of honor. She wore a gown of pale pink crystalite over coral taffeta with a cummerbund of coral chiffon and a crescent shaped hat of coral with matching shoes. Her bouquet consisted of pink carnations attached to a pink satin covered wedding bell.

The matron of honor, Mrs. Dennis Fields, and the candlelighters, Libby McCoy and Linda Bickham, were dressed identical to the maid of honor. They wore wristlets of white carnations.

John W. Clark Jr., served his brother as best man. The groomsmen and ushers were John Ralph Eunson, Sidney Jones, Jr., David Watson and Charles Cobb.

Mrs. Hines chose to wear for her daughter's wedding, a mauve lace sheath over taffeta with matching accessories. Her corsage was a lavendar orchid. The groom's mother chose a blue lace dress with matching accessories and an orchid.

Reception

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was held at the church. The bride's table was overlaid with white and held a three tiered wedding cake as the central decor. Silver candelabrum holding pink burning tapers were to either end of the table.

The tea girls were Linda Clark, Judy Harrison, and Carol McKinley. Assisting with the courtesies were Mrs. Marvin Ellis, Miss Gloria McIlwain, Mrs. Allie Mae Durbin, Mrs. J. D. Petty and Mrs. James R. Cullipher III, Miss Marilyn Gill presided at the guest book.

The bride chose to travel in a beige and brown tweed suit. They will be at home at 2706½ South Grand upon their return to the city.

Out - of - town guests attending were: Mrs. Allie Mae Durbin of Calhoun; Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Hurley of Delhi; Mrs. J. H. Bagley, Miss Sallie Bantz, Mr. Albert Bantz of Fort Worth, Texas; Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd E. Bantz of Michigan City, Ind., Mr. and Mrs. Percy McCollum, M ke and Cathy of Jackson, Miss.; Mrs. Lucy Hall, Mrs. Marvin Ellis and Robert, Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Hogg Jr., all of Ruston; and Mr. Fred Hines and Mac of Hodge.

Girl Scout News

Still catching up on Christmas? Well, we are with news, too. One piece of news we wanted to share with you was the Scout's part of the Christmas program of the Sherrouse P. T. A. Girls from eight troops, spic and span in uniform, marched in, followed by Cub Scouts. Featured speaker for the inspirational Christmas program was our profesisonal worker, Annis Klie. Recognized for their contribution to Scouting were the leaders of troops 3, 25, 38, 51, 57, 58, 60 and of Troop 1, now in Junior High, but started at Sherrouse when the girls were in the second grade.

Brownie Scouts gave the Brownie Promise and Intermediates, the Girl Scout Promise as part of the program. The entire group sang "Silent Night" while the fifth-grade choir sang a descant.

Troop 40, Mrs. J. S. Salisbury and Mrs. R. L. Kiper as leaders, brought toys to their meeting a few weeks before Christmas, toys which they then turned over to the Salvation Army. For their others the girls made potholders.

Troop 10 reports a crafts project, with Christmas gifts in mind, of pomander balls and powder puffs decorated with lifelike faces. Mrs. Emil Wisakowsky and Mrs. S. S. Hollan are leaders.

Troop 32, Mrs. J. E. Wood leader, dressed dolls for the Salvation Army. At first thought, it sounds as if sewing for small dolls is beyond the ability and patience of nine - year - old girls, but their leader says each girl carried out her own idea with remarkable success. The girls also did caroling in their neighborhood, with a party afterwards, of course.

The girls of Troop 48 didn't quite have time to finish their pottery project, but leaders, Mrs. M. A. Denoux and Mrs. Floyd Stone, say that the girls are going to have some worthwhile pieces to show for their work. Some of the girls were interested enough to put in extra time on their project. All are making small bowls or ash trays, starting by wedging clay and shaping it into a pinch pot, then sponging and scraping to a smooth finish and decorating according to each girl's own idea. After the bowl is fired, each girl will paint on the glaze, which will make the object glossy and waterproof. Girls and mamas are going to be mighty proud, we think.

Time for grownups to be making plans to attend the annual meeting of the council, which will be held at United Gas auditorium on Thursday evening, January 16. Every adult member has a share in the affairs of the council and should plan to take part in decisions. You'll hear more about plans a bit later.

Lambda Sigma Chi Holds Annual Dance At Hotel

The Lambda Sigma Chi sorority held its annual Christmas dance recently on the roof of the Virginia Hotel. The Mirror room was lavishly decorated in green and silver; the theme of the dance being "Under the Christmas Tree."

The bandstand, where Tommy Ridgely and his band played, was gaily decorated in silver with the Greek letters of the sorority, ΛΕΧ, in diamontine green in the background.

In one corner of the dance floor was an enormous silver Christmas tree decorated with green lights and long, silver icicles.

Preceding a brief intermission, Miss Evelyn Amman, president of the sorority, was presented with a bouquet of red roses by the past president, Miss Frances Jones. Miss Amman chose this time to give each of the officers with a gift as a token of appreciation for their work this year.

The guests received favors of miniature Christmas trees, Santa Clauses, and snowmen. Each member of the sorority received a sterling silver charm in the shape of a Christmas tree.

SELF-SERVICE HOSPITAL

LONDON (UP)—Lancet, the journal of Britain's medical profession, suggested today the "do-it yourself" craze may spread to medicine in the form of "self service hostels." An editorial in the current issue of Lancet proposed the establishment of hostels—as opposed to hospitals—where "suitable" patients can stay overnight for outpatient treatment, and wards without nursing supervision where patients can look after themselves.

For extra - good spaghetti, fill individual casseroles with hot cooked spaghetti and sauce, then top with slices of cheese. Put under broiler until cheese melts and the sauce runs through.

Canned beans, full - bodied, round and shapely, have superb eating qualities and introduce welcome menu variety. Combine 2 cans of beans with 1 can mushroom soup, ¼ cup coarsely chopped walnuts, cover with buttered bread crumbs and bake in a moderate oven 30 minutes.

Lambda Sigma Chi Holds Annual Dance At Hotel

The Lambda Sigma Chi sorority held its annual Christmas dance recently on the roof of the Virginia Hotel. The Mirror room was lavishly decorated in green and silver; the theme of the dance being "Under the Christmas Tree."

The bandstand, where Tommy Ridgely and his band played, was gaily decorated in silver with the Greek letters of the sorority, AEX, in diamontine green in the background.

In one corner of the dance floor was an enormous silver Christmas tree decorated with green lights and long, silver icicles.

Preceding a brief intermission, Miss Evelyn Amman, president of the sorority, was presented with a bouquet of red roses by the past president, Miss Frances Jones. Miss Amman chose this time to give each of the officers with a gift as a token of appreciation for their work this year.

The guests received favors of miniature Christmas trees, Santa Clauses, and snowmen. Each member of the sorority received a sterling silver charm in the shape of a Christmas tree.

The Branches Hold Festive Open House

The Luther Branch home in West Monroe was the setting for a festive holiday Open House when Mr. and Mrs. Branch entertained in honor of their guests, Mrs. Alice Griggs and Mrs. Mae Parsons, of Atlanta, Ga.

A pink theme was carried out in the decorations throughout the house. Mr. and Mrs. Branch, with their house guests, received their more than 300 guests between the hours of three and six o'clock. Mrs. Branch was wearing a pink satin gown made along slender lines with a corsage of lavender orchids.

The party table in the dining room was covered with a pink net cloth over pink satin and forming the centerpiece were pink carnations combined with English ivy and eucalyptus. Alternating at the tea and coffee services were Mrs. Amiee Cook, Mrs. D. C. Metcalf, Dr. Katherine Foster, and Mrs. D. F. Dennis. Punch was served from a green covered table in the den. Extending courtesies here were Mrs. Fay Heard and Mrs. Joyce Smith. Tea girls for the afternoon were Judith Netherland, Doris Works, Glenda Roberts and Shirley Works. Assisting with the hostess courtesies were Mrs. Oscar Howell, Mrs. Roy Rawls, Mrs. Allen Robinson, Mrs. Russell Jordan, Mrs. Ethel Cooper, Mrs. John Davis, Mrs. A. L. Roberts, Mrs. W. J. Robinson, Mrs. R. B. Henry, Mrs. John P. Lewis, Mrs. Dan Clark, Mrs. R.H. Chatham, Mrs. Bob Branch, Mrs. J. Howard Carroll and Mrs. W.E. Kramer.

MR. AND MRS. ALTON JAMES MCCREADY JR..

Miss Pickering Marries Alton J. McCready In Baptist Church Ceremony

The marriage of Miss Constance Marie Pickering and Alton James McCready, Jr., was solemnized December 20 in the College Place Baptist Church with the Reverend Earl Ogg officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Pickering and he is the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. McCready.

The altar of the church was decorated with arrangements of white gladioli and greenery and burning white tapers. A program of nuptial music was presented by Mrs. C. L. Dillingham, organist and Mrs. Francis Yocum, soloist.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. Her gown of silk bombazine with insets of tulle featured a scooped neckline and three quarter length sleeves. Her veil of illusion as held in place by a flat bow of silk and she carried a white orchid bouquet surrounded by stephanotis and tulle and tied with streamers of seed pearls.

Mrs. Bobbie Reis was the matron of honor. She was dressed in red velvet designed with scooped neckline and short sleeves. A cummerbund of red satin extended in panels to the hemline of the skirt. She wore a bandeaux of red satin with nose veil and carried white poinsettias tied with velvet ribbons.

Mrs. George P. Daley, Mrs. R. N. Seidenspinner, Miss Emma Jean Hall, Mrs. Thomas Gilbert served as bridesmaids. They were dressed like the honor attendant in emerald green velvet and carried red poinsettias. Judy Gannaway wearing a frock of white tulle and satin with matching bandeaux, was the flower girl. Robert Edwin Pickering was the Bible bearer.

Richard Nelson Seidenspinner was the best man and groomsmen and ushers included William Joseph Hardy, John Michael Cage, Carl Fred Allen and Michael Elgin Boggs.

A reception followed the ceremony in the church parlors. Mrs. Pickering received her guests in a gown of blue crepe with matching jacket trimmed in blue satin. With this she wore black accessories and an orchid corsage. She was assisted by Mrs. McCready who was wearing a brocaded beige satin with bronze accessories and a corsage bouquet of orchics.

When the newly married couple left on their wedding trip to Shreveport, Mrs. McCready was wearing a tailored suit of gray with white hat and black accessories. On their return they will be at home at 3605 Cameron Street.

Among the out - of -twn guests were Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Gilbert, of Minden, Mrs. Ilar Osborne, Vonnie Sharp, of Tallulah, Mrs. A. C. Sharp, L. C. Sharp of Winnsboro, and Mrs. Bob Reeves, of Winnfield.

Start Day With Big Breakfast

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (UP) — An adequate and wholesome breakfast is important in anyone's diet, home economics students discovered for themselves at the University of Illinois.

The breakfast skippers thought their diets were even above standard until they began comparing what they ate with recommended diets which provide all required nutrients.

They discovered their typical food intake was below par for ascorbic acid, iron and calcium. And a study of their diets revealed they skipped breakfast and missed some essentials.

A good solid breakfast — orange juice, an egg, toast and cocoa — provided just what was needed for the coeds. An extra glass of milk helped too.

Salvage Your Old Clothes

Sometimes there is more wear in an old garment if you remodel it or use just part of it. Get out old clothes you haven't worn in a year and look them over carefully to see if you could salvage them with a little work and imagination.

Dear Miss Blair:

I have two worn cashmere sweaters and hate to toss them out. Have you any ideas how to make use of them? One is black; the other a pale blue.

Sweaters are being used as part of dresses these days — as the major part of a bodice — perhaps sleeves, neck and yoke top. You might try using the black sweater for sleeves and perhaps bib neckline of a black wool or black velveteen dress. The pale blue might be saved for spring or summer wear using light blue wool to match or a blue silk print.

Gammill-Plunk Vows Exchanged In Afternoon

The McGuire Methodist Church of West Monroe formed the setting recently for the marriage of Miss Esther Jean Plunk to Jimmy Dale Gammill. Officiant for the 4 o'clock ceremony was the Reverend Don Wininger.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. D Plunk and he is the son of Mrs. Dessie Gammill of West Monroe and Mr. William Gammill of Bastrop.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother-in-law, J. J. Griggs, of Atlanta, Ga.

Her gown was of white chiffon and lace and a half cap of lace and chiffon studded with seed pearls held her veil of illusion. She carried a spray of white carnations mounted on a white Bible.

Mrs. Julius Griggs was her sister's only attendant. She was dressed in light blue nylon with a headdress of white flowers and she carried a bouquet of pink chrysanthemums tied with shaded pink ribbons.

Bennie Gammill was the best man to his brother and the ushers were Robert Puttark, W. E. Hughes and Charles Fleming.

January Is Challenging To The Cook

By JEANNE LESEM

NEW YORK (UP) — January should be known as cook's challenge month. Faced with Christmas bills and appetites sated by too much rich food, the home cook has a real budget problem.

She can't afford a sauceless steak and salad dinner, but she thinks inexpensive casseroles are too high in calories.

They need not be, said cookbook author Florence Brobeck. Even with a cereal base — such as rice or spaghetti — a casserole dish can be easier on your waistline than you think.

You accomplish this trick by skipping rich sauces in favor of herbs and spices, she said, and substituting leftover vegetables for some of the cereal ingredients.

Stews Are Good

If your family demands lots of meat, try an optical illusion with spaghetti and meat balls, Miss Brobeck suggested.

Make the meat balls bite - size, so no one feels shor - changed. One pound of ground beef used this way will provide enough protein for all the family.

Another nourishing budget meal she recommended is built around lamb or veal stew made with the neck cuts, which are low in cost. And don't forget to add green pepper and carrots, as well as the usual potatoes and onions.

Chicken also makes a low - cost main course, low in calories as well if you oven - bake it with a lemon or orange juice baste The same cooking method works for chicken parts, Miss Brobeck said, if your family is small and not fond of leftovers. Skip butter in the basting liquid, as the bird itself will have enough fat to grease the pan.

Try Salmon

The accompanying vegetables, especially frozen ones, will also get along nicely without added butter, she said, if you add half a teaspoon of dried basil or thyme as soon as they're cooked. Just sprinkle the herb on top, cover again, and allow to steam briefly off the fire before you stir, drain and serve.

Fish? Try salmon steaks baked with herb - seasoned butter, pepper and paprika. Serve with boiled potatoes, a green salad and fr t fruit for dessert, Miss Brobeck suggested.

Pea pods add flavor to soup.

Miss Pickering Marries Alton J. McCready In Baptist Church Ceremony

The marriage of Miss Constance Marie Pickering and Alton James McCready, Jr., was solemnized December 20 in the College Place Baptist Church with the Reverend Earl Ogg officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Pickering and he is the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. McCready.

The altar of the church was decorated with arrangements of white gladioli and greenery and burning white tapers. A program of nuptial music was presented by Mrs. C. L. Dillingham, organist and Mrs. Francis Yocum, soloist.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. Her gown of silk bombazine with insets of tulle featured a scooped neckline and three quarter length sleeves. Her veil of illusion as held in place by a flat bow of silk and she carried a white orchid bouquet surrounded by stephanotis and tulle and tied with streamers of seed pearls.

Mrs. Bobbie Reis was the matron of honor. She was dressed in red velvet designed with scooped neckline and short sleeves. A cummerbund of red satin extended in panels to the hemline of the skirt. She wore a bandeaux of red satin with nose veil and carried white poinsettias tied with velvet ribbons.

Mrs. George P. Daley, Mrs. R. N. Seidenspinner, Miss Emma Jean Hall, Mrs. Thomas Gilbert served as bridesmaids. They were dressed like the honor attendant in emerald green velvet and carried red poinsettias. Judy Gannaway wearing a frock of white tulle and satin with matching bandeaux, was the flower girl. Robert Edwin Pickering was the Bible bearer.

Richard Nelson Seidenspinner was the best man and groomsmen and ushers included William Joseph Hardy, John Michael Cage, Carl Fred Allen and Michael Elgin Boggs.

A reception followed the ceremony in the church parlors. Mrs. Pickering received her guests in a gown of blue crepe with matching jacket trimmed in blue satin. With this she wore black accessories and an orchid corsage. She was assisted by Mrs. McCready who was wearing a brocaded beige satin with bronze accessories and a corsage bouquet of orchids.

When the newly married couple left on their wedding trip to Shreveport, Mrs. McCready was wearing a tailored suit of gray with white hat and black accessories. On their return they will be at home at 3605 Cameron Street.

Among the out - of -twn guests were Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Gilbert, of Minden, Mrs. Ilar Osborne, Vonnie Sharp, of Tallulah, Mrs. A. C. Sharp, L. C. Sharp of Winnsboro, and Mrs. Bob Reeves, of Winnfield.

Gammill-Plunk Vows Exchanged In Afternoon

The McGuire Methodist Church of West Monroe formed the setting recently for the marriage of Miss Esther Jean Plunk to Jimmy Dale Gammill. Officiant for the 4 o'clock ceremony was the Reverend Don Wininger.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. D Plunk and he is the son of Mrs. Dessie Gammill of West Monroe and Mr. William Gammill of Bastrop.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother-in-law, J. J. Griggs, of Atlanta, Ga.

Her gown was of white chiffon and lace and a half cap of lace and chiffon studded with seed pearls held her veil of illusion. She carried a spray of white carnations mounted on a white Bible.

Mrs. Julius Griggs was her sister's only attendant. She was dressed in light blue nylon with a headdress of white flowers and she carried a bouquet of pink chrysanthemums tied with shaded pink ribbons.

Bennie Gammill was the best man to his brother and the ushers were Robert Putfark, W. E. Hughes and Charles Fleming.

January Is Challenging To The Cook

By JEANNE LESEM

NEW YORK (UP) — January should be known as cook's challenge month. Faced with Christmas bills and appetites sated by too much rich food, the home cook has a real budget problem.

She can't afford a sauceless steak and salad dinner, but she thinks inexpensive casseroles are too high in calories.

They need not be, said cookbook author Florence Brobeck. Even with a cereal base — such as rice or spaghetti — a casserole dish can be easier on your waistline than you think.

You accomplish this trick by skipping rich sauces in favor of herbs and spices, she said, and substituting leftover vegetables for some of the cereal ingredients.

Stews Are Good

If your family demands lots of meat, try an optical illusion with spaghetti and meat balls, Miss Brobeck suggested.

Make the meat balls bite - size, so no one feels shor - changed. One pound of ground beef used this way will provide enough protein for all the family.

Another nourishing budget meal she recommended is built around lamb or veal stew made with the neck cuts, which are low in cost. And don't forget to add green pepper and carrots, as well as the usual potatoes and onions.

Chicken also makes a low - cost main course, low in calories as well if you oven - bake it with a lemon or orange juice baste The same cooking method works for chicken parts, Miss Brobeck said, if your family is small and not fond of leftovers. Skip butter in the basting liquid, as the bird itself will have enough fat to grease the pan.

Try Salmon

The accompanying vegetables, especially frozen ones, will also get along nicely without added butter, she said, if you add half a teaspoon of dried basil or thyme as soon as they're cooked. Just sprinkle the herb on top, cover again, and allow to steam briefly off the fire before you stir, drain and serve.

Fish? Try salmon steaks baked with herb - seasoned butter, pepper and paprika. Serve with boiled potatoes, a green salad and fr t fruit for dessert, Miss Brobeck suggested.

Pea pods add flavor to soup.

Salvage Your Old Clothes

Sometimes there is more wear in an old garment if you remodel it or use just part of it. Get out old clothes you haven't worn in a year and look them over carefully to see if you could salvage them with a little work and imagination.

Dear Miss Blair:

I have two worn cashmere sweaters and hate to toss them out. Have you any ideas how to make use of them? One is black; the other a pale blue.

Sweaters are being used as part of dresses these days — as the major part of a bodice — perhaps sleeves, neck and yoke top. You might try using the black sweater for sleeves and perhaps bib neckline of a black wool or black velveteen dress. The pale blue might be saved for spring or summer wear using light blue wool to match or a blue silk print.

Start Day With Big Breakfast

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (UP) — An adequate and wholesome breakfast is important in anyone's diet, home economics students discovered for themselves at the University of Illinois.

The breakfast skippers thought their diets were even above standard until they began comparing what they ate with recommended diets which provide all required nutrients.

They discovered their typical food intake was below par for ascorbic acid, iron and calcium. And a study of their diets revealed they skipped breakfast and missed some essentials.

A good solid breakfast — orange juice, an egg, toast and cocoa — provided just what was needed for the coeds. An extra glass of milk helped too.

MR. AND MRS. DeWAYNE MALMAY

Miss J. Lee Bamburg And DeWayne Malmay Wed

The Trinity Baptist Church chancel was filled with snowy white blossoms interspersed with standards of waxen tapers for the wedding of Miss Jimmie Lee Bamburg and DeWayne Malmay. The young couple are the children of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Bamburg and Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Malmay of West Monroe.

Vows of the double-ring ceremony were received by the Reverend E. E. Taylor. The organist, Sandy Lawn, accompanied Miss Theda Pettigrew who sang during the prelude and gave "The Lord's Prayer" following the benediction. Miss Jane Parker served as candlelighter.

The tailored bride entered on the arm of her father who presented her to the groom, standing with his best man, Wade L. Finch.

Clad in a fitted suit of silvery wool flannel, the bride wore gunmetal pumps and a winter-white hat and gloves. Her hand nosegay was of valley lilies centered with an orchid.

The maid of honor, Miss Coralie Heard, wore a sleek wine flannel suit cuffed and collared in squirrel. Her clothe and pumps in soft grey matched the fur, and she carried a bouquet of pink button 'mums. Her escort was groomsman Arthur Melvin.

The matron of honor, Mrs. C. C. Burkett, Jr., was attired in blue velveteen suit accented by her shell-pink gloves and hat. She, too, carried a pink bouquet, and her escort was Simmy Fordham.

Reception

Immediately after the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. Miss Portia Gould presiding at the register.

The house decor was in white. The bride's table, laid with linen, bore a centerpiece of clustered group of silver candleholders bearing white tapers and the milk-glass punch bowl was footed with silver leaves.

The bride's mother, Mrs. Bamburg, wore a suit of cornflower blue flannel with a white satin hat and white gloves. The groom's mother was wearing navy blue wool with pink hat and gloves. Both matrons wore matching shoulder corsages of pink carnations.

Out-of-town guests at the reception were Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Burkett, Jr., of Altus, Okla.; A-1c Fred Bamburg of Little Rock, Ark.; Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Bartlett of Ruston.

The couple left, after the reception, for a wedding trip to New Orleans, and upon returning will make their home at 204 West Heights. Both Mr. and Mrs. Malmay are students and will resume their studies, the groom being enrolled at Northeast State College.

While half the population gets out red flannels and fur coats, the other half is shopping happily for hot - weather clothes, in preparation for winter vacations.

This year resort shopping has plenty of excitement, because of innovations in fabrics and fashions, for both men and women. Manufacturers have come up with textiles that are even more miraculous than usual, what with new techniques that make travel clothes shed wrinkles, pack into a minute space, wash as easily as a pair of stockings and dry ready to wear without ironing.

In addition to all these practical attributes, travel and resort fashions are gay, bright, stimulating and different this season—just the things to put one in a holiday mood. Colors are vibrant, prints are vivid and splashy and fabrics have a luxury touch. There's a new arnel, triacetate sharkskin that is as crisp and cool as a tall lemonade, washes like a breeze and doesn't fade. There's another blend of celanese, arnel, triacetate and rayon that looks like flannel but washes and dries like nylon.

In men's wear handsome, wrinkle - resistant wool jersey is combined with white cabrette leather for some of the handsomest shirts and sweaters to come down the pike in many a moon.

LT. And MRS. EDGAR A. BRADLEY

Miss Jo Ann Bramlett Weds Lt. E. Bradley

LAKE PROVIDENCE — On Sunday, December 22, 1957, the marriage of Miss Jo Ann Bramlett and Lt. Edgar Alexander Bradley, was solemnized at the First Baptist Church in Lake Providence.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest B. Bramlett of Transylvania and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Alonzo Bradley, also of Transylvania.

The soft glow of white tapers, burning in many branched candelabra and the tall floor baskets of white chrysanthemums and Oregon fern formed a lovely background for the young couple as they exchanged vows, with the Rev. A. B. Odom, of Hico, officiating at the double ring ceremony.

Trailing fronds of Plumosa fern lined the choir rail and were repeated in the baptistry, which also held slim lighted tapers. Lighted candles based in white and green served to mark the reserved pews.

Mrs. D. Q. Madden gave a program of pre - nuptial music at the organ and also served as accompanist for Mrs. Ned Berry who sang "At Dawning" and "Because," prior to the entrance of the bridal party, and the "Lord's Prayer" at the conclusion of the ceremony. The traditional wedding marches heralded the entrance and departure of the bride.

The bride, entering on the arm of her father, who gave her in marriage, was radiant in a gown of white Chantilly lace over satin. The fitted bodice had a scoop neckline trimmed with tiny pearls and sequins in a floral design. The long sleeves ended in petal points over the hands and were fastened with tiny covered buttons, which were repeated at the back of the bodice. The waltz length skirt had a flared fullness.

Her tiered veil of illusion fell from a crown of seed pearls and she wore matching earrings and pearls, a gift of the bridegroom. The bride's bouquet was of white orchids among Frenched carnations and lilies of the valley, with white satin streamers ending in lover's knots of maline.

Mrs. Clifford Pearson served her sister as matron of honor and Miss Louise Harper, the only other attendant, served as bridesmaid. They wore identical gowns of marine blue taffeta with a straight front neckline dipping into a deep "V" in the back. The fitted bodice had a wide cummerbund sash which crossed in the front and formed a large bow in the back, falling nearly the length of the bouffant ballerina skirt.

Their picture hats were of matching starched net, crowned with a loop of blue velvet. Their shoes matched the dress and they carried bouqueas of pink Frenched carnations interspersed with lilies of the valley and velvet leaves.

The diminutive flower girl, little Miss Pamela Herrington, was also gowned in marine blue and carried a basket of pink carnation leaves which she scattered in the path of the bride. Richard Pearson, nephew of the bride, served as ring bearer and carried the two rings on a white satin pillow trimmed with pink rosebuds and forget - me - nots.

Boyette Graves served Lt. Bradley as best man. Ushers and candlelighters were Travis Trapp and Allen Cupit, and Ronald Anglin of Monroe served as groomsman.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Bramlett chose a blue crepe, made with a loose front panel on the gored skirt. The three-quarter sleeves were cuffed with a wide band of imported Irish lace and her corsage was a purple orchid.

Reception

Immediately following the wedding, the reception was held in the "Little Chapel" of the church. Presiding at the bride's book was Mrs. James Matthews.

The bride's table was covered with an ecru lace cloth over pink. The pink was repeated in the tapers that burned in a three-branched crystal candelabra which formed the central decor of the table and cast a soft glow over the matching crystal punch bowl. The three tiered wedding cake was decorated with pink rosebuds and green leaves and topped with two wedding bells, filled with forget-me-nots and nestled in a bower of white net.

Assisting with the courtesies of the reception were Mrs. William Brown, Mrs. Ronald Anglin, Mrs. Tom Bass, Miss Jeanette Duchesne, Miss Jo Ann McCurdy and Mrs. Ruby Thomas. Mrs. J. O. Pinkston served as director.

For travelling the bride changed to a turquoise blue suit of velvet. The pencil slim skirt was set off by the fitted short jacket, with three - quarter length sleeves. The shawl collar dropped to just above the waist in the back and ended in a small velvet bow of self material. A matching hat and black patent shoes completed her ensemble. Her corsage was an orchid from her bridal bouquet.

Following a short wedding trip the young couple will be at home at 927 Beech Street, Marietta, Ga., where Lt. Bradley is presently stationed with the U. S. Air Force.

The bride is a graduate of the Lake Providence High School and attended Draughns College in Jackson. Lt. Bradley is also a graduate of Lake Providence High School and is a graduate of L. S. U. where he taught for two years before entering the Air Force.

Missionary To Return

BOSTON — (UP) — The daughter of missionaires, her husband and their daughter, will return to the South Pacific to fulfill her promise to an island monarch who died early in 1957.

Mary Alice Hanlin Buck is completing her studies in America and with her husband, plans to join her parents in the Caroline Islands.

King John, ruler of Kusaie, urged Mary Alice two years ago to return to the island when she had finished her studies. Her parents, Dr. and Mrs. Harold Hanlin, have been serving in Micronesia since 1947.

Mary Alice, who translated the New Testament into the Kusaien language when she was 18, has been studying at Phillips University, Enid, Okla., with her husband, Elden Buck.

They have been appointed career missionaries to Micronesia by the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions of the Congregational Christian Church.

The Bucks and their daughter, Lisa Lynette, will sail to the Carolines next summer, just as soon as they get their academic degrees.

A native of Knoxville, Tenn., Mary Alice spent part of her childhood in Indiana when her father taught at Butler University.

Dr. Buck observed missionary work in the Caroline Islands while he was in the Navy in World War II. He wrote such impressive reports that his family was ready to join him after the war.

Immediately following the wedding, the reception was held in the "Little Chapel" of the church. Presiding at the bride's book was Mrs. James Matthews.

The bride's table was covered with an ecru lace cloth over pink. The pink was repeated in the tapers that burned in a three-branched crystal candelabra which formed the central decor of the table and cast a soft glow over the matching crystal punch bowl. The three tiered wedding cake was decorated with pink rosebuds and green leaves and topped with two wedding bells, filled with forget-me-nots and nestled in a bower of white net.

Assisting with the courtesies of the reception were Mrs. William Brown, Mrs. Ronald Anglin, Mrs. Tom Bass, Miss Jeanette Duchesne, Miss Jo Ann McCurdy and Mrs. Ruby Thomas. Mrs. J. O. Pinkston served as director.

For travelling the bride changed to a turquoise blue suit of velvet. The pencil slim skirt was set off by the fitted short jacket, with three - quarter length sleeves. The shawl collar dropped to just above the waist in the back and ended in a small velvet bow of self material. A matching hat and black patent shoes completed her ensemble. Her corsage was an orchid from her bridal bouquet.

Following a short wedding trip the young couple will be at home at 927 Beech Street, Marietta, Ga., where Lt. Bradley is presently stationed with the U. S. Air Force.

The bride is a graduate of the Lake Providence High School and attended Draughns College in Jackson. Lt. Bradley is also a graduate of Lake Providence High School and is a graduate of L. S. U. where he taught for two years before entering the Air Force.

Pink Eggnog Is Different

Beat 4 egg yolks. Gradually add ¾ cup sugar and ¼ teaspoon salt, beating constantly until fluffy. Gradually add 1 quart milk, ½ teaspoon vanilla extract and ½ teaspoon peppermint extract. Chill. Beat 4 egg whites until stiff and gradually add ¼ cup sugar. Beat constantly until stiff. Fold into egg yolk mixture Pour into punch bowl, and sprinkle with crushed peppermint candy (¾ cup.) Serves 16 half - cup portions. (If desired, add ¾ to 1 cup whisky).

Missionary To Return

BOSTON — (UP) — The daughter of missionaires, her husband and their daughter, will return to the South Pacific to fulfill her promise to an island monarch who died early in 1957.

Mary Alice Hanlin Buck is completing her studies in America and with her husband, plans to join her parents in the Caroline Islands.

King John, ruler of Kusaie, urged Mary Alice two years ago to return to the island when she had finished her studies. Her parents, Dr. and Mrs. Harold Hanlin, have been serving in Micronesia since 1947.

Mary Alice, who translated the New Testament into the Kusaien language when she was 18, has been studying at Phillips University, Enid, Okla., with her husband, Elden Buck.

They have been appointed career missionaries to Micronesia by the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions of the Congregational Christian Church.

The Bucks and their daughter, Lisa Lynette, will sail to the Carolines next summer, just as soon as they get their academic degrees.

A native of Knoxville, Tenn., Mary Alice spent part of her childhood in Indiana when her father taught at Butler University.

Dr. Buck observed missionary work in the Caroline Islands while he was in the Navy in World War II. He wrote such impressive reports that his family was ready to join him after the war.

Miss Mary Welch Is Wed To Francis G. Pirnique

The candlelighted sanctuary of the Memorial Methodist Church provided the setting for the exchange of nuptial vows between Miss Mary Pat Welch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carlos O. Welch of Monroe and Francis Gray Pernique son of Mrs. E. R. Bowman and the late Dr. A. F. Pernique of Little Rock Ark.

Cathedral candelabra entwined with Southern smilax bore slim yellow tapers and combined with baskets of specimine chrysanthemums to create a golden glow about the chancel. Arrangements of creamy gladioli studded with the tapers, reflected the colors of the stained-glass window above, as the Reverend Ralph Cain stood to receive the vows with the groom and his man, Allen Pirnique.

The wedding concert was given by Mrs. Harvey Nelson, who also accompanied Mrs. Estelle Sanders as she sang the traditional ballads. At the processional, the bride entered on the arm of her father who gave her in marriage.

Miss Welch was frocked in white Italian lace, fashioned with a fitted bodice, having a sweetheart neckline and wrist-length sleeves, and extending over the full net skirt in a scalloped peplum. Her waist length tulle veil fell from a tiara of seed pearls emphasizing the single strand of matched pearls about her throat. The bouquet was an arrangement of Frenched carnations, tied with shower ribbons touched with tiny pouffs of tulle.

Miss Dawson Ann Forman, the maid of honor, wore a waltz length model of pale yellow chiffon. The shirred neckline was off the shoulder and a velvet ribbon encircled her waist ending in a bow at the back. Her bandeau repeated the velvet of her sash, and her corsage was of white 'mums fashioned as a nosegay, encircled with matching net, with knotted satin streamers.

The bridesmaid, Miss Kaki Walker, and the junior bridesmaid, Carole Bowman, wore dresses duplicating that of the maid of honor. All of the attendants wore little slippers of golden satin, carried identical bouquets and wore small gold necklace chains. Their escorts, the groomsmen were Robert Nighten of Shreveport and Botsy McClanahan of Monroe — both fellow classmates of the groom at Northwestern State College.

Mrs. Welch chose to wear a softly draped dark blue crepe, made with pastel pink collar studded in pearls. Her pink satin cloche repeated the color of her corsage for an elegant ensemble. The groom's mother wore an electra blue model of chiffon, with a chic draped chapeau, and accessories matching her corsage of pale coral carnations.

Following the reception the bride changed to a dove grey dressmaker suit worn with a white glace spring straw hat. White accessories and a corsage of button 'mums completed her costume as she and Mr. Pirnique left for a trip to Houston, Tex The couple will have an apartment at Natchitoches where they are enrolled at Northwestern State College.

Reception

Immediately after the wedding a reception was held in the church annex, hosted by the Sunday School class of Mrs. Welch.

Guests were registered by Miss Billie Ann Ruple.

The service table was handsomely set in delicate lace over yellow linen and was centered with golden chrysanthemums studded with gleaming yellow tapers. The crystal punch bowl was presided over by Miss Virgima Cage who was assisted by Miss Pat Parker and Miss Margaret Worsham, and all of the girls wore formal afternoon attire

Out-of-town guests at the wedding and reception were Mrs. Kenneth Dellinger and son, Gray, Miss Joan Alves, Paul R. Gerding, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. James A. Bowman with Edith and Robert Bowman, and Miss Patsy O'Neal, all of Little Rock, Ark., Mr. and Mrs. Billy Roy Cook and Mrs Roy Cook of Magnolia, Ark., Mrs. George Creede and Miss Vera Creede of Alexandria, Mrs. C. D. Worsham and Margaret of Many, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Ward of Oceanside, Calif., Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Welch and daughter, Diarne of Mangham, and Miss Sandra Sanders of Athens, Ga.

Don't forget the many ways to use mincemeat in holiday menus. Hot mincemeat makes a delicious sundae, served over vanilla, toasted almond or butter brickle ice cream.

Handsome and delicious way with ripe olives is to marinate them in a sharp French dressing made with wine vinegar, olive oil and crushed garlic. To serve, drain and sprinkle with cnopped chives or parsley.

THE HOME SHIFT

Some Of Bulbs Begin Blooming

By Mildred Swift

January and February are the exciting months of the year in the garden. Some of your bulbs will begin to bloom. Most early blooming plants start showing color in their buds and dozens of varieties of camellias are blooming. In fact, this is the time to select and plant your camellias. Then you'll have no disappointments because you'll actually see the blossoms. Call FA 3-2251, your Agricultural Extension Department, and ask for a copy of our Camellia bulletin by W. D. Kimbrough, B. H. Hatcher and J. S. Boisseau. This very complete book will give you planting instructions, insect and disease control, varieties, fertilization, grafting and any other information you'll need.

The All - America rose winners for this year include for the first time a white hybrid tea, plus two Floribundas. The white is "White Knight." This is an excellent rose for cutting purposes with long - lasting flowers. It is vigorous and disease resistant. White Knight has an abundance of thick, leathery leaves with a vivid green color. It is a heavy bloomer and the buds are long and pointed. The flowers are 4 to 5 inches in diameter, with petals (28 to 30) rolling loosely outward. The petals are soft satin white on the inside and shining white on the outside.

Fusilier is a floribunda, rich orange red color, brilliant. The color is much darker in the fall. The flowers are 3 to 3½ inches across and are produced in large clusters. The plant grows full and bushy. It is medium height and stocky, the foliage dark green and glossy. An interesting thing about this foliage is that it is red when young.

The yellow winner is "Gold Cup", a Floribunda of golden yellow which holds its color as long as the flower is there. The foliage is dark and glossy and the yellow a pure bright shade. Gold Cup grows 2½ feet tall. It is a strong plant that shows marked resistance to disease.

If you haven't planted your sweet peas, don't grieve. It is not too late. Since the seed of this flower is large, it can be planted when the soil is still rather heavy. This is not true of tiny seed. They're packed and lost if the soil is heavy, as are many small seed. That's why we must wait for the soil to dry out. Work it and pulverize well. You can't imagine a seed the size of a pin point coming up through a large lump of soil. It just won't work. You'll get no stand and wonder why the neighbor's seed came up and yours did not.

The best place for a bed of flowers is in the service area. Then if it gets weedy and unsightly, nobody sees the ugliness but you. There are times when one plant blooms out, and others are just coming on. The bed is not attractive at this time. Unless you have a good yard man several days a week, you'll need to limit this cut flower bed to a very small area. One has little time for weeding these days.

Announcements

Your Open House programs for next week are: Monday and Tuesday, Frances Moorman and Billy Hodgkins from Franklin Parish will show us how to select and wear hats; Wednesday, Mary Jardine will bring the flower arrangements, Thursday, and Friday is marketing and food preparation.

One man said "Sorrow is a disease in which every patient must treat himself."

See you next Sunday.

Make List Of January Dates

By AUDREY DAWSON

With the New Year, 1958 Agriculture Extension Service of Ouachita Parish has made a change. Perhaps you have noticed the title change in this article from Flora D. Spielman to Audrey H. Dawson. Mrs. Spielman has taken her much deserved retirement after twenty-eight years of service to Agriculture Extension Service. However, I am happy to report to you that she will remain in Monroe at her present address, 603 South 3rd Street, and has agreed to give us her moral support and assistance when needed. You can rest assured that she will be called on.

Although Mrs. Spielman's retirement will not become effective until Jan. 15, I am pinch-hitting in writing this column for her until Jan. 16 when I will assume full responsibilities of the Home Demonstration Agent for Ouachita Parish. Mrs. Spielman is presently on leave visiting her daughter, Mrs. J. B. Green, in Memphis, Tenn.

You are anxious to know who will take over the supervision of the 4-H girls. Mrs. Ada Hanchey, District Agent, has selected and the two governing boards, Parish School Board and Parish Police Jury, have approved Miss Betty Jane Hodgkins from Winnsboro, La. Miss Hodgkins has had a great deal of experience working with the 4-H group as she has been a Home Economist employed by a local power company and previous to this position was a teacher of Home Economics in the high school at Wisner.

Important Dates

Best Club for 1958 score sheet committee, which consists of the president and secretary of the twenty-three Home Demonstration Clubs or the person selected by each club to keep this record will meet Friday, Jan. 17 at the Agricultural Auditorium at 9:30 a.m.

Home Demonstration Council will meet the fourth Friday, Jan. 24 at 10 a.m. at the Agricultural Extension Auditorium, West Monroe.

Family Life Leader Training meeting will be Jan. 23 at 9:30 a.m. with Mrs. Florence Abington from LSU Agricultural Extension giving instructions. Mrs. Abington will train these leaders in methods of using material prepared by her on the Family Tree.

There will be a poultry meeting of all 4-H members and parents who are enrolled in Chicken of Tomorrow Contest at the Agricultural Auditorium, Saturday, Jan. 25 at 9:30 a.m.

4-H clothing leader training meeting in Know Your Sewing Machine will be held Jan. 28 and 29 at local machine company's work room. The leaders are urged to plan to spend two full days from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Leaders who will take the course are: Mrs. E. W. Earl, Colony Home Demonstration Club; Mrs. Cleburne White, Cadeville Club; Mrs. Edna Shaughnessy, Lamkin Club; Mrs. J. R. Azin, Drew Club; Mrs. James Pender, Bosco Club; Mrs. Pete Griggs, Liberty Club; Mrs. J. C. Taylor, Liberty Club; Mrs. J. C. Rayner, Watson Club and Mrs. Fred Riser, McClendon Club. Each of these leaders will teach eight 4-H beginners in clothing work to use the machine correctly.

January 30-31 and February 1 the Assistant and Home Agent will be in Ruston getting up-to-date information on tailoring from the Associate State Clothing Specialist of L. S. U. Agricultural Extension, Miss Faye Roark.

Here's a good suggestion for all of us for 1958. Keep your eyes on tomorrow. Keep your hands and feet busy with today. Keep your back toward yesterday, and never turn around to fret about it.

Happy New Year to all homemakers.

See you again.

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

New Year Is Flower Theme

By Mary M. Jardine

Here we are launched into another year and the Garden Center has been very gay this week with original New Year's decorations designed by local arrangers.

Mrs. John H. McCarter, Jr., of the Bayou DeSiard Garden Club created an interpretative composition with a color scheme of pink and silver. Tall curled ferns, silver sprayed, formed the background and represented fireworks. A tall pink taper was symbolic of the New Year and a low silver taper the old year. A small silver bowl filled with frosty cubes of sugar represented the Sugar Bowl Game. The container-base was a rectangular piece of styrofoam which had been silvered and sprayed with snow.

Mrs. C. H. Bird and Mrs. H.A. Malone of the Sun and Sand Garden Club combined their talents to design a gay party decoration. Polished driftwood from Florida in natural beige was placed in a diagonal line on a natural wood base. The line was emphasized with placements of brown dock and fragrant gray sage from Colorado. Grouped in the focal area were a metallic magenta horn, small paper hat or green and a green mask. Curled, feathered noisemakers in bright colors were grouped to one side. Very gay and typical of New Year's Eve. This interesting design can easily be converted to permanent arrangement for living room or hall by removing the party trimmings and enhancing the line design with bright orange love apples or dried straw flowers.

"Nothing in the whole world is as lovely as next year's garden." Make your garden lovelier by sharing the plants that grow too abundantly. There are so many new gardeners. If you don't know one, pass the word along to your friends and the Garden Center that you have plants to share. Half the joy of gardening is sharing with others. So try to find a new gardener who may be inspired by your gift. January, I have found by personal experience, is the best month in which to transplant and root ivy.

All the new 1958 garden catalogs are ready and they are yours in most cases for a three cent stamp. There is a small fee for some, but they are certainly worth it. Bebe Miles in Popular Gardening reminds us to "read the fine print." There is a wealth of gardening knowledge in these catalogs, such as maximum height, blooming time, color, hardiness and habit of growth, etc. They suggest annuals and perennials for dry or moist spots.

Don't forget to keep water available at your feeding stations for the birds. And remember that food is scarce for them this time of year. We have placed feeding stations within view of all the bedroom windows and enjoy the early morning show with our first cup of cafe noir.

Speaking of birds, we want to remind Monroe Garden Club members of an important coming event on January 13, when Mrs. John T. Daniel of El Dorado, Ark., will present her wonderful color slides of our native birds.

Important dates to remember: Executive Board meeting of the Louisiana Garden Club Federation, January 22, 1958, 12:30 p.m. Community Center, 315 Bolton Avenue, Alexandria. Camellia shows as follows: Jan. 5, New Orleans, La.; Jan. 11-12, Orlando Fla., Lafayette, Beaumont, Tex.; Jan. 18-19, Panama City, Fla., McComb, Miss.; Jan. 25-26, Mobile, Ala., Lake Charles, Slidell, La., Gulfport, Miss.

THE SOUTHERN GARDENER

Cold Weather Hurts Gardens

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

The extremely low temperatures that descended upon parts of the south a few weeks back can really be called "unusual" because this weather came in on a northeast wind and because, in places, the thermometer dropped to 6 and 7. Such a temperature in a high wind is probably equal to 3 or 4 below zero without the wind. Gardens really had a test of the most rigorous kind.

Surprisingly enough, even some camellia buds seem to have come through this test. Of course, all the kinds that were beginning to swell with the rains are gone. Many buds that look as if they took it will never open, but there are many more that appear to be unharmed. Old camellias with lots of foliage to break the wind and to keep the warm sun away after the freeze will probably produce the most flowers after this cold weather. This is one advantage of old bushes: they get big enough and thick enough to break the force of the wind and to hide their buds.

Damaged Evergreens

Where they were exposed to the wind, many broadleaved evergreens were browned by this cold storm. Even evergreen privets were marked by it. Amongst the smaller plants with evergreen leaves, it is amazing that some of the kinds one would expect to have been burned up were not harmed very much. The beautifully mottled leaves of Arum italicum, that small evergreen plant with callalily - like foliage were not damaged at all! These leaves lie flat on the ground in winter, so the wind did not get them, but such low temperatures were enough to destroy them, anyway. The gold dotted foliage of the leopard plant (Farfugium) were hurt to some extent but not killed. Every one thinks of this beautiful foliage plant as a pot plant. As we have stated in the column several times, this beautiful evergreen will survive out of doors in winter. Very bitter weather finally damages the foliage by spring, but a clump of the gold dotted leaves is a thing of joy most of the year. Give it a protected spot and plenty of water in summer in the shade.

The large leaves of Scilla peruviana which many column readers are now growing, were hurt but not destroyed. This was a cold spell to "separate the men from the boys." It made jelly of the foliage of the handsome hybrid scillas!

The faithful old winter irises had their evergreen leaves burned to some extent, but they sent out their violet blossoms and were in bloom three days after the cold! In your columnist's test garden, another wonderful winter flowering plant stood up to the weather: Fischer's sternbergia, a bulb with little yellow "crocus - like" blossoms on 4-inch stems opened up more buds right away and kept on blooming. With more experimenting, we shall have a whole garden full of winter flowers in the south.

Make Plans To Improve Your '58 Gardening

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Therefore, be it resolved that during the calendar year of 1958 I shall mend my gardening ways with the aim of becoming a better gardener.

1. I shall garden with the assistance of a plan. This plan will not be in my head. Nor will it be — as last year — under a pile of clippings (newspaper, not grass) and some half - empty seed packets at the bottom of the coat closet where I discovered it on a rainy day in October. This was at least two months after I had planted heath from the local flower show on top of a daffodil bed, a stupid procedure which will (a) cause the heath to be tossed out of the ground by the emerging bulbs and (b) cripple the bulbs which must push the heath out of their way to the surface.

2. I shall not be carried away by my spring enthusiasm to dig up such a large garden that it will either get ahead of me or I'll be a slave to tending it. (Actually, my misguided enthusiasm lies, not so much in over-expanding my gardening area, but in an inability to refuse gift offers by others who have over - estimated their planting space. Consequently my annual beds usually become cluttered with perennials someone else was going to throw away.) I must also learn to discard excess plants, if for no other reason than to make enough room for the best ones.

3. I shall expend more effort on my soil, so that each year it becomes deeper, richer and easier for plants to grow in. This means making a compost pile of clippings and light garden debris which can be used as top dressing as needed. This means feeding the lawn regularly as well as fertilizing the flower, vegetable and seed beds.

4. I shall take better care of my trees and the shrubs: pruning them as needed and at the proper season; inspecting them regularly for signs of trouble, and calling in expert assistance for larger jobs.

5. I shall try something different each year — because it is more interesting and because the easiest way to learn is to experiment.

6. I shall take better care of my garden equipment — keeping my tools clean and the power equipment oiled and in good working order. In the first place, it is less expensive, and in the second place good tools make the work easier. Even when I'm hot and tired (or at least I'll try to.)

7. I shall read more about gardening — perhaps join a garden club. There is nothing like the stimulation of new ideas to keep one's interest alive.

And if I can keep to these good resolutions, I'll have a perfectly wonderful garden. However, it seems to me, I've made these resolutions before — on a similarly blustery day when I was hugging the hearth and longing for spring.

NOTED BIRD PHOTOGRAPHER—Mrs. John T. Daniel, of El Dorado, Ark., will present an illustrated lecture entitled "Color on the Wing" to members of the Monroe Garden Club on Jan. 13. Mrs. Daniel has made bird photography her specialty for the past ten years and has also written many nature articles for publication. The slides she will present next Monday were filmed at Avery Island and the Lacassine Wildlife Refuge.

JOINT DEBATE

The question often is asked: "How wide should the joints between ceramic tiles be?" This question already is answered in the case of small tiles that are mounted on sheets of paper to facilitate installation. With large units or loose tiles a joint of from one - sixteenth to one - quarter inch is recommended. However, special conditions or personal tastes may suggest departures from this range. In any case the final authority on joint width in a specific instance rests with the ceramic tile contractor in charge.

Home Resolutions Eliminate Clutter

Does your home look as if a mad man had decorated it? Are tables off - balance, pictures lopsided, and walls painted in patterns that look like they were copied from the walls of prison cells?

A good time to take inventory of your little castle is right after the holidays. When tinsel and color disappear, and you face the stark reality of bareness without glitter once again, you may size up the faults of your manse and give it the pick - me - up it deserves.

Resolutions should be written down, placed in a handy spot, and checked off as you reorganize your home. Here are some flaws to look for:

1. Do your color schemes fight with each other, from one room to another? Too - vivid shades are likely to clash, more so than pastels.

2. Are you mad for gimmick wall decorations placing them willy-nilly all over the place? Or is your weaknes for eye sore doodads like flower holders that seem to climb all over the walls?

3. Do you use too many patterns in one room? If draperies are in a busy design, rug or chair fabrics should be plain or striped. Three colors should be the maximum for a home decorator to play with.

4. Do end tables tower over arms of chairs or are they too low?

5. Is your living room so cluttered with furniture — chairs, end tables, coffee tables, magazine racks, etc. — that there is little space for moving around?

6. Do you feel compelled to display every single thing you own in your home — the glass lamp from grandma with indirect lighting, for instance? Park the settee in your attic if it doesn't go with your contemporary furniture. Or sell your modern pieces short, and decorate around your antiues.

7. If you collect something — glass, pewter or copper — do you overburden a room with it or display it appropriately? Window shelves, book cases, Welsh cupboards are good for this purpose.

8. Need a cabinet for paraphernalia? Then find the space for it, and get one.

9. Have animals taken over your home? Are chairs and sofas full of dog and cat hairs? Keep cloths over chair seats if animals have full reign in the home, removing the covers when guests arrive.

10. If baby marks walls and furniture, keep the area sponged and clean. It is easy to get in the habit of accepting these scars as inevitable. Keep tabs on small fry infractions of home rules.

CLASSROOM PANELING

The appearance of wood paneling on school classroom walls has two logical explanations, the Southern Pine Association declares. In the first place, the warm, natural character of the material produces a soothing psychiatric effect. In the second place, wood paneling presents a hard wearing surface that's easy to maintain. Finishes last 8 to 15 years and even longer.

NOW!

The Time To Plant

An Editorial in the Morning World Thursday, January 2nd, "Spring Fever Near" was a most informative and interesting article. Bringing out the fact that the time to plant is now, the article stated that one of the perversities of nature is that the time to plant most trees and shrubs arrives about two or three months ahead of the time the so-called "spring fever" or planting mania hits most folks.

We at Bagwell's Gardens would like to help you with your planting by offering an outstanding selection of plants at sale prices.

Be sure to see Monday's Morning World or News Star for Bagwell's EARLY PLANTING SALE. —Adv.

THE HOME SHIFT

Some Of Bulbs Begin Blooming

By Mildred Swift

January and February are the exciting months of the year in the garden. Some of your bulbs will begin to bloom. Most early blooming plants start showing color in their buds and dozens of varieties of camellias are blooming. In fact, this is the time to select and plant your camellias. Then you'll have no disappointments because you'll actually see the blossoms. Call FA 3-2251, your Agricultural Extension Department, and ask for a copy of our Camellia bulletin by W. D. Kimbrough, R. H. Hanchey and J. S. Roussel. This very complete book will give you planting instructions, insect and disease control, varieties, fertilization, grafting and any other information you'll need.

The All - America rose winners for this year include for the first time a white hybrid tea, plus two Floribundas. The white is "White Knight." This is an excellent rose for cutting purposes with long - lasting flowers. It is vigorous and disease resistant. White Knight has an abundance of thick, leathery leaves with a vivid green color. It is a heavy bloomer and the buds are long and pointed. The flowers are 4 to 5 inches in diameter, with petals (28 to 30) rolling loosely outward. The petals are soft satin white on the inside and shining white on the outside.

Fusilier is a floribunda, rich orange red color, brilliant. The color is much darker in the fall. The flowers are 3 to 3½ inches across and are produced in large clusters. The plant grows full and bushy. It is medium height and stocky, the foliage dark green and glossy. An interesting thing about this foliage is that it is red when young.

The yellow winner is "Gold Cup", a Floribunda of golden yellow which holds its color as long as the flower is there. The foliage is dark and glossy and the yellow a pure bright shade. Gold Cup grows 2½ feet tall. It is a strong plant that shows marked resistance to disease.

If you haven't planted your sweet peas, don't grieve. It is not too late. Since the seed of this flower is large, it can be planted when the soil is still rather heavy. This is not true of tiny seed. They're packed and lost if the soil is heavy, as are many small seed. That's why we must wait for the soil to dry out. Work it and pulverize well. You can't imagine a seed the size of a pin point coming up through a large lump of soil. It just won't work. You'll get no stand and wonder why the neighbor's seed came up and yours did not.

The best place for a bed of flowers is in the service area. Then if it gets weedy and unsightly, nobody sees the ugliness but you. There are times when one plant blooms out, and others are just coming on. The bed is not attractive at this time. Unless you have a good yard man several days a week, you'll need to limit this cut flower bed to a very small area. One has little time for weeding these days.

Make List Of January Dates

By AUDREY DAWSON

With the Aew Year, 1958 Agriculture Extension Service of Ouachita Parish has made a change. Perhaps you have noticed the title change in this article from Euna D. Spielman to Audrey H. Dawson. Mrs. Spielman has taken her much deserved retirement after twenty-eight years of service to Agriculture Extension Service. However, I am happy to report to you that she will remain in Monroe at her present address, 603 South 3rd Street, and has agreed to give us her moral support and assistance when needed. You can rest assured that she will be called on.

Although Mrs. Spielman's retirement will not become effective until Jan. 15, I am pinch-hitting in writing this column for her until Jan. 16 when I will assume full responsibilities of the Home Demonstration Agent for Ouachita Parish. Mrs. Spielman is presently on leave visiting her daughter, Mrs. J. B. Green, in Memphis, Tenn.

You are anxious to know who will take over the supervision of the 4-H girls. Mrs. Ada Hanchey, District Agent, has selected and the two governing boards, Parish School Board and Parish Police Jury, have approved Miss Betty Jane Hodgkins from Winnsboro, La. Miss Hodgkins has had a great deal of experience working with the 4-H group as she has been a Home Economist employed by a local power company and previous to this position was a teacher of Home Economics in the high school at Wisner.

Important Dates

Best Club for 1958 score sheet committee, which consists of the president and secretary of the twenty-three Home Demonstration Clubs or the person selected by each club to keep this record will meet Friday, Jan. 17 at the Agricultural Auditorium at 9:30 a.m.

Home Demonstration Council will meet the fourth Friday, Jan. 24 at 10 a.m. at the Agricultural Extension Auditorium, West Monroe.

Family Life Leader Training meeting will be Jan. 28 at 9:30 a.m. with Mrs. Florence Abington from LSU Agricultural Extension giving instructions. Mrs. Abington will train these leaders in methods of using material prepared by her on the Family Tree

There will be a poultry meeting of all 4-H members and parents who are enrolled in Chicken of Tomorrow Contest at the Agricultural Auditorium, Saturday, Jan. 25 at 9:30 a.m.

4-H clothing leader training meeting in Know Your Sewing Machine will be held Jan. 28 and 29 at local machine company's work room. The leaders are urged to plan to spend two full days from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Leaders who will take the course are: Mrs. E. W. January 30-31 and February 1 the Assistant and Home Agent will be in Ruston getting up-to-date information on tailoring from the Associate State Clothing Specialist of L. S. U. Agricultural Extension, Miss Faye Roark.

3. Do you use too many patterns in one room? If draperies are in a busy design, rug or chair fabrics should be plain or striped. Three colors should be the maximum for a home decorator to play with.

4. Do end tables tower over arms of chairs or are they too low?

5. Is your living room so cluttered with furniture — chairs, end tables, coffee tables, magazine racks, etc. — that there is little space for moving around?

6. Do you feel compelled to display every single thing you own in your home — the glass lamp from grandma with indirect lighting, for instance? Park the settee in your attic if it doesn't go with your contemporary furniture. Or sell your modern pieces short, and decorate around your antiues.

7. If you collect something — glass, pewter or copper — do you overburden a room with it or display it appropriately? Window shelves, book cases, Welsh cupboards are good for this purpose.

8. Need a cabinet for paraphernalia? Then find the space for it, and get one.

9. Have animals taken over your home? Are chairs and sofas full of dog and cat hairs? Keep cloths over chair seats if animals have full reign in the home, removing the covers when guests arrive.

10. If baby marks walls and furniture, keep the area sponged and clean. It is easy to get in the habit of accepting these scars as inevitable. Keep tabs on small fry infractions of home rules.

CLASSROOM PANELING

The appearance of wood paneling on school classroom walls has two logical explanations, the Southern Pine Association declares. In the first place, the warm, natural character of the material produces a soothing psychiatric effect. In the second place, wood paneling presents a hard wearing surface that's easy to maintain. Finishes last 8 to 15 years and even longer.

The Time To Plant

An Editorial in the Morning World Thursday, January 2nd, "Spring Fever Near" was a most informative and interesting article. Bringing out the fact that the time to plant is now, the article stated that one of the perversities of nature is that the time to plant most trees and shrubs arrives about two or three months ahead of the time the so-called "spring fever" or planting mania hits most folks.

We at Bagwell's Gardens would like to help you with your planting by offering an outstanding selection of plants at sale prices.

Be sure to see Monday's Morning World or News Star for Bagwell's EARLY PLANTING SALE. —Adv.

ELBERT R. SLAUGHTER

Science And Healing Will Feature Talk

Man's birthright of freedom will be the theme of a lecture on Christian Science to be delivered Friday, January 10 by Elbert R. Slaughter, of Dallas, Tex.

Mr. Slaughter, member of the Christian Science Board of Lectureship, will deliver his address in the church auditorium, 224 Auburn avenue under auspices of the First Church of Christ, Scientist, Monroe.

He will take for his theme, "Christian Science, Its Message of Liberation."

Lectures of this nature are always free to the public and the public is extended a cordial invitation to attend.

A native of Edgewood, Tex., Mr. Slaughter became interested in Christian Science in 1936 when he accepted an invitation of a friend to attend a Christian Science lecture. He withdrew from a business career in 1945 to devote all his full time to the practice of Christian Science healing.

Baptists Will Hold Week For Bible Study

Baptist Churches of this area will be engaged in January Bible Study Week, January 7-10 along with over 27,000 other churches in the Southern Baptist Convention representing nine million members. This year the Old Testament Book of Hosea is being used by the churches for study. The theme of this book is about God's in comparable love.

Most Baptist churches in this area will be meeting from 7:00 until 8:30 nightly.

January Bible Study week has become an annual affair in all of the churches and has proved to be quite popular. In most cases, the pastor of the church will do the teaching with the Bible being the main text book. A special commentary entitled "Studies in Hosea" by K. Owen White has been prepared for Supplementary study. The general public is invited to attend any Baptist church.

Set Session Of Trenton Missions

The Trenton Associational Women's Missionary Union executive meeting will convene with the Edgewood Baptist Church Wednesday, January 8th from 9 until 11 o'clock in the morning. Presidents of the WMU organizations of the 23 churches in Trenton Association are expected to be in attendance along with other association officers.

Mrs. F. A. Brown, president, will bring a devotional and will preside at the meeing. Lunch will be served by the host church.

Bible Words for Today

LUKE 10:27—"And he answering said, Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy strength, and with all thy mind; and thy neighbour as thyself." (King James)

* * *

The secret of life is to place God first. This is not easy in any generation, particularly our own. There is the temptation to place material success, popularity, security, family, friends, prestige—these and many more temptations present themselves as the first claim for our attention and devotion. The result of the wrong choice is that we can be wealthy, but frustrated; healthy, but unhappy; secure, but bored.

Placing God first means that we have the right center for our lives. We have both purpose and direction. Since we seek to be used by God we are not primarily interested in using other personalities to gain our own ends. It is not necessary to try to escape from life, because we have found the answer.

Reading the Bible, the study of the life of Christ, taking time for our own prayer and devotion—all these are ways in which we can learn how to place God first. With God first, we are ready to love our neighbor as ourselves. Courageously we can seek to overcome prejudice, injustice, war, crime, because God can use us to accomplish his purpose.

Rev. Grubbs Announcing Church Bldg.

The Cypress Street Church of God in West Monroe has recently completed a new educational building which affords expanded facilities. Approximately $30.000 has been expended in securing the improvements.

The annex provides several Sunday school classrooms, a youth chapel, a kitchen and dining hall, a nursery, a baptistry and an office for the pastor, who is the Rev. J. C. Grubbs. Incidentally, the pastor served as contractor, with John G. Smith as job foreman. Much work was donated by the men of the church and thereby there was kept down a far larger expense. The architect was Allen T. Turpin.

The interior of the sanctuary was re-decorated with installation of duct work and an air conditioning system and heating, which cost $4,785.

The church is now open for serving the congregation and the public is invited. In the near future a formal opening is planned.

Incidentally PFC Dwight L. Grubbs, the pastor's son, will speak at both services today. He was educated at Ouachita Parish High School and Northeast State College. He is now stationed at Arlington, Va., as a presidential honor guard at the White House.

The friends of this young man are specially invited and all others to both services in this church Sunday.

Baptists To Launch New Church Group

The Riverton community is to have a Baptist mission church and the initial services will be held there this afternoon at 2:30 p.m.

The Rev. A. J. Turner, veteran Baptist minister, will serve as pastor and will receive the aid of the Ridge Avenue Baptist church in West Monroe in establishing the new mission.

For the time being, the location of the mission church will be a mile north of the stores on highway 165 at the Rev. Charles Moore place.

Doctors And Oversea Work On Television

An hour-long television program featuring the work of American doctors overseas, including three Methodist medical missionaries, will be shown the night of January 23 on the nationwide facilities of the National Broadcasting Company.

"MD International" will be televised from 10 to 11 p.m. (Eastern Standard Time). It is another in the "March of Medicine" TV series sponsored by Smith, Kline & French Laboratories, Philadelphia, which in 1956 produced "Monganga," the story of a missionary doctor in the Belgian Congo. The series is produced in cooperation with the American Medical Association.

Of eight major sequences in "MD International," a majority deal with the work of American missionary doctors, both Protestant and Roman Catholic. Other doctors shown are those working for the United States Government, private foundations and American universities (as exchange or visiting physicians). In three of the sequences, Methodist doctors are shown at work, in Sarawak (Borneo), Nepal and India.

The sequence on Sarawak presents the work of Dr. Harold N. Brewster, Montclair, N. J., one of three doctors in the international, interracial Methodist medical mission to the Ibans, ex-headhunters now turning to Christianity. In 1956 Dr. Brewster took a two-year leave of absence as medical secretary of the Methodist Board of Missions to help open the pioneer medical work among the Ibans.

"MD International" shows the work of the United Christian Medical Mission to Nepal, which in 1954 opened the first Protestant work in that remote Himalayan land. Dr. Bethel Fleming, Bucks County, Pa., one of three Methodist doctors serving with the United Mission, is shown at work in Kathmandu, Nepal's capital. Dr. Fleming and her husband, Dr. Robert Fleming, minister and scientist, were in the first party to go into Nepal with the United Medical Mission.

Other sequences show American doctors, missionary and otherwise, at work in Korea, Hong Kong, Burma, Lebanon and Ethiopia.

MY ANSWER by Billy Graham

QUESTION: I am a Christian and want to do the right thing. This morning a man was murdered and a lot of money stolen in the same block where I live. Surely we we Christians are in some way responsible! C. L. P.

ANSWER: The question of Christian responsibility in an unbelieving world is a deep and an involved one with which I am unprepared to answer in detail. Christ has made it plain that as Christian we are "light" and "salt." Light shows the way, salt helps to preserve. As Christians we have a responsibility to live in such a way that we shall honor the name of Christ. This involves not only the things which we do but also the things which we do not do. It also means that we have a responsibility to witness for Christ, telling others of Him. At the same time, when we have faithfully done our part we must remember that as was true in Christ's time, so it is true today — only part of those who hear will believe. The tragedy to which you refer is enacted in one way another every day. We all long to see a better world and I am convinced that this will eventuate only as more and more people accept Christ as their own Saviour and then live for His glory. The trouble with a sinful society is the sinners which comprise that society. When such are converted to Christ and go out to live for Him they too become "light and "salt" to bless the social order.

Colored Asked For Aid In Building

An appeal is made for funds for the erection of a building for the Pentecostal Church for colored. The Rev. E. A. Johnson, pastor and other members of this church, ask citizens, white and colored, to help carry out the desire to erect a building to serve this group. Here is the appeal:

"To the good citizens, white and colored of Monroe, we desire to build a nice Negro Pentecostal church here with your assistance. Whatever the Lord Jesus puts in your heart, please be sure to give for this worthy cause, be it small or large.

"Business men, if you desire, you can help greatly. Building material, nails, windows, doors, all are required and will be thankfully received."

The preacher states that further information can be had by phoning FA 5-2441. Contributions can be mailed to Box 791, Monroe.

ELBERT R. SLAUGHTER

Science And Healing Will Feature Talk

Man's birthright of freedom will be the theme of a lecture on Christian Science to be delivered Friday, January 10 by Elbert R. Slaughter, of Dallas, Tex.

Mr. Slaughter, member of the Christian Science Board of Lectureship, will deliver his address in the church auditorium, 224 Auburn avenue under auspices of the First Church of Christ, Scientist, Monroe.

He will take for his theme, "Christian Science, Its Message of Liberation."

Lectures of this nature are always free to the public and the public is extended a cordial invitation to attend.

A native of Edgewood, Tex., Mr. Slaughter became interested in Christian Science in 1936 when he accepted an invitation of a friend to attend a Christian Science lecture. He withdrew from a business career in 1945 to devote all his full time to the practice of Christian Science healing.

Baptists Will Hold Week For Bible Study

Baptist Churches of this area will be engaged in January Bible Study Week, January 7-10 along with over 27,000 other churches in the Southern Baptist Convention representing nine million members. This year the Old Testament Book of Hosea is being used by the churches for study. The theme of this book is about God's in comparable love.

Most Baptist churches in this area will be meeting from 7:00 until 8:30 nightly.

January Bible Study week has become an annual affair in all of the churches and has proved to be quite popular. In most cases, the pastor of the church will do the teaching with the Bible being the main text book. A special commentary entitled "Studies in Hosea" by K. Owen White has been prepared for Supplementary study. The general public is invited to attend any Baptist church.

Set Session Of Trenton Missions

The Trenton Associational Women's Missionary Union executive meeting will convene with the Edgewood Baptist Church Wednesday, January 8th from 9 until 11 o'clock in the morning. Presidents of the WMU organizations of the 23 churches in Trenton Association are expected to be in attendance along with other association officers.

Mrs. F. A. Brown, president, will bring a devotional and will preside at the meeing. Lunch will be served by the host church.

Bible Words for Today

LUKE 10:27—"And he answering said, Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy strength, and with all thy mind; and thy neighbour as thyself." (King James)

* * *

The secret of life is to place God first. This is not easy in any generation, particularly our own. There is the temptation to place material success, popularity, security, family, friends, prestige—these and many more temptations present themselves as the first claim for our attention and devotion. The result of the wrong choice is that we can be wealthy, but frustrated; healthy, but unhappy; secure, but bored.

Placing God first means that we have the right center for our lives. We have both purpose and direction. Since we seek to be used by God we are not primarily interested in using other personalities to gain our own ends. It is not necessary to try to escape from life, because we have found the answer.

Reading the Bible, the study of the life of Christ, taking time for our own prayer and devotion—all these are ways in which we can learn how to place God first. With God first, we are ready to love our neighbor as ourselves. Courageously we can seek to overcome prejudice, injustice, war, crime, because God can use us to accomplish his purpose.

President Ralph M. Johnson
Berkeley Baptist Divinity School
Berkeley, Calif.

Today's YOUR GUIDING STAR Message:

0. Gita: Prabhavananda-Isherwood: They who work selfishly for results are miserable.
1. Ps. 31:24. Be strong, and let your heart take courage, all you who wait.
2. Prov. 1:2. Know wisdom and instruction, understand words of insight.
3. Prov. 1:7. Fools despise wisdom and instruction.
4. Ps. 86.5. Thou art good and forgiving, abounding in steadfast love.

Rev. Grubbs Announcing Church Bldg.

The Cypress Street Church of God in West Monroe has recently completed a new educational building which affords expanded facilities. Approximately $30,000 has been expended in securing the improvements.

The annex provides several Sunday school classrooms, a youth chapel, a kitchen and dining hall, a nursery, a baptistry and an office for the pastor, who is the Rev. J. C. Grubbs. Incidentally, the pastor served as contractor, with John G. Smith as job foreman. Much work was donated by the men of the church and thereby there was kept down a far larger expense. The architect was Allen T. Turpin.

The interior of the sanctuary was re - decorated with installation of duct work and an air conditioning system and heating, which cost $4,785.

The church is now open for serving the congregation and the public is invited. In the near future a formal opening is planned.

Incidentally PFC Dwight L. Grubbs, the pastor's son, will speak at both services today. He was educated at Ouachita Parish High School and Northeast State College. He is now stationed at Arlington, Va., as a presidential honor guard at the White House.

The friends of this young man are specially invited and all others to both services in this church Sunday.

REV. A. J. TURNER

Baptists To Launch New Church Group

The Riverton community is to have a Baptist mission church and the initial services will be held there this afternoon at 2:30 p.m.

The Rev. A. J. Turner, veteran Baptist minister, will serve as pastor and will receive the aid of the Ridge Avenue Baptist church in West Monroe in establishing the new mission.

For the time being, the location of the mission church will be a mile north of the stores on highway 165 at the Rev. Charles Moore place.

Doctors And Oversea Work On Television

An hour-long television program featuring the work of American doctors overseas, including three Methodist medical missionaries, will be shown the night of January 23 on the nationwide facilities of the National Broadcasting Company.

"MD International" will be televised from 10 to 11 p.m. (Eastern Standard Time). It is another in the "March of Medicine" TV series sponsored by Smith, Kline & French Laboratories, Philadelphia, which in 1956 produced "Monganga," the story of a missionary doctor in the Belgian Congo. The series is produced in cooperation with the American Medical Association.

Of eight major sequences in "MD International," a majority deal with the work of American missionary doctors, both Protestant and Roman Catholic. Other doctors shown are those working for the United States Government, private foundations and American universities (as exchange or visiting physicians). In three of the sequences, Methodist doctors are shown at work, in Sarawak (Borneo), Nepal and India.

The sequence on Sarawak presents the work of Dr. Harold N. Brewster, Montclair, N. J., one of three doctors in the international, interracial Methodist medical mission to the Ibans, ex-headhunters now turning to Christianity. In 1956 Dr. Brewster took a two-year leave of absence as medical secretary of the Methodist Board of Missions to help open the pioneer medical work among the Ibans.

"MD International" shows the work of the United Christian Medical Mission to Nepal, which in 1954 opened the first Protestant work in that remote Himalayan land. Dr. Bethel Fleming, Bucks County, Pa., one of three Methodist doctors serving with the United Mission, is shown at work in Kathmandu, Nepal's capital. Dr. Fleming and her husband, Dr. Robert Fleming, minister and scientist, were in the first party to go into Nepal with the United Medical Mission.

MY ANSWER by Billy Graham

QUESTION: I am a Christian and want to do the right thing. This morning a man was murdered and a lot of money stolen in the same block where I live. Surely we we Christians are in some way responsible! C. L. P.

ANSWER: The question of Christian responsibility in an unbelieving world is a deep and an involved one with which I am unprepared to answer in detail. Christ has made it plain that as Christian we are "light" and "salt." Light shows the way, salt helps to preserve. As Christians we have a responsibility to live in such a way that we shall honor the name of Christ. This involves not only the things which we do but also the things which we do not do. It also means that we have a responsibility to witness for Christ, telling others of Him. At the same time, when we have faithfully done our part we must remember that as was true in Christ's time, so it is true today — only part of those who hear will believe. The tragedy to which you refer is enacted in one way another every day. We all long to see a better world and I am convinced that this will eventuate only as more and more people accept Christ as their own Saviour and then live for His glory. The trouble with a sinful society is the sinners which comprise that society. When such are converted to Christ and go out to live for Him they too become "light and "salt" to bless the social order.

Colored Asked For Aid In Building

An appeal is made for funds for the erection of a building for the Pentecostal Church for colored. The Rev. E. A. Johnson, pastor and other members of this church, ask citizens, white and colored, to help carry out the desire to erect a building to serve this group. Here is the appeal:

"To the good citizens, white and colored of Monroe, we desire to build a nice Negro Pentecostal church here with your assistance. Whatever the Lord Jesus puts in your heart, please be sure to give for this worthy cause, be it small or large.

"Business men, if you desire, you can help greatly. Building material, nails, windows, doors, all are required and will be thankfully received."

The preacher states that further information can be had by phoning FA 5-2441. Contributions can be mailed to Box 791, Monroe.

Missile Watchers Guide

By DAVID L. BOWEN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

General Maxwell D. Taylor, army chief of staff, commented a few days ago that within 10 years, Americans will think no more of missiles flying overhead than they do now of airplanes.

At the rate rocketeers are flinging the big birds into the sky from nesting pads on the sands of Cape Canaveral, Fla., the general's estimate is beginning to look conservative.

For those who find themselves muddled by the missiles suddenly sprouting headlines, here is a brief scorecard covering some of the most important missiles already in the American military arsenal or in advanced stages of development. They are displayed in the chart at right, drawn to approximate scale.

SNARK: The first U. S. intercontinental missile to reach production, the air force's Snark has a range of 5,000 miles plus and will be assigned to the strategic air command during 1958. In effect, it is a very fast, high flying, unmanned bomber. It must stay within the earth's atmosphere because of its air-breathing jet power plant, which makes interception possible.

FALCON: In production since 1955, the Falcon is an air - to - air missile guided to its target in one model by radar, in another by a heat-seeking device. It's in use by the air defense command.

SIDEWINDER: As deadly as the desert rattlesnake it's named after, the navy's air-to-air Sidewinder is literally guided by the tailpipe of its target by an infrared or heat-seeking device. It's inexpensive, reliable and in use.

REDSTONE: The first successful large ballistic missile, the Redstone is an army bombardment weapon with a range of 200 miles. It is operational and was an important step toward longer range ballistic weapons.

RASCAL: This cigar-shaped rocket is designed for use by B47 Stratojet bombers seeking to avoid local anti - aircraft defenses. Carried to within striking distance by the mother plane, the Rascal speeds into the target on its own. It has been delivered to the strategic air command.

DART: Easily the most peculiar looking missile now made, the army's stubby Dart is only four feet long. It's for frontline use against tanks, and can deliver a powerful warhead with pinpoint accuracy.

THOR: One of the nation's two intermediate range (1,500 miles) ballistic missiles, the Thor has performed successfully in about half its tests. Developed by the air force, it will be used overseas within range of Russian targets when it becomes operational.

ATLAS: This is the "ultimate" weapon, a ballistic missile capable of spanning the oceans from one continent to another at speeds and heights making interception impossible with known equipment. The Russians reportedly have a missile of this class; Secretary of the Air Force Douglas has predicted the Atlas will be ready for combat use within two years.

NIKE: One of the earliest of the guided missiles, Nike battalions are common near many large American cities. The missile is anti - aircraft and has undergone several model changes.

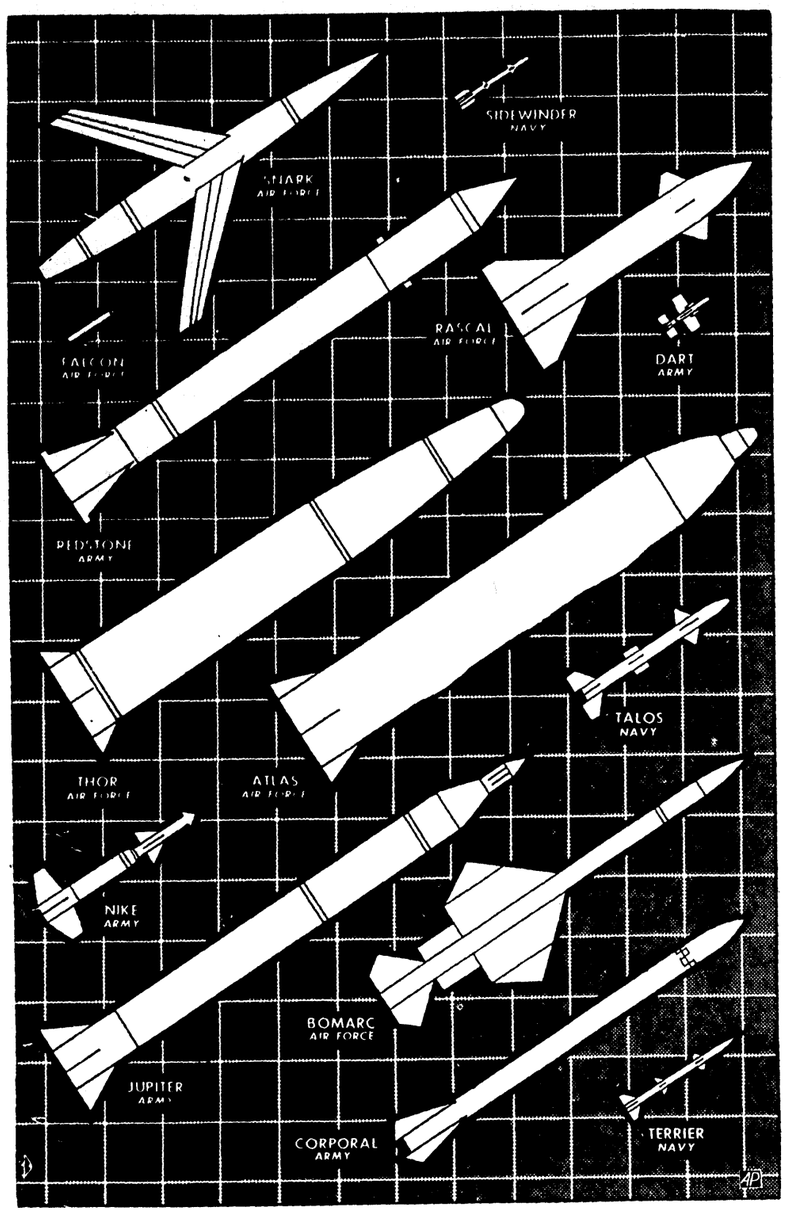
JUPITER: The army's candidate in the intermediate range ballistic field, the Jupiter is the big brother to the Redstone. It has been ordered into production with the air force's Thor, even though — like the Thor — its development program is not yet complete.

TALOS: A versatile navy weapon, the Talos can be used against enemy aircraft or for surface bombardment. It is in use by the navy and may be employed by continental air defense by the army.

BOMARC: An anti - aircraft guided missile of extensive range, the Bomarc has successfully scored a "kill" on a target 100 miles from its launcher. It takes off vertically with rockets, then levels off and cruises to the target on twin ramjet engines.

CORPORAL: Already deployed in Europe, the Corporal gives army field commanders ability to strike at tactical targets 75 miles behind enemy lines. It can be armed with either atomic or conventional warheads.

TERRIER: A navy anti-aircraft weapon, the Terrier is now operational aboard three warships and will be employed on 13 more vessels under construction or being converted. Range is about 10 miles. Loaded, trained and fired automatically, it is guided to its target by radar.



HIS STORY

Fame Shortlived For B. Bedwell

Editor's Note—A year ago, Bennie Bedwell was a drifter when fame tapped him as a shortlived suspect in the slaying of the teen-aged Grimes sisters. Now he's back on skid row. Did the brief brush with fame change his life? To find out, an AP reporter went to skid row and worked, ate and shot pool with Bennie. Here's his story.

By BERNARD GAVZER

CHICAGO, Jan. 4 (AP)—Fame, of a sort, came to Bennie Bedwell as he was sitting in a skid row movie house.

The law plucked the 20-year-old drifter and sometime dishwasher from his seat. For a brief time it held him up to the hard glare of public inspection as a suspect in one of Chicago's most lurid—and still unsolved—murders.

Then, with scarcely a ripple, it dropped him back into his twilight world of cheap flophouses, saloons and beaneries, where jingling pockets lead to a bottle and strange women.

His Brief

During his brief flight from obscurity to obscurity, Bennie was accused of slaying the teen-aged Grimes sisters, Barbara and Patricia, who disappeared just a year ago today.

Bennie confessed (under police duress, he said). He recanted. He was freed. He was charged with rape in Florida, taken there, tried and acquitted.

The experiences seem to have changed Bennie. He doesn't drink any more. He has a steady girl and a steady job of sorts. He wants to go to school and learn to read.

Bennie works as a truck drivers helper for the Salvation Army at $17 a week (grant, not salary) plu room and board. He eats at the Army dining hall under a sign that says.

Never Fails

"Jesus Never Fails."

"Sometimes it seems like he does fail," Bennie observes, "but I reckon it only seemed that way to me for a bit back there."

"Back there" is the time of the Grimes case. Bennie was arrested shortly after the girls' nude, frozen bodies were found beside a country road Jan. 22. Several skid row people reported seeing the sisters with a dishwasher and drifter known as "Bennie."

After three days of questioning, Bennie signed a confession. But the mother of the slain girls insisted Bennie was lying. She said her daughters never would be on skid row of their own free will and certainly not in the company of such a person. Bennie repudiated the confession.

Why did he confess?

"I just wanted some peace," he said. "I wanted them to stop asking me questions. That's all I wanted was some peace of mind, for them to let me alone."

Bennie has a keen memory for details once heard and a knack for visualizing situations. To sheriffs' investigators, he seemed to know a lot about the Grimes case.

Once he decided to play a good suspect's role, he almost carried it off. He described what Barbara, 15, wore. He made glib use of 13-year-old Patricia's nickname, "Petie."

But, in making a good story, he guessed wrong on a lot of details. As Sheriff Joseph Lohman put it in exasperation: "He contradicts himself continually."

Two Girls

Bennie's second story was that he was with two Indian girls at the time.

"I think if you'd a been seen with two girls it might of been you," he says. "I was there with two Indian girls and it come out mixed up.

"I had me some money and I was looking for a good time and they looked as good as any I could have a party with so I went with them. The kind of people I knew and the kind of things we did, it was okay to go with girls and have a party.

"The way we figured was if a girl was old enough to know what the score was she was old enough to know what she was doing. I don't say we was right, or it's right now, but that's the way it was then."

Talking as he worked loading a truck, Bennie remembered the time when all the attention given him made him think—crazy as it seems—that maybe he was a hero of sorts.

"One feller wanted to give me $5,000 to go for a couple weeks on personal appearances. Nothing come of that. Another feller wanted I should come to Detroit and take care of a 60-room house and some cars and things. Nothing come of that, too."

What does Bennie want now?

"I'd like to go to schol. I want to. I'd like to go to school. I want to be able to pick up a newspaper and read and know what's going on in the world."

"Do you know what Sputnik is?" he was asked.

"Yeah, that's that thing up in the sky," he said. And, after a pause, he asked, "They ever hear from that dog again?"

Bennie figures that if he can get an education he can get a good job. The $17 a week he gets from the Salvation Army is temporary.

The army's Maj. C. C. Briggs explains:

"That's not a salary. We call it a grant. In the proper sense, the men here receive grants for work they do in addition to room and board. This is their home. We also have employes, but Bennie isn't in that category yet. He gets along very well here."

The army is a haven to Bennie. He ranks it second to David E. Bradshaw, the young attorney who took Bennie's case and succeeded eventually in getting him free.

"If it wasn't for Dave," Bennie says, "I'd be sitting in bad shape right now. My mother stood right by me too. Dave and her and her husband (Bennie's stepfather stuck by me, but my mama couldn't do anything without Dave. He was the one."

3 Branches Enlist 32 From Area

Three branches of the Armed Forces have enlisted 32 area residents during the past month, with 21 going into the Army, nine to the Navy and two into the Marines.

Five Twin City residents were among the Army recruits. Now in basic training are Euell T. Nettles, Gene Simmons, and one WAC, Marguerite Fox, all from Monroe, and two West Monroeans, James E. Street and Alphonso Lea.

Prior-Service

Two prior - service men re-enlisted into the Navy within 90 days after discharge, and retained their previous ratings. They are Charles H. Whitaker, BT3, of Monroe, and Jimmie Jones, FT3, of Farmerville.

Others enlisting include Curtis L. Davis, Charles E. Walter, Elmer L. Terry and W. Harold Jackson, all of Monroe; John E. Ingram, West Monroe; Frederick H. Stringer, Oakdale, and Mickey F. Skelton, Mound Bayou, Miss.

William E. Sutherlin of Winnsboro is now in boot camp at the Marine Corps training center, San Diego, Calif. Marva Dell Williams of Rastrop enlisted in the women's branch of the corps, will begin training this month.

OUTER SPACE HAIR-CUTNIK — Headed the right direction for a trip to the moon, Robert Venuti, 18, Bellflower, Calif., exhibits latest in space hair-cutniks. Venuti went to Jim Ausman's Bellflower barber shop to get his head shaved prior to going into the Navy. Ausman talked him into beating Russia in launching the hair-cutnik. (AP Wirephoto)

FEWER MARRIAGES

RENO (AP)—Reno had more divorce business last year than in 1956, but fewer marriages. Divorce decrees were granted to 4,468 people last year, 48 more than in 1956. Marriage licenses numbered 19,700 in 1957 compared with 20,196 the previous year.

Influence Of Big Democracy Tested

The United States is facing once again the question of how much influence a big democracy can exert in the internal affairs of a small neighbor threatened by communism.

The question was answered in Guatemala in 1954 by strong encouragement of a military coup which overthrew the pro-Communist government.

Guatemala is inexperienced in democratic administration. It adopted democratic forms only in 1944, and the conservatives never developed effective administration.

The Communists, on the other hand, were trained in administration and in legislative effectiveness, were able to put their bills through Congress and worm their way into the government, which they finally took over.

After he ousted them Armas had a fairly stable government for more than a year, with aid from the United States. But even some non-Communists did not fully support him, fearing a dictatorship. Leftist agitation became serous early in 1956. Riots occurred, and Armas was assassinated last July.

A special election in October filed to produce decisive results, there were fraud charges. Congress annulled the election and called another for Jan. 19.

Disturbances have continued, and two of the three leading candidates are openly seeking Communist support.

In this situation the United States would like to lend assistance to conservative factions, but they are not unified, and a false step would bring immediate charges of imperialism not only from Guatamala, but from other Latin-American sources. And this at a time when the United States is already seriously concerned by such charges from Asia and the Middle East.

Washington, is, therefore, walking very softly so far.

Some observers fear increased Communist activity means Guatamala actully leans to communism, and that the United States could not act against it without a serious breach in the old policy favoring self-determination of peoples.

The impression at the State Department, however, is that no Communist takeover is imminent. The Congress, which frequently has to decide the issue after catch-can elections in which there is no decisive result, is still controlled by the Armas faction.

Conferences have been held in Washington in the last few days, attended by the American ambassador to Guatamala, but there is no indications so far of a decision on what or how to do, or whether anything can be done.

U.S. Studying Release Of The Nose Cone Film

By EDWARD S. KITCH

CHICAGO (AP) — How the nose of the army C Jupiter intermediate range missile was recovered is detailed in a secret motion picture that soon may be re-edited and declassified for television viewing.

So far, the film has been seen by only a few top officials, among them Assistant Secretary of Defense Murray Snyder. He is studying it for cutting so that it can be shown to the public.

The film tells the story of the development, testing and actual recovery of the nose cone of a Jupiter fired Aug. 16, 1957.

The nose cone was displayed by President Eisenhower when he appeared on television to tell the American people of the progress made in outer space rocketry.

The missile was launched from the Air Force Missile Test Center in Florida.

The recovery unit caused the cone to think for itself and expel a parachute to slow it down to a 100 - feet per second speed during its fall from 600 miles up. It also tossed out a balloon and inflated it, eected and exploded bombs and turned itself into a radio broadcasting station.

A flashing beacon light marked its landing position in the Atlantic Ocean test range. Finally, it spread a shark repellent so men could recover it from the water where it landed within a half-mile of a pre - determined target.

Although the cone glowed like a falling star, its internal temperature was low enough not to damage a letter placed inside by scientists before the launching. The letter was delivered to Maj. Gen. John B. Medaris, commander of the Army Ballistic Missile Agency at Huntsville, Ala.

Walter C. Hasselhorn, president of Cook Electric Co., says the technique used in the recovery system is akin to that used in the firing mechanism of depth bombs.

He said recovering the nose cone is important in the development of ballistic weapons because it permits scientific measurement of the high altitude conditions the nose cone endured.

It has been since 1898 that Cuba won its independence from Spain. But, the Cuban ministry of finance reveals that it is still paying 16 million dollars in pensions annually to 7,408 men who fought against the Spaniards.

Blaze Damages Residence Here

A short circuit apparently was the source of a fire that damaged the kitchen and dining room of the G. D. Edwards residence, 700 Lazarre, in West Monroe yesterday, firemen revealed.

No injuries were reported, but fire officials explained that the two rooms received extensive damage in the 6:30 p.m. blaze.

Engine companies Nos. 2, 3, and 6 answered the call and brought the blaze under control.

Missile Watchers Guide

By DAVID L. BOWEN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

General Maxwell D. Taylor, army chief of staff, commented a few days ago that within 10 years, Americans will think no more of missiles flying overhead than they do now of airplanes.

At the rate rocketeers are flinging the big birds into the sky from nesting pads on the sands of Cape Canaveral, Fla., the general's estimate is beginning to look conservative.

For those who find themselves muddled by the missiles suddenly sprouting headlines, here is a brief scorecard covering some of the most important missiles already in the American military arsenal or in advanced stages of development. They are displayed in the chart at right, drawn to approximate scale.

SNARK: The first U. S. intercontinental missile to reach production, the air force's Snark has a range of 5,000 miles plus and will be assigned to the strategic air command during 1958. In effect, it is a very fast, high flying, unmanned bomber. It must stay within the earth's atmosphere because of its air-breathing jet power plant, which makes interception possible.

FALCON: In production since 1955, the Falcon is an air - to - air missile guided to its target in one model by radar, in another by a heat-seeking device. It's in use by the air defense command.

SIDEWINDER: As deadly as the desert rattlesnake it's named after, the navy's air-to-air Sidewinder is literally guided by the tailpipe of its target by an infrared or heat-seeking device. It's inexpensive, reliable and in use.

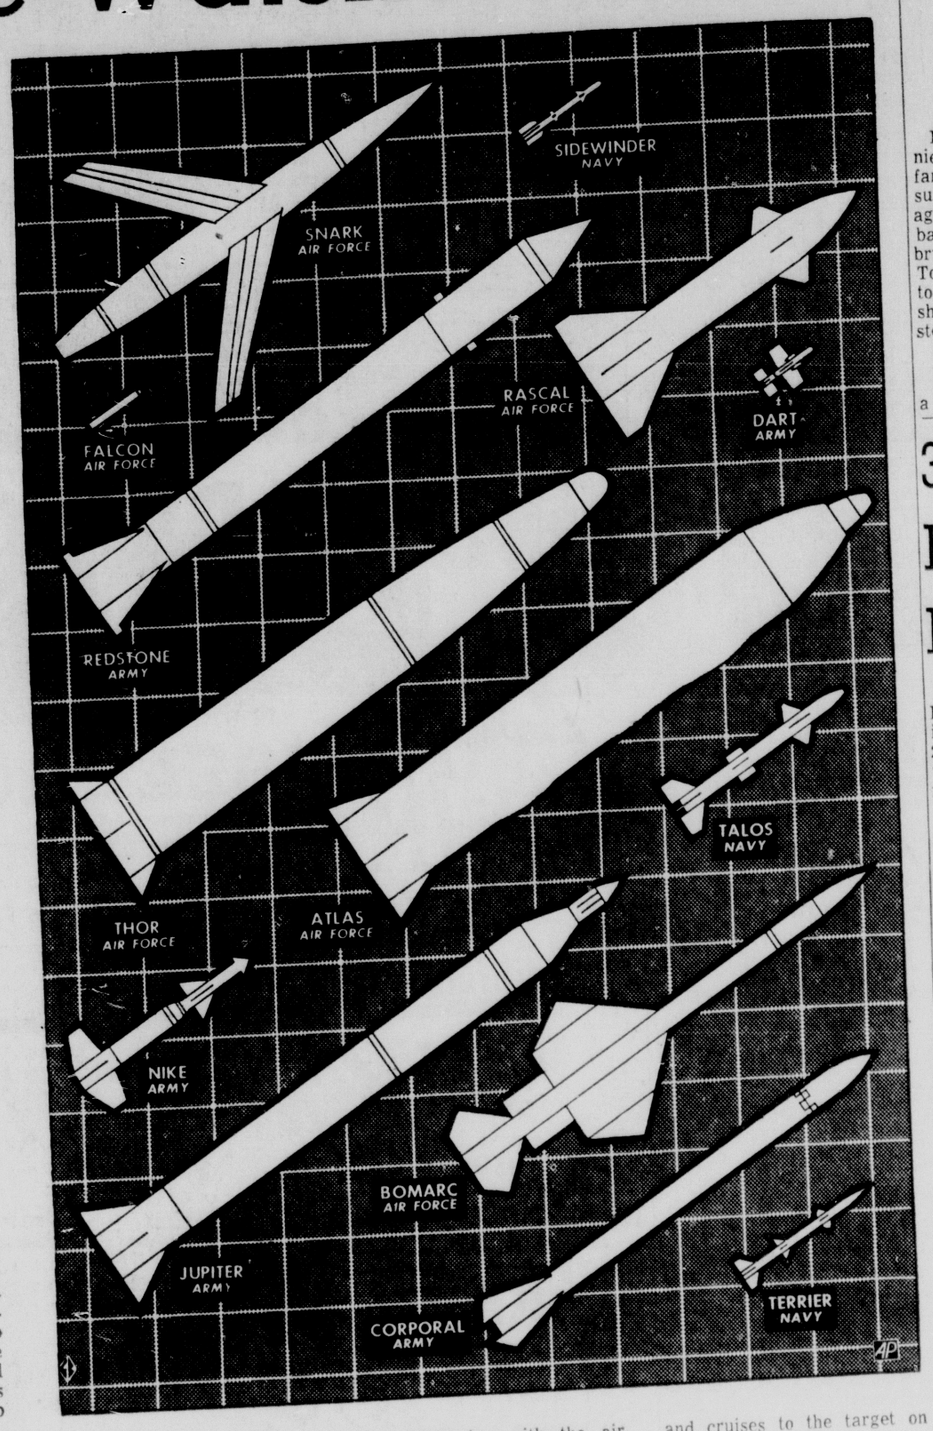
REDSTONE: The first successful large ballistic missile, the Redstone is an army bombardment weapon with a range of 200 miles. It is operational and was an important step toward longer range ballistic weapons.

RASCAL: This cigar-shaped rocket is designed for use by B47 Stratojet bombers seeking to avoid local anti - aircraft defenses. Carried to within striking distance by the mother plane, the Rascal speeds into the target on its own. It has been delivered to the strategic air command.

DART: Easily the most peculiar looking missile now made, the army's stubby Dart is only four feet long. It's for frontline use against tanks, and can deliver a powerful warhead with pinpoint accuracy.

THOR: One of the nation's two intermediate range (1,500 miles) ballistic missiles, the Thor has performed successfully in about half its tests. Developed by the air force, it will be used overseas within range of Russian targets when it becomes operational.

ATLAS: This is the "ultimate" weapon, a ballistic missile capable of spanning the oceans from one continent to another at speeds and heights making interception impossible with known equipment. The Russians reportedly have a missile of this class; Secretary of the Air Force Douglas has predicted the Atlas will be ready for combat use within two years.



NIKE: One of the earliest of the guided missiles, Nike batalions are common near many large American cities. The missile is anti - aircraft and has undergone several model changes.

JUPITER: The army's candidate in the intermediate range ballistic field, the Jupiter is the big brother to the Redstone. It has been ordered into production with the air force's Thor, even though — like the Thor — its development program is not yet complete.

TALOS: A versatile navy weapon, the Talos can be used against enemy aircraft or for surface bombardment. It is in use by the navy and may be employed by continental air defense by the army.

BOMARC: An anti - aircraft guided missile of extensive range, the Bomarc has successfully scored a "kill" on a target 100 miles from its launcher. It takes off vertically with rockets, then levels off and cruises to the target on twin ramjet engines.

CORPORAL: Already deployed in Europe, the Corporal gives army field commanders ability to strike at tactical targets 75 miles behind enemy lines. It can be armed with either atomic or conventional warheads.

TERRIER: A navy anti-aircraft weapon, the Terrier is now operational aboard three warships and will be employed on 13 more vessels under construction or being converted. Range is about 10 miles. Loaded, trained and fired automatically, it is guided to its target by radar.

HIS STORY

Fame Shortlived For B. Bedwell

Editor's Note—A year ago, Bennie Bedwell was a drifter when fame tapped him as a shortlived suspect in the slaying of the teen-aged Grimes sisters. Now he's back on skid row. Did the brief brush with fame change his life? To find out, an AP reporter went to skid row and worked, ate and shot pool with Bennie. Here's his story.

By BERNARD GAVZER

CHICAGO, Jan. 4 (AP)—Fame, of a sort, came to Bennie Bedwell as he was sitting in a skid row movie house.

The law plucked the 20-year-old drifter and sometime dishwasher from his seat. For a brief time it held him up to the hard glare of public inspection as a suspect in one of Chicago's most lurid—and still unsolved—murders.

Then, with scarcely a ripple, it dropped him back into his twilight world of cheap flophouses, saloons and beaneries, where jingling pockets lead to a bottle and strange women.

His Brief

During his brief flight from obscurity to obscurity, Bennie was accused of slaying the teen-aged Grimes sisters, Barbara and Patricia, who disappeared just a year ago today.

Bennie confessed (under police duress, he said). He recanted. He was freed. He was charged with rape in Florida, taken there, tried and acquitted.

The experiences seem to have changed Bennie. He doesn't drink any more. He has a steady girl and a steady job of sorts. He wants to go to school and learn to read.

Bennie works as a truck drivers helper for the Salvation Army at $17 a week (grant, not salary) plu room and board. He eats at the Army dining hall under a sign that says.

Never Fails

"Jesus Never Fails."

"Sometimes it seems like he does fail," Bennie observes, "but I reckon it only seemed that way to me for a bit back there."

"Back there" is the time of the Grimes case. Bennie was arrested shortly after the girls' nude, frozen bodies were found beside a country road Jan. 22. Several skid row people reported seeing the sisters with a dishwasher and drifter known as "Bennie."

After three days of questioning, Bennie signed a confession. But the mother of the slain girls insisted Bennie was lying. She said her daughters never would be on skid row of their own free will and certainly not in the company of such a person. Bennie repudiated the confession.

Why did he confess?

"I just wanted some peace," he said. "I wanted them to stop asking me questions. That's all I wanted was some peace of mind, for them to let me alone."

Bennie has a keen memory for details once heard and a knack for visualizing situations. To sheriffs' investigators, he seemed to know a lot about the Grimes case.

Once he decided to play a good suspect's role, he almost carried it off. He described what Barbara, 15, wore. He made glib use of 13-year-old Patricia's nickname, "Petie."

But, in making a good story, he guessed wrong on a lot of details. As Sheriff Joseph Lohman put it in exasperation: "He contradicts himself continually."

Two Girls

Bennie's second story was that he was with two Indian girls at the time.

"I think if you'd a been seen with two girls it might of been you," he says. "I was there with two Indian girls and it come out mixed up.

"I had me some money and I was looking for a good time and they looked as good as any I could have a party with so I went with them. The kind of people I knew and the kind of things we did, it was okay to go with girls and have a party.

"The way we figured was if a girl was old enough to know what the score was she was old enough to know what she was doing. I don't say we was right, or it's right now, but that's the way it was then."

Talking as he worked loading a truck, Bennie remembered the time when all the attention given him made him think—crazy as it seems—that maybe he was a hero of sorts.

"One feller wanted to give me $5,000 to go for a couple weeks on personal appearances. Nothing come of that. Another feller wanted I should come to Detroit and take care of a 60-room house and some cars and things. Nothing come of that, too."

What does Bennie want now?

"I'd like to go to schol. I want

"I'd like to go to school. I want to be able to pick up a newspaper and read and know what's going on in the world."

"Do you know what Sputnik is?" he was asked.

"Yeah, that's that thing up in the sky," he said. And, after a pause, he asked, "They ever hear from that dog again?"

Bennie figures that if he can get an education he can get a good job. The $17 a week he gets from the Salvation Army is temporary.

The army's Maj. C. C. Briggs explains:

"That's not a salary. We call it a grant. In the proper sense, the men here receive grants for work they do in addition to room and board. This is their home. We also have employes, but Bennie isn't in that category yet. He gets along very well here."

The army is a haven to Bennie. He ranks it second to David E. Bradshaw, the young attorney who took Bennie's case and succeeded eventually in getting him free.

"If it wasn't for Dave," Bennie says, "I'd be sitting in bad shape right now. My mother stood right by me too. Dave and her and her husband ((Bennie's stepfather stuck by me, but my mama couldn't do anything without Dave. He was the one."

3 Branches Enlist 32 From Area

Three branches of the Armed Forces have enlisted 32 area residents during the past month, with 21 going into the Army, nine to the Navy and two into the Marines.

Five Twin City residents were among the Army recruits. Now in basic training are Euell T. Nettles, Gene Simmons, and one WAC, Marguerite Fox, all from Monroe, and two West Monroyans, James E. Street and Alphonso Lea.

Prior-Service

Two prior - service men re-enlisted into the Navy within 90 days after discharge, and retained their previous ratings. They are Charles H. Whitaker, BT3, of Monroe, and Jimmie Jones, FT3, of Farmerville.

Others enlisting include Curtis L. Davis, Charles E. Walter, Elmer L. Terry and W. Harold Jackson, all of Monroe; John E. Ingram, West Monroe; Frederick H. Stringer, Oakdale, and Mickey F. Skelton, Mound Bayou, Miss.

William E. Sutherlin of Winnsboro is now in boot camp at the Marine Corps training center, San Diego, Calif. Marva Dell Williams of Bastrop enlisted in the women's branch of the corps, will begin training this month.

FEWER MARRIAGES

RENO (AP)—Reno had more divorce business last year than in 1956, but fewer marriages. Divorce decrees were granted to 4,468 people last year, 48 more than in 1956. Marriage licenses numbered 19,700 in 1957 compared with 20,196 the previous year.

Influence Of Big Democracy Tested

The United States is facing once again the question of how much influence a big democracy can exert in the internal affairs of a small neighbor threatened by communism.

The question was answered in Guatemala in 1954 by strong encouragement of a military coup which overthrew the pro-Communist government.

Guatemala is inexperienced in democratic administration. It adopted democratic forms only in 1944, and the conservatives never developed effective administration.

The Communists, on the other hand, were trained in administration and in legislative effectiveness, were able to put their bills through Congress and worm their way into the government, which they finally took over.

A special election in October filed to produce decisive results, there were fraud charges. Congress annulled the election and called another for Jan. 19.

Disturbances have continued, and two of the three leading candidates are openly seeking Communist support.

In this situation the United States would like to lend assistance to conservative factions, but they are not unified, and a false step would bring immediate charges of imperialism not only from Guatamala, but from other Latin-American sources. Conferences have been held in Washington in the last few days, attended by the American ambassador to Guatamala, but there is no indications so far of a decision on what or how to do, or whether anything can be done.

Miss. Editor, Publisher Dies At Greenwood

GREENWOOD, Miss., Jan. 4 (AP)—Editor-publisher Sumpter Gillespie of the Greenwood Commonwealth died at his home today after an illness of several weeks.

Born in Oxford 71 years ago, Gillespie moved to Greenwood in 1891. He was educated in Greenwood schools and at Mississippi State College. In 1905-1918, he was actively engaged in the cotton business.

Upon the death of his father in 1919, Gillespie took over the Commonwealth, a position he held until his death. An active newspaperman, Gillespie used his newspaper to champion worthy civic causes and identified himself with almost every major campaign for improvement in the area.

As a newspaperman, he was past president of the Mississippi Press Assn., a director of the Southern Newspaper Publishers Assn., and, recently appointed, chairman of the SNPA Business Committee for Mississippi.

Miss. Editor, Publisher Dies At Greenwood

Born in Oxford 71 years ago, Gillespie moved to Greenwood in 1891. He was educated in Greenwood schools and at Mississippi State College. In 1905-1918, he was actively engaged in the cotton business.

Upon the death of his father in 1919, Gillespie took over the Commonwealth, a position he held until his death. An active newspaperman, Gillespie used his newspaper to champion worthy civic causes and identified himself with almost every major campaign for improvement in the area.

As a newspaperman, he was past president of the Mississippi Press Assn., a director of the Southern Newspaper Publishers Assn., and, recently appointed, chairman of the SNPA Business Committee for Mississippi.

The Pacesetter of the Import Car Field

These cars, built by French Mastercraftsmen, were the winners of the recent San Francisco to Los Angeles Economy Run. Making the run in 10 hours with average speeds up to 55 miles per hour, three SIMCAS completed the 383-mile trip on just nine gallons of gasoline. Smashing all existing economy records, these cars averaged an amazing 42.6 miles per gallon.

4-LETTER AWARD

OF ACHIEVEMENT

AWARDED FOR

F For Sound Financing

M For Efficient Management

S For Competitive Spirit

F For Complete Modern Facilities

Reproduction of the Coveted Award

This is an award in which we take real pride, and earning it year after year is our aim, because these 10 plaques displayed in our showrooms mean that our financing, our management, our spirit and our facilities have met the highest standards of the automobile business. This consistent leadership, which was started under our old name of McCain-Richards, is based on the great principles featured in the 4-letter Award of Achievement. We are greatly indebted to the public for their loyal support in making these awards possible.

There Are 4 Good Reasons Why

BROWN-RIVERS-SCOGIN SOLD MORE CARS THAN ANY OTHER DEALER IN THIS AREA IN 1957

(AS SHOWN IN WEEKLY REGISTRATIONS COMPILED BY LETTER SERVICE BUREAU–MONROE)

MORE PEOPLE ARE SWITCHING TO FORDS - BECAUSE

REASON NO. 1

THE FORD CAR ITSELF . . . A Really "New" Car.
It's a simple fact that you get more car for your money when you buy Ford—truly a fine car at half the fine car price. Not only is Ford worth more when you buy it, but it's worth more when you sell it. We invite you to compare the Ford, feature for feature, and find out for yourself why so many people are switching to Ford.

REASON NO. 2

BROWN-RIVERS-SCOGIN VOLUME SELLING.
Through our big volume selling we have proven over and over that we can go you one better than any deal you can get on any car offered by anyone, anywhere. Many of our buyers have reported that we gave them as much as a $200 better deal than they were able to find elsewhere. It's our big volume, low-profit policy which enables us to do this.

REASON NO. 3

BROWN-RIVERS-SCOGIN SERVICE AFTER SALE
Convenient, easy to reach service after the sale is of tremendous importance in buying an automobile, and this is another factor which has been responsible for our big volume sales. We urge you to inspect our service facilities and you'll see that all equipment is available to keep your Ford in top running condition at all times. In order to provide extra service to our customers, we recently started staying open 'til midnight for your convenience.

REASON NO. 4

DEALER QUALIFICATIONS OUTLINED IN AWARD ABOVE.

Veteran — Let's try to get one of the last available GI loans on this comfortable 2 bedroom home only 1½ years old on a 100x200 ft. lot. Only $150 down plus the closing cost. Why pay more rent than it would cost to buy your own home? Payments of only $30 per mo. Better call now.

JERSEY ST, W.M.

Buy now and select your colors in this new 3 bedroom brick home located near the Highland school. Among the many fine features are: a large living room and dining area combination, kitchen, 3 bedrooms, tile bath and half, plus a carport and utility room. This home will be ready for occupancy in a couple of weeks. Call us today. FHA Loan Available.

101 LIBERTY DR., W.M.

Only $250 down plus low low closing costs is all you need to buy this "parcel of heaven." Located on a 50x187 corner lot this 2 bedroom home is to be completely redecorated from front to back. The outside finish is guaranteed for 10 years, so low upkeep can be yours. We have key and can show you today.

105 GULPHA, W.M.

Better be careful or you'll fall in love with this immaculate home that's so sparkling clean. This 2 year old youngster has wall to wall carpeting, ceramic tile bath, central heat, a beautiful roman brick fireplace (stump brick legs to go with it) double sink formica cabinet tops and for your summer comfort a nice 8x12 breezeway. May we show this home today?

BELMONT DR., W.M.

Country livin' sounds appealing, well —here's luxurious country living in a 1800 sq. ft. brick on approx. 2 acres. It has (2) spacious bedrooms — a beautiful kitchen and family room combination with a built in oven and range. A wonderful size living room and dining area. Bath, carport and storage. We'll show today, it's vacant.

BUT, BROTHER, WHY ARE YOU SO DRESSED UP? AND WHAT ARE YOU GOING TO PALM BEACH FOR?

WELL-- ER-- MAYBE I'LL TELL YOU WHEN I GET BACK.

I'M LOOKING FOR-- ER-- A LADY WITH THE CARNIVAL... NAME'S WANDA.

YOU MEAN THAT DANCIN' DAME? SHE LIVES IN A TRAILER OUT BACK.

WANTA SEE WANDA, EH? WOT ABOUT?

WELL, ER-- I'D LIKE TO TALK TO HER ABOUT-- WELL, ABOUT LEGALLY ADOPTING HER LITTLE GIRL ANGEL.

HEY, BABE, GUESS WHAT? THAT FARMER WHO'S KEEPING YOUR KID WANTS TO ADOPT HER FOR KEEPS!

ADOPT ANGEL?

BUT I--- I--

GET SMART, BABE. HE'S GIVIN' HER A SWELL HOME, AIN'T HE? YOU SAID YOURSELF THIS CARNIVAL'S NO PLACE TO RAISE A KID.

SINCE WE'RE KEEPING ANGEL, WE'D LIKE TO MAKE IT LEGAL.

BUT, JOE, WHEN YOU GET A NICE JOB, WE CAN HAVE ANGEL WITH US--

NOW LOOK, BABE, WE BEEN OVER THAT A HUNNERD TIMES.

BESIDES, SINCE THIS GENTLEMAN IS SO ANXIOUS TO ADOPT THE KID, I BET HE'D MAKE IT WORTH YOUR WHILE, EH, PAL?... SAY $1000, EH?

WELL, ER-- YES.

SELL MY CHILD! YOU BRUTE! NO, NO, NO! I WON'T DO IT!

LOOK, BABE, KIDS AIN'T IN MY LINE, SEE! I AIN'T EVEN ABOUT TO SETTLE DOWN!

SLIP ME A HUNNERD BUCKS ON ACCOUNT, PAL, AND I'LL TALK HER INTO IT. COME BACK TOMORROW. THE KID'S AS GOOD AS YOURS.

BOO-HOO-HOO!

YEH? WHATCHA WANT TO SEE ME ABOUT?

'S ABOUT TH' NEW GIRL Y'BEEN SEEIN' A LOT... AN' I'M SURE THAT OOOLA DON'T TAKE IT SO HOT!

WHAT TH' HECK! SHE'S GOT NO MORTGAGE ON ME!

I KNOW, MY BOY, BUT STILL IT'S TRUE... A THING LIKE THIS MAKES ANY GIRL BLUE...

...SHE STOOD BY YOU, ALL LOYAL AN' STUFF, WHEN MOST WERE AGIN YOU AN' TH' GOIN' WAS TOUGH!

SURE, I KNOW ALL THAT... BUT I'M NOT HURTIN' HER ANY..

...YOU KNOW YOURSELF THAT'S TH' LAST THING I'D EVER EVEN THINKA DOING!

THEN BEST YOU TELL HER LEST HER HOT TEARS WASH AWAY HER LOVE OF YEARS AN' YEARS

T.M. Reg. U.S. Pat. Off.

AW, FOOZY, MY GOSH, MAN!

I KNOW IT SOUNDS ICKY, BUT HEED WHAT I SAY... I KNOW ABOUT WOMEN, NOW OFF ON YOUR WAY!
